

The Alpha King's Regret Hiding His Secret Twins

Chapter 51

Chapter 51

Kiara's Point of View

"Okay, I will give you choices to make..." he sneered, as he circled around me. He yanked me by my hair, forcing me to look at his amber red eyes....

"Choose your mate or your pups.." he growled. My eyes started to glisten with tears when I heard their names. Terror rose in my b*dy when he mentioned them. So he had my pups.

"Kill that Alpha King and give your children a chance to live...." he hissed. Fear gripped. through me. I can feel the hatred in his voice towards Killian. I was in a desperate position and on the verge of which was freely trickling and onto out. I could feel the blood from the floor where I was lying.

my head wound,

His one hand tore off the side of my shirt as he tried to grab my breast. But before he could I grabbed his hand and stopped him. That's when I heard footsteps racing towards us. Unfortunately, he was not alone. My eyesight became blurry, but I knew I heard a roar and a snarl.

throat.

"You didn't arrive alone. F ucking sl ut." He hissed as he threw me on the floor. I was crushed as I heard the breaking of something and a scream ripped from my That is when I heard him calling for my name.

My head is hurt

Actually, scratch that. My whole b*dy is in so much pain. Everything hurts. I tried to open my eyes, but couldn't. It felt as if they were dragged down by stones. I tried to shout out to Ry and Hanna, or anyone; but nothing came out of my mouth.

I felt how slowly Killian put my head on his chest. I saw his worried expression. I was crying. What if this will be my last time seeing him? I am now human and I can't recover quickly like wolves.

I heard him saying the promise that he would bring my children back to me. And that was the last thing I heard before darkness invaded my mind.

When I came back to myself, I was no longer in pain, but still, I could not open my eyes. I am unable to move my b*dy. My limbs feel like they're burdened with cement. I felt trapped inside my own b*dy.

When I wake up, the room is filled with brightness. It's so bright that it makes me wince a little.

"You're awake," an unfamiliar voice says.

I tried to open my eyes again but the lights in the room were making it a difficult task for me. I felt like I was gasping for air. Or I am dead and in heaven.....

8.51%

Chapter 51

"I am very sorry about this Luna Kiara," she says politely, and I hear movements around the room. "You can now open your eyes, the light won't be a problem anymore,"

True to her words, when I open my eyes, the curtains are closed and the lights are turned low, I turn to the woman who seems to be in her late thirties. She is wearing a nurse uniform and a quick survey of the room makes me conclude that I am in a hospital and that too in a pack.

"Thank you," I rasped out, my voice feeling hoarse.

"Here, drink water while I go and call the doctor... The Alpha King will be relieved to know that you are now okay and awake. He has never left your side since you have arrived here," she said as she helped me to drink a glass of water before leaving the room.

It was when the door opened and Killian walked in. I was accepting him to yell at me and portray his arrogant behaviour for not telling him that I was leaving. But it was totally the opposite of what happened. He came to me and hugged me.

His hair was messy, his clothes were wrinkled and he looked tired like he hadn't slept for days. How many days have passed since I was unconscious? I have never seen Killian like this. He always kept his Alpha King demeanour. Impeccable and neat. His eyes are pained, and he seems to have been to hell and returned.

That hug sent tingles down my spine. It totally makes me feel like I was never hurt... I let myself enjoy a little warmth that spread between us for a moment... But that moment didn't last before I pushed him away from me... That is not right.

I looked up at him. I had only one question bugging my mind and that is, has he found them?

"What happened? Where are we now? Did you find them?" I allowed my heart to race a bit in anticipation of Ry and Hanna's news, but his scowl revealed a twinge of sadness in his eyes. But he shook his head and angered the roses in me. We got that bastard who has our children and Killian couldn't do anything about it.

The anger seems to have helped me forget that I was seriously wounded. "Then, why are you here? Why aren't you out there looking for them?" My voice rises with frustration and disappointment. I was disappointed with myself since I couldn't find them.

Why the heck was he here when I asked him to find our kids? He didn't need to pretend to care about me; he simply needed to find his children.

"Kiara, for Moon Goddess's sake calm down. You were badly injured. Do you know how many days you are here in this hospital bed? One week. If I didn't save you. You would have been dead by now.."

Chapter 51

"Then you should have left me there and you need to find them, Killian. I need to find them...." I said as I started to climb out of the hospital bed.

"Kiara y ou have only just woken up.." He growled at me with a warning.

But I didn't give a damn about his warning. One week has passed and I still don't know where the hell my children are. I can't just lay here and wait for him to take action. I need to do this.

When I kept my feet on the floor. I staggered back a little while Killian grabbed my waist, balancing me..

“Kiara for f uck sake just stop this madness you will hurt yourself,” “Killian! You don’t know a sh it. You did not even meet them. You don’t even know they existed. I have been taking care of them since they were born. I am not taking orders from you. So get the f uck out of my way,” I push his chest but he doesn’t move, he remains standing in front of me like a mountain.

But still, I went away from him aiming my direction to the door when he held my arm. I turned around and gave him a slap which resonated in the room.

色

Tip: You can use left, right keyboard keys to browse between chapters.

Chapter 52

Chapter 52

Kiara’s Point of View

The sharp sound of the slap echoed through the room, shattering the heavy silence. My chest heaved as I took a deep breath, a painful twinge throbbing inside my heart, threatening to burst at any moment. Killian’s jaws were clenched, but he held back, a storm brewing in his eyes.

I turned to walk away, desperate to escape the tension, but his grip on my arm tightened, forcing me to face him. His eyes flickered with an ominous redness, and his scent permeated the room, growing stronger with each passing second.

“You aren’t going anywhere, Kiara. Not until I say so!” he snarled, unleashing his entire aura on me. Tingling sensations wrapped around my arm, trapped in his firm grasp. I was no longer his chosen wife bound by his rules. The Kiara from the past was gone, lost the day she jumped off from the cliff. Even though I may be human now, devoid of strength, I refused to be a puppet in his game.

I struggled against his overpowering aura, fully aware that a mere human stood little chance against the might of the great Alpha King. Yet, I refused to submit without a fight, determined to make it clear that I wouldn’t be ordered around when it came to my own children, not by him or anyone else.

“Don’t even think you can order me around, Killian,” I seethed, defying his dominance. His teeth remained gritted, and I could tell in his eyes by the flare of his wolf approaching. I absolutely love to damage his gigantic ego.

“If I hadn’t followed you, you would be dead, or worse, raped, Kiara. So, I will order you. around. Just sit the f uck down and be grateful to me,” he retorted, his arrogance oozing through every word. But I wasn’t about to back down.

“Grateful to you? Really, Killian? You still have the nerve to ask me to be grateful to you?” I shot back, my eyes beginning to glisten with tears. The audacity of his request, considering it was because of him that my children had gone missing, left me seething with anger.

“It’s because of you that they kidnapped them, Killian! Because you didn’t do a da mn thing to that Rogue Alpha who was ready to massacre or kill someone who belongs to you,” I yelled, frustration boiling within me. Words struggled to form in the face of the overwhelming anger coursing through my veins.

Tears streamed down my face, but I hastily brushed them away. I didn’t want him to witness my vulnerability. For years, I’d lived freely with my children, and now he had. come like a hurricane, leaving destruction in his wake. The life I’d built, the peace I’d found all shattered by his presence.

—

Chapter 32

“Kiara, let me remind you, you’re the one who ran away with my children, hiding them. from me. I could have left you there to die and gone searching for them,” his words carried the weight of his Alpha King’s power, pressing down on me like a relentless monster. Was this his plan all along? The unpredictable switch in his demeanour left me unsettled.

Recollections of a conversation with Alpha Eric resurfaced in my mind. The confidence he had in claiming the children as belonging to Killian’s bloodline, strong and powerful, haunted me. The implications chilled my blood. Was this the true reason behind the chaos?

Images from the past flashed before my eyes like a broken reel. The agonising cries, the pain – all linked back to him. Trust shattered like glass, and I couldn’t fathom what was going on in his mind at that very moment.

Fear tightened its grip as I considered the possibility – he might kill me and take away. my children.

"I didn't come at the wrong time, right?" An incredibly handsome man chuckled, leaning casually against the doorframe. The sound of his laughter rippled through the tense air. I heard Killian sigh, rubbing his forehead before pointing towards the man.

"Kiara, this is Alpha Dean. We've been staying in his pack hospital for the past week," Killian said, his eyes closing with a weariness evident in his posture. Alpha Dean, a stranger to me until now, stood with an air of confidence.

"Killian, this is not the right way to introduce me to this beautiful woman right here," Alpha Dean smirked, his tone playful.

"I was the one who came to your rescue," he added, a hint of pride colouring his words.

"I had everything under control," Killian asserted, a defensive edge in his tone, clearly not fond of having his vulnerabilities pointed out.

"Oh, please, Killian. You looked like you were about to cry like a baby," Alpha Dean retorted with a smirk, his gaze shifting to me. Killian rolled his eyes in response.

I was taken aback, observing Killian who avoided meeting my eyes. Surprisingly, he seemed genuinely worried for me. The unexpected concern tugged at my emotions, creating a whirlwind of confusion within me.

"And you must be Luna Kiara. It's a pleasure to finally be able to meet you," Alpha Dean addressed me, his short black hair with a modest long quiff at the top complementing his dark green eyes and deep skin tone. His sparkling white teeth presented a grin that had likely left many females captivated.

"Thank you so much for your help, Alpha Dean," I expressed my gratitude sincerely. His

-59 Sat, 3 Feb

Chapter 32

assistance had been crucial; because of him, I was still alive. He took my hands and k*ssed the back of it. His bold gesture made me uncomfortable, but I chose to offer only a fake smile in response.

"You look better now?" he inquired.

"Yes," I replied, my tone carrying a genuine appreciation for his concern.

"Now, if you don't mind telling me the reason for trespassing my pack grounds," Alpha Dean pressed further, causing me to nervously bite my l*p.

“Don’t jump to conclusions, Kiara. That part of the area falls under my pack, but it was entirely under human control,” he explained, leaving my brows knitted in confusion. That night, I distinctly remembered seeing a wolf there, a detail that clashed with Alpha Dean’s assurance of human control.

“Yes, I had no idea it was pack grounds until I arrived there. I’m sorry, but I intended to be quick and depart before anyone saw me. I didn’t expect to have to intrude on your hospitality,” I explained. Killian wore a deep scowl, and I couldn’t quite fathom his expression.

“Not at all, it was a pleasure to help you,” Alpha Dean winked at me, and Killian let out a low growl in response. I rolled my eyes this time, offering Alpha Dean a sincere smile.

0

Tip: You can use left, right keyboard keys to browse between chapters.

Chapter 53

Chapter 53

¥51%

Rihana’s Point of View

“Where the hell is Killian?” I demanded as soon as I entered Alejandro’s office, my worry for him reaching its peak. He hadn’t returned home in a week, an entire week without a word, and no one seemed inclined to enlighten me on his whereabouts.

Alejandro glared at me, shutting his laptop abruptly. He had been tirelessly searching for the person responsible for Lucia’s accident, a search I wasn’t eager to see concluded...

Our past held a tight bond – Alejandro, Killian, and I. We were best friends, envied by every member of the pack. But as the saying goes, every good thing comes to an end, and our trio has crumbled. The downfall began the moment Alpha Eric found Killian’s fated mate, Kiara.

And I met mine...

I fell for Killian when I was just a teenager. I was thinking of becoming his chosen mate and future Luna of the Mad Crest Pack when I got to know that just like me Killian didn't find his mate. I knew Killian liked me. He loved me. But now it is nothing but just a responsibility. I had become a responsibility for him...

But he didn't know that I told him a lie when I returned to the pack. All these years I have been feeding him lies that the pack alpha attacked me... That alpha is good. But I want Killian only.

"Rihanna, how many times do I have to tell you that you don't need to worry about him. He is safe and just today I talked to him on the phone and he is coming back to the pack," Alejandro said as he folded his arms across his chest. His chest puffed out from his tight shirt.

"Where the hell is he has been staying these past week and Alejandro don't you dare to say that I don't need to know about this. Because I have seen Alpha Aiden coming to ask about Kiara. She was missing too," I yelled frustratedly at him. I was so close to becoming what I had always desired and just like a wind, Kiara knocked down my plan. I need to talk to that man... He is forgetting his promise. His deal...

"I know they both are together," I hiss a pure hatred showing in my eyes at the mere mention of that girl. I thought she had been killed but oh how wrong I was. When I saw her again it felt like I met with death. Her being alive was not mentioned when I decided to help that man... That was clearly not part of the deal...

"Rihanna. I think it is enough. You know you can not win over them now. They had formed a family. They love each other even if they don't confront it. They are a fated mate that was gifted from the Moon Goddess why the hell are you so persistent to separate them," He said as he shook his head, clearly pitying me and I gritted my teeth. No, I am not going to let this happen, not when I am dreaming of living a life she has lived so long.

51%

Chapter 53

Killian should be mine and I will do anything for this.

"No Alejandro, he didn't love her. He just wanted those kids because they had his blood. They are the future heir of the Mad Crest Pack. If you think that he would love them. It is the most absurd thing I have heard," I said glaring at him.

"Rihanna! How can you become this cruel? If Killian loved you, you would be sitting next to him like a real Luna. Like Kiara used to live in the past before she rejected him. But he never titled you to become one. He even ripped off that title when he got to know how you blamed Kiara for poisoning you,” He growled. I don’t understand why all of these men are so protective towards that bitch.

My eyes started to burn in pure hatred because somewhere I knew that this was all correct. Everything which Alejandro said was all true. I turned to leave him when he grabbed my hand and a tingle of sensation felt in me. I immediately take my hand away.

from him.

Yes, I knew he was my mate. He is the reason I decided to run away. Alpha Eric was just a pawn in this game. I knew living away from him would distance this bond. I was just waiting for the right moment to reject him. Because he is still needed in my plan.

“Don’t touch me again, Alejandro. You should be feeling lucky that I was not rejecting you otherwise you would be exactly like Kiara. A mere human,” I hissed at him before leaving the room.

Kiara’s point of view

As soon as I settled in the car. It took us another two hours to finally leave that pack’s hospital. Killian insisted on running a few tests just to make sure that I was fine and that. I was allowed to go.

I can see the distance Killian is putting with Alpha Dean. And I needed to know why Killian doesn’t have a good relationship with this pack. Alpha Dean is inviting me for dinner, which Killian was the one who refused on my behalf.

“Have you informed my brother or Aries that I was injured and we have been staying. this past week here in Alpha Dean pack?” Lask and Killian rolls his eyes at the mention. of Aries.

Like a man, what is his problem? When will his mood ever go with the day?

Chapter 53

“I had talked to Alejandro and I think my beta knows whom he has to inform about your situation,” he said as his grip on the steering wheel tightened.

“Killian. I don’t get what your problem is with Aries but let me tell you he is a good man. and close to me so I want you to treat him with respect. I belong to his pack.”

“And if you have any other problems with his pack or me just tell me we would leave. We can contact them by phone to find them,”

"It is not mandatory for me to stay here," I said and Killian only released his aura. Trying to dominate me but who's gonna tell him that it only gave me a safety and protective feeling.

"Why are you so difficult to deal with Kiara?" He growled.

"I am difficult to deal with?" I said.

"Yes, you are. If you didn't leave the pack unprotected and if you had informed your beloved Alpha Aries then none of this happened to you.... to us... And next time use your f ucking brain and don't flirt with the enemy alpha," He growled at me.

When the car entered the Mad Crest Pack territory. I sighed in relief. The car through the mansion gate and a screeching sound was heard.

r entered

After stopping the car Killian was the first one to exit the car. I thought he would go back into the Alpha house but he rounded the car and went to my side opening the door. He helped me get down.

I was shocked by his care but in his eyes, I could see that he wanted me safe. He can always carry his demeanour strong and cruel but when I was living with him. I started to read his eyes. He is caring, that is what I know... Or maybe it can also be a facade...

We entered the Alpha mansion and in the living room, all were present. Rihanna's banshee like voice was the first thing I heard as he jumped to Killian hugging him. Aries rushed to my side as his eyes were flickering. His wolf is trying to make a presence. He was angry and I could feel it in my soul.

"Why the hell did you leave without telling me?" He asked. I looked down as I wasn't able to answer it.

I

"I had to go to him, Aries. If I weren't then he would kill my kids. I thought I could find something but I couldn't, I lightly whispered this to him.

Killian growled at him and rushed past him to the office room followed by Rihanna who glared at me.

I needed to talk to Aries alone. I didn't forget what that man offered me. My child or my mate.

Chapter 531

“Are you okay?” Alejandro asked me. I looked up at him, giving him a small smile.

“Why don’t you take a seat here and I will tell someone to bring you something to drink?” He lightly asked me and Aries was glaring at him. I nodded my head. I think he mind-linked the maid who came and gave me a hot chocolate which I needed most whenever I was anxious. I bet he knew what happened to me? Killian was always open to him.

Aries sat beside me as I drank hot chocolate. After a few minutes, Alejandro too walked into the office room. Taking advantage of the situation I grabbed Aries’s hand and walked with him to a silent area.

“Kiara, what happened?” he whispered.

“I ran into a slight problem,” I said to him. My voice hushed down so only he could listen to it. I told him everything that happened to me that night. His eyes flashed with amber red.

“And why the hell Killian didn’t catch that bastard. I will kill him. I swear Kiara,” he growled but I held his hand.

“Not now Aries. I need to find my children, they are the most important thing right now,” I pressed my concern to this.

“I couldn’t find anything.” I whispered as tears started to gather in my eyes. I needed my children.

“He only gave me a choice to make,” I checked the doorway and lowered my voice.

“What choice?”

“If I wanted my children to be safe and alive. I need to kill Killian,” I said to him.

SEND GIFT

Tip: You can use left, right keyboard keys to browse between chapters.

Chapter 54

Chapter 54

Killian's Point of View.

I slammed my office door shut, frustration pulsating through my veins as I strode directly to the bar attached to the room. Grabbing a bottle of Brugal rum, I poured it into a glass and downed it one gulp at a time. The burning sensation in my throat did little to ease the turmoil inside.

I couldn't stand the sight of that bastard wandering around her. Why the hell was he even here? Every time I saw him near her, my wolf stirred, a primal urge to tear him away from her taking over.

Jealousy and irritation flashed through me, an unsettling mix of emotions that I thought should have dissipated after all these years of separation.

This damn bond, was still alive and kicking. She still had the power to make me feel things, emotions that weakened my resolve. Only her. She had the power to make me weak.

My eyes flashed, struggling to control my damn wolf as the door to my office opened again. She walked in, the clicking of her heels resonating in the room. I couldn't help but wonder why she chose to wear this, why she had to make it more complicated.

"Killian, do you know how worried I was when you didn't contact me this week?" she said, her voice carrying genuine concern. I turned around, initially ready to unleash my frustration on her, but the sincerity etched in her features froze me in place.

I'd been avoiding her, and deep down, I knew it wasn't fair to her. Whatever chaos was unfolding in my damn life, she wasn't responsible for it. A moment of softness felt inside my heart. I walked to her side and lightly touched her face. She closed her eyes as she enjoyed the warmth of mine but just like always I didn't feel that tingling which I felt whenever I was with Kiara.

"Rihanna, I'm sorry, but I wasn't in a good condition to tell you everything." I whispered, a soft apology escaping my lips. She nodded her head in understanding. That is what I hope for.

"It is okay, I can understand. Just inform me before you go anywhere. You know I got scared," she whispered softly. I offered her a smile trying to put distance between us but she pouted and gripped my shirt so that I could stand closer to her. I shook my head.

knowing that she would do whatever she wanted before I mind-linked Alejandro to come and meet me in the office.

I mindlinked Alejandro to walk into the office. He had informed me something about the activity when he got the call from one of the warriors. And I needed to find what information he had gotten his hand too.

Chapter 54

As he walked inside the office, I saw how uncomfortable he had gotten to see me close to Rihanna and how smug she looked when he saw us together and this close. I untangled her hand from my neck which she put when I tried to ease off and put distance between us as I moved to sit on the chair.

"What news do you have, Al?" I asked as I sat at my desk, reaching into my drawer for a smoke. I was not addicted to it but it is something I felt like doing today. The past week has been a roller coaster ride for me. Getting to know you have kids and they have been kidnapped and the attack on Kiara is blocking my mind blocked from even thinking about anything else right now. It feels like a responsibility.

Seeing her this close to losing her brought a new fear onto me. Was it because she was the mother of my children? I couldn't comprehend why my wolf was acting up, seeking to find her mate, her wolf within her. It was as if he sensed her presence somewhere deep within her....

A protective instinct began to surge within me. If something were to happen to her, I could claim parental rights for both the children. It would be to my advantage, right? But I don't feel like doing this shit to her.

"I received information from one of the spy warriors in the west. He reported unusual activity in the mines. Unfortunately, that's all I got before the signal on his phone went off," Alejandro reported, his hand pressing against his back, a gesture which I didn't miss a bit.

was away.

The past week had proven to be a burden on Alejandro as I with matters in Alpha Dean's pack while Austin resided in the Eclipse Pack. Austin had informed me of some improvement in Lucia's health, and he desired to be by her side. I had granted him permission, understanding the importance of family, as Lucia was the only family he had. And I know how it felt to lose them...

In my absence, Alejandro took up the responsibility of managing affairs in my pack. Rihanna, at times, adopted a fake Luna attitude to handle various matters, and I sensed my father had already surrendered his hold on me. By the way, his absence speaks to me...

"Who else knows?" I inquired about him.

"Apart from Alpha Aries, no one. He was there when I got the call from the spy warrior," Alejandro reported, his voice carrying a sense of frustration.

"This is the first time I have heard of such information?" Rihanna, scornfully remarking on the situation, directed her questioning gaze at Alejandro, who chose not to respond. The tension in the room intensified, and I could sense there was more to this than met the eye.

Chapter 54

"And I don't understand why you're helping her, Killian. Do you really believe the children are yours?" she taunted, igniting the usual storm of anger within me.

"Send her on her way, and while you're at it, ask for a divorce and this time please do reject her," Riharina declared before storming out of the office, pulling her phone from her pocket.

Alejandro and I exchanged a shake of our heads at her audacity.

"What happened there, Killian?" Alejandro inquired, turning to me after Rihanna stormed out of my office.

"A fucking disaster, Alejandro! I arrived at the abandoned building to find her half unconscious, bleeding profusely from her head, with hand marks on her n*eck from the attacker pinning her to the ground..." A low growl resonated from my chest as the memories replayed in my mind.

"She's angry at me for scaring the attacker away, for losing the information, but he wasn't there to give her details. From the way I found her, he had other motives," I explained, frustration evident in my voice as I ran my fingers through my hair, tugging at the ends.

"Did you provide her with medical care?" Alejandro frowned, crossing his arms over his chest. Today, he was wearing a hoodie, an unusual choice given the hot weather outside.

“It was Alpha Dean’s land she drove straight into, wasn’t it? He made it apparent he enjoyed her error in judgement,” I took a deep breath, the frustration still vivid at Dean. flirting with her.

“When I got to the cars with an unconscious Kiara, Dean and some of his men were waiting for us. He took us straight to the hospital, and his doctors gave Kiara immediate medical attention. But now I f ucking owe that man,” I stubbed out my cigarette before lighting another one.

We started to plan what we could do for that news.

“I will go to to t

the mines and see what I can find there. If I’m caught, I’ll claim you sent me to qualify the lead on the reported recent movement. If it’s the end, you’re close enough to quickly form a new plan with our warriors at your command,” Alejandro suggested. The loyalty and trust between us were evident, reinforcing why he was my beta and my best friend.

“That is a good plan,” I said as I adjusted my weight on the desk looking out of the window.

Tip: You can use left, right keyboard keys to browse between chapters.

Chapter 55

Chapter 55

Kiara’s Point of View.

“What choice?” Aries asked.

“If I want my children to be safe and alive, I need to kill Killian,” I replied, swallowing hard as I faced the gravity of the decision. The gravity that is drowning me.

“F ucking sh it!” Aries whispered, expressing the difficulty and confusion that lay ahead of me. I knew that would be the most difficult task for me. He is my mate though I rejected that bond four years ago but I was still feeling that tingly sensation whenever he was near me.

On the way here, I was thinking about this. What Killian had done was so cruel that someone wanted him dead, and that too using his own mate.

“Kiara, you’re not going to do that, are you?” he asked, glancing around to ensure no one overheard. Tears welled up in my eyes. I never wanted anything to happen this way. I had been happy, and now I found myself torn between conflicting emotions. What was I going to do?

“Do you need my help? We will do this together. I will not leave you alone in this.... You could kill him, and we’d run away from here without letting them know,” Aries suggested. I sensed that this plan would take an unexpected turn, and the idea of killing my mate, even in the face of the wrongs he had committed, felt like a disaster in the making.

“Kiara, what are you thinking now?” Aries asked and I wanted to form sentences to make him explain what I was feeling. Someone knowing all this along that he has an heir and using them to kill him by his own mate would have become a history.

“Nothing, you are right. I will do that. I will do that for my kids,” I whispered but inside. me, a storm was forming. How could I do this?

“Okay just look after yourself. I will stand near the border once you kill him, come to me, okay?”

“Take this phone. It would be easier for me to get connected with you,” he said as he pulled out a brand new phone and handed it to me.

I nodded my head. He lightly brushed my hair pulling me in a comforting hug which didn’t feel like that at all... Why is this happening to me?

It was evening and the clouds started to gather around the sky as if the Moon Goddess didn’t want this to happen. I don’t want that either. I was scared because my children were with them. I wanted them safe. I don’t have a choice to make.

51%A

Chapter 55

The weather has been gloomy since early this morning, and it was evident that it would only get worse. The bedroom which I used to share with Killian is where I am staying right now. And it is only making me contemplate. Why didn’t Killian share this bedroom with Rihanna? He wanted her to be his chosen mate but they are not sharing this room. Did he still have something for me in his heart?

Aries had already left the pack in the evening. And I decided to stay to execute my plan. I was waiting for him to come. He was dealing with something he didn’t want me to know.

Cool air seeped through the open window of the bedroom, carrying the scent of impending rain. Wrapping my arm around myself I tried to give myself some warmth.

We are alone from the way the quietness I felt in the Alpha Mansion. Alejandro left somewhere in the evening and Alpha Eric is not living here anymore with Killian. I haven't seen him....

So that leaves Rihanna whose voice is only being heard on the ground floor by the way she is ordering everyone around. Trying to show me the power she had as the Luna of the pack.

I walked out of the room and met with Rihanna in the hallway. I was about to walk past her when she grabbed my hand making me stop. there.

"Why are you still here, Kiara?" Rihanna asked, a hint of annoyance in her tone. I rolled my eyes, yanking my hand free as I resumed my steps towards the guest room where Killian was staying. However, her next sentence made me freeze on the spot.

"Do you really believe that Killian is searching for your kids to give them back to you?" she questioned, and a bitter taste filled my mouth. I turned to look at her, my eyes narrowing.

"You're so innocent, Kiara," she taunted, walking towards me. "They are the heirs of the pack. He would separate you from them and take them with him. He is going to kill you," she declared menacingly. The truth hit me like a tidal wave, and my fist tightened as tears welled up in my eyes.

H

My heart raced uncontrollably, the quickened pace causing a tightening sensation in my chest. Shocked and unable to find words, I stood there, vulnerable and exposed.

"And once he kills you, I will kill your children. They don't deserve to be called the Alpha King's heirs," she declared coldly, her words cutting through me like a knife.

I felt the hot water from the shower cascading down my b*dy, the steam enveloping the small glass cabin in the bathroom. The events leading me here were a blur, but one thing was clear, I wouldn't let their plan succeed. I would be the one to end him.

275

Sat, 3 Feb

Chapter 55

FLASHBACK BEGINS

"No! You are not going to do that," I screamed, my voice echoing with rage as my chest heaved. The anger inside me boiled over. I had hoped Killian had changed, but he was still the same selfish monster who only thinks about himself. The same monster who destroyed my pack.

"Let's see if this is going to happen or not?" She sneered, walking away from me, leaving a trail of tension in her wake.

FLASHBACK END

The memory played like a haunting melody in my mind. The betrayal, the hurt, it fueled a fire within me. I shut off the shower, the droplets clinging to my skin.

Naked, I stepped out, taking the towel to wrap around my b*dy. I have to protect my own. I wouldn't let them dictate my fate. Not again. I walked to his wardrobe, picking one of his shirts and wearing it. My legs are bare. I knew what he was weak for. And this is the only way I can be close to him. I waited for him to come. That was when the door of his room opened and he walked inside..

My heart thudded loudly in my chest as I looked up at the man coming into the room through the doorway. He turned to face me, amusement and smugness etched on his features.

"I didn't expect that. Kiara, what are you doing here, sweetheart?" he whispered, the words delivered with a softness that sent shivers down my spine. I gulped down the fury and anger brewing deep inside me. Seduction seemed to be the only way to persuade him.

My eyes swept from him, top to bottom. He was completely drenched by the rain, the droplets clinging to his clothes, drawing my attention to the shape of his physique. Despite my resolve, I couldn't deny the impact his presence had on me.

His soaking black hair fell in front of his eyes, a cascade of darkness that added an enigmatic allure. The wet white t-shirt clung to him, giving me a good view of his abs and firm chest. It was almost see-through, revealing a new tattoo that covered the side of his left flank and his arm.

My gaze couldn't help but dip lower, a mistake that sent a jolt through me. His black jeans were soaked through, outlining the definition of his manhood...

My mind raced to catch up with the sudden surge of desire, my stomach doing a fl*p. I felt a dryness in my throat as I swallowed, unable to tear my eyes away. He raised his arm, brushing his wet hair back, and my breath caught as his muscles flexed.

3/5

Chapter 55

“Eye up here, sweetheart,” he says arrogantly.

My cheeks burn in embarrassment. I was lost for words.

“You didn’t answer me, sweetheart, why are you here?” he asked as folded his arm on his chest. The nickname is giving me a tingling in my core. Why the f*ck he still has an effect on me?

“I wanted to welcome you. You’re doing so much for me. It’s the least I could do,” I whispered seductively. He raises his eyebrow at me. I was behaving out of character. This is not what I do. And he knew it.

I felt a hint of uncertainty, a deviation from my usual demeanour. This wasn’t my typical approach, and he was keenly aware of it.

He walked over to me, a hint of scepticism in his raised eyebrow. This wasn’t the Kiara he once knew. He took hold of my chin, his touch sending a shiver down my spine. His proximity and intoxicating scent left me breathless.

My heart pounded, and all I could do was gaze up at the man who had cast me aside, trying to decipher the look in those brilliant grey eyes of his, so similar to the storm outside.

He pressed his thumb to my l*ps, a provocative move that made my core clench with desire. Taking his hand, I led him to the bed, dropping onto it with Killian now hovering over me.

The flicker in his eyes shifted between grey and amber red and I knew he was drowning. into the desire. I felt the hardness of his b*dy against mine, the wetness of his clothes. adding to the charged atmosphere. A low growl rumbled from his chest.

“You’re playing with fire, sweetheart, he whispered near my ear, his teeth grazing my earlobe. I shuddered as his strong hand settled on my waist.

“I’ve played with this fire before, Killian. I remember it perfectly. It’s just you who have forgotten,” I whispered back, trying to maintain a facade of control. But he was affecting me in ways I didn’t want to admit.

Wherever his hand roamed across my b*dy, it sent tingles to my core, making it clench with a mixture of pleasure and apprehension.

He forced me to separate my legs by his thigh as he pressed his b*dy more onto mine. He smashed his l*ps against mine. Pleasure rushed through me as he devoured my l*ps. like he had been hungry for years. A moan left my l*ps. I knew my l*ps would be bruised by the way he was k*ssing me.

I arched my back involuntarily. A soft moan escapes my l*ps as I feel him throb against

4/5

51%

Chapter 55

my stomach. He stood up before removing his t-shirt which was soaked and another blush danced on my face. It has been so long since I have seen n*ked men. And this man knows that he was built by the Greek god.

He watched me with a hunger that I never thought I'd see again – a hunger that made me light-headed. But he was playing with my emotions, attempting to dismantle the protective wall I had built around my heart. In the heat of the moment, he turned me around, raising my hips as I felt his clothed hardness pressing against me.

While he dry-humped me, my hand slipped under the pillow where I had hidden a silver dagger given to me by Aries. Rihanna's mocking words echoed in my mind.

Gripping the dagger tightly, I turned around, ready to plunge it into his chest...

SEND GIFT

COMMENT

0

Tip: You can use left, right keyboard keys to browse between chapters.

Chapter 56

Chapter 56

Killian's Point of View

"It looks like they are leaving," Alejandro remarked, peering out of the window. My brows knitted together as I hastily stepped in front of the window, gazing at the garden outside the Alpha Mansion. Shock surged through me as I realised she might be leaving with him. Urgency propelled me out of the office room, through the living room, and into the garden.

"Don't let her leave the pack," my wolf growled at me for the first time, a low warning tone ringing in my mind.

"Going somewhere?" I questioned as I approached Aries and Kiara, who stood close to each other. I rolled my eyes at them, noting Kiara's frozen stance at my question.

I hoped fervently, praying to the Moon Goddess that she would stay. Aries lightly held Kiara's hand, and I glared at the way he always touched her.

"No, I am staying here, only Aries is returning to the pack. Something happened that he needed to solve," Kiara explained, her gaze meeting mine.

"What could happen in a small pack?" I asked curiously, and Aries growled in response. My eyebrow raised at his unexpected reaction.

"I'm going then, Kiara. But please be safe, okay?" Aries said, holding her face. My glare intensified as I watched them, the close proximity triggering a surge of jealousy and irritation within me.

I stood beside her as Aries left the mansion gate. Mind-linking one of my warriors, I instructed them to follow him. I needed to know if he was genuinely returning to the pack or if there were other motives at play.

I heard Kiara take a deep breath before turning to look at me, and I found myself lost in those eyes. The hesitation and nervousness were evident, and I wanted to ask her about it. However, before I could, she walked back into the Alpha Mansion.

Sighing, I felt a strong desire to be close to her. Was it because I hadn't accepted the rejection? Was that why I still harboured feelings for her?

Gathering some weapons, I instructed my men to load them into the car. If something happened there, Alejandro and my men would have the means to protect themselves.

Standing beside the car, I waited for Aries. Glancing at the door, I saw him coming out of the house.

“Take care of yourself, and if the situation gets out of control, just come back here, okay? And I need you to keep me up to date with the news,” I instructed Aries. He nodded before getting into the driver’s seat, and I watched as the car left the mansion.

1/3

51%1

Chapter 56

Deciding to train the evening batch of warriors, I immersed myself in sparring and exercises. As the clouds gathered in the sky, I transformed into my wolf form, patrolling the borders to ensure security.

When I returned to the Alpha Mansion, I was drenched in the rain. Despite being the Alpha King, I was susceptible to illness. Passing by the bedroom door, I hoped to catch a oof her, but her absence worried me. I didn’t hear her heartbeat from inside the Fear gripped me at the thought that she might have left, but then I heard her loud heartbeat coming from my room. I entered cautiously, not expecting to see her in the state I found her.

My manhood began to throb at the sight of her wearing my shirt, looking beautiful. It brought back memories of the days when we used to live together, and her habit of wearing shirts at night when going to bed sometimes ignited a strong desire in me.

“I didn’t expect this. What are you doing here, sweetheart?” I asked, my eyes roaming over her b*dy. The curves and her bare legs fueled a longing within me, and my wolf jumped with excitement.

Her eyes swept over my b*dy, and a sense of pride washed over me when I heard her gasp. My manhood stood proudly, and I started to feel a bit uncomfortable in the tightness of my jeans.

“Eye up here, sweetheart,” I whispered seductively, my voice low. A smug smile played on my face as I saw her cheeks turning red.

“You still haven’t answered my question,” I insisted.

“I wanted to welcome you. You’re doing so much for me. It’s the least I could do,” she replied, and I raised an eyebrow in suspicion. This was completely out of character for her. I knew something was up in her mind.

Despite the changes she had gone through in the past years, I still knew her well. Something was up, and I needed to find out why she was behaving so boldly.

Walking up to her, I held her chin, making her look at me. I could hear her heart beating faster than normal. Despite her attempts to deny it, I could see the familiar look of desire in her eyes – a desire that mirrored my own, one I was trying hard to conceal.

Four years apart from her has only made the desire harder to resist. The dress and the memories were nothing compared to the real thing, and I knew she had another motive behind this. It only fueled my craving for her even more.

Chapter 56

I expected her to keep her distance, but what I didn’t anticipate was her gripping my shirt, making me fall with her onto the bed. Primal desire surged through me, breaking every ounce of control I had left.

“You are playing with fire, sweetheart,” I whispered, my lips brushing against her ear. My hand found its way to her waist, giving it a firm squeeze. Unintentionally, she arched her back against me, and I lost whatever remained of my restraint.

I crushed my lips against hers, pleasure coursing through me. I fought every urge to plunge my tongue into her mouth. Her soft moans filled the room, and damn, it was like music to my ears.

I parted her responding with my thigh, the scent of her arousal hitting me, and I felt her body responding to mine. Standing up, I removed my shirt, hovering over her once again. The way her eyes drooped with desire only fueled my already arrogant demeanour.

Turning her around, I lifted her hips so that I could grind against her. She was driving me mad, and I cursed myself for not remembering the night I had her in my arms.

In a fleeting moment, she turned, and in the dimness of the room, I saw a shining object in her hand, which I knew perfectly well what it was—a dagger. A silver dagger. I grabbed her hand before she could plunge it into my chest.

D

SEND GIFT

Tip: You can use left, right keyboard keys to browse between chapters.

Chapter 57

Chapter 57

Killian's Point of View

"What the f uck are you doing?" I growled at her, but her grasp on the silver dagger only tightened, fueling my anger. It made me even angrier to see the same hatred in her eyes

that I had witnessed on the first day.

"If I don't kill you, I will never be able to meet my children," she yelled at me, tears started to glisten in her eyes. I yanked the dagger away from her tight grip, throwing it away from her reach.

"What are you saying?" I asked, confusion etched on my features. The S**ual tension that had filled the room moments ago now cooled down, turning into harness and frustration.

"That attacker wanted you dead. He gave me a choice. He made me choose between you and my children. Of course, I would choose them over you again and again if I had

1 to. You're a monster: you don't deserve to live," she yelled, tears streaming down her checks. Her chest was heaving, and this time, it wasn't because of an intimate feeling that we shared a few minutes ago but because of sheer hatred.

She pushed me away as she started to get down from the bed. What the f uck just happened? She talked to that attacker, and he ordered her to kill me, and she agreed to it. My blood was boiling. I knew I hadn't given her the love she deserved, and if anyone asked me, I was still grappling with the jokes the Moon Goddess was playing on me right now.

"You talked to that her to face me, tacker and didn't tell me a sh it about it, I grabbed her arm, turning her to face me. Why did we always have to start all over again? Fuck, this hurts. I know I can't win her back, but this thing hurts. Is this what they call betrayal?

"What do you want me to do? If I told you about the talk with the attacker, I would never have been able to meet my child, Killian. I am their mother. I have been raising them all these years, and this is the first time I have been separated from them. I needed to know if they were safe or not. If they are alive..." She cried out loud, dropping to the floor and pulling her knees together. Seeing her like this ached my heart.

"Kiara, you should have told me this. I would do anything to bring them back, I had made a promise to you, even if I had to kill myself," I said. I don't know, but my wolf trusts her. He trusted her that the children were mine. She looked up at me and laughed, a taunting one.

"You can drop this facade, Killian. You are not doing anything, and if you find them, won't bring them back to me; you are going to kill me,"

you

15

10:01 Sat, 3 Feb

Chapter 57

And I felt like lightning struck my soul. What rubbish is she talking about?

"Why would I do that?" I asked, but she shook her head at me, getting up from the floor and walking out of the room. I followed her to the hallway. The pain in my chest grows with each passing minute and thousands of emotions are ready to consume me. My mate thinks that I am going to kill her. Why the fuck would she think of that? She was the one who left me, who rejected me.

"Kiara! I haven't finished talking to you yet. Fuck, tell me why would I do that," I growled at her. My aura changes as my wolf doesn't find her behaviour pleasing at all. First, she tried to kill me now she is fucking nerve to ignore me.

I grabbed her arm again while she yanked it free. Rihanna came rushing out of the room, alerted by my yelling.

"Killian? What is happening?" She asked as she looked at Kiara, who was walking down the stairs. I saw her taking the car keys. I can't let her leave. I ignored Rihanna, rushing down to follow her.

"Answer me," I demanded, grabbing her arm again, pulling her to my chest.

“Let me go,” she insisted as she struggled in my hold.

“Kiara, I am already at the edge of losing my mind. Just tell me who told you this.”

Tears continued streaming down her face.

“You wanted to separate me from them. You would get the parental right once I am out of the way. That was your plan all along,” she accused, and I was left speechless.

I was about to question her again when the border warrior mind-linked me.

‘Alpha.’

“What?” I replied angrily.

Alpha, Beta Alejandro returned from the mines of the west. He was injured a bit... And he had brought a little girl with him.”

“They are rushing to the hospital as the little girl doesn’t look in good condition, the border warrior conveyed the urgent information. And I knew exactly who he was talking about.

I took the car key away from Kiara’s hand, opening the door and pushing her inside, strapping the belt.

“Killian, what the hell are you doing?” she yelled at me.

Chapter 57

“Al, brought a little girl from the mines of the west,” I stated, and she fell silent.

The ride from the Alpha Mansion to the hospital felt like a blur. My grip on the wheel tightened as the events played in my mind like a relentless film. My mate is trying to kill me...

Stopping the car in front of the hospital, the first person to reach me was one of the warriors I had sent with Alejandro to search the mines of the west.

“Alpha, Eve and the doctors are operating on that little girl, and Beta Alejandro is in another ward. He got injured a lot, but he could recover faster than that of the little girl as she still hasn’t yet had a wolf,” he reported, and I nodded.

“And Eve said that the little girl looks weaker than a normal baby should be,”

“What?”

“Killian, what is he saying?” Kiara asked, looking visibly shaken. I wanted to comfort her, to hold her, but to many chances had already slipped away.

Grabbing her hand, I pulled her to sit on a chair. I wouldn’t let anything happen to her or to my daughter.

“The doctors are operating on her. We just have to wait, Kiara. Be strong. Everything will be fine,” I assured her, but she seemed dazed as if she was listening to anything I was saying.

I sat beside Kiara, holding her close. I wouldn’t leave her side until I knew our daughter was safe and sound. Questions swirled in my mind. Why hadn’t Alejandro brought both of them? What could have happened there? Why didn’t he contact me? The plan we settled with is that he would keep me up to date. Then why?

The previous incident made it clear that the kidnapper wanted me dead. They knew that the children were mine, the heirs of the Mad Crest Pack. The realisation sent shivers down my spine....

“Hanna was so small when I gave birth to her,” Kiara said, her gaze fixed downward. The hospital lobby was deserted, with only a few of my warriors and doctors allowed in.

“When my water broke, I was only eight months pregnant. Aries got panicked when he saw that. At that time, the pack didn’t have doctors, so Aries had to take me to the human hospital so that I could give birth to them,” she continued, her hands fidgeting nervously.

“I had lost the wolf after rejecting you so they wouldn’t even notice that I am a werewolf,” she whispered, her voice barely audible.

10:01 Sat, 3 Feb

Chapter 57

“Al, brought a little girl from the mines of the west,” I stated, and she fell silent.

The ride from the Alpha Mansion to the hospital felt like a blur. My grip on the wheel tightened as the events played in my mind like a relentless film. My mate is trying to kill me...

Stopping the car in front of the hospital, the first person to reach me was one of the warriors I had sent with Alejandro to search the mines of the west.

“Alpha, Eve and the doctors are operating on that little girl, and Beta Alejandro is in another ward. He got injured a lot, but he could recover faster than that of the little girl as she still hasn’t yet had a wolf,” he reported, and I nodded.

“And Eve said that the little girl looks weaker than a normal baby should be,”

“What?”

“Killian, what is he saying?” Kiara asked, looking visibly shaken. I wanted to comfort her, to hold her, but too many chances had already slipped away.

Grabbing her hand, I pulled her to sit on a chair. I wouldn’t let anything happen to her or to my daughter.

“The doctors are operating on her. We just have to wait, Kiara. Be strong. Everything will be fine,” I assured her, but she seemed dazed as if she was listening to anything I was saying.

I sat beside Kiara, holding her close. I wouldn’t leave her side until I knew our daughter was safe and sound. Questions swirled in my mind. Why hadn’t Alejandro brought both of them? What could have happened there? Why didn’t he contact me? The plan we settled with is that he would keep me up to date. Then why?

The previous incident made it clear that the kidnapper wanted me dead. They knew that the children were mine, the heirs of the Mad Crest Pack. The realisation sent shivers down my spine.....

“Hanna was so small when I gave birth to her,” Kiara said, her gaze fixed downward. The hospital lobby was deserted, with only a few of my warriors and doctors allowed in.

“When my water broke, I was only eight months pregnant. Aries got panicked when he saw that. At that time, the pack didn’t have doctors, so Aries had to take me to the human hospital so that I could give birth to them,” she continued, her hands fidgeting nervously.

“I had lost the wolf after rejecting you so they wouldn’t even notice that I am a werewolf,” she whispered, her voice barely audible.

3/5

Chapter 57

“I was having trouble while giving birth to her. And the doctor kept her in the incubation tube for one month as she was the weakest among both of them,” she continued, her voice tinged with sorrow.

“They told me because of this consequence I won’t be able to conceive anymore. They were my last hope,”

My chest tightened at the revelation. I wasn’t there for her when she needed me the most. It was my mistake, and I had to accept that I had always loved her. There was sadness and regret in her eyes before she looked down. All I wanted was to take that sadness away from her.

“You asked me why Aries is important to me. Because he was there for me. He was the one who saved me when you....” Her voice trailed off, leaving the unspoken words hanging heavily in the air.

“And more importantly, he was there for them,” she added, her words cutting through the heavy silence.

The tightness in my throat became unbearable. There was no way to explain the pain in my chest. I had messed it all up. I should have been there for her when she was pregnant, going through heartbreak, and when she was in labour with our pups. But I couldn’t be there.

My throat felt dry, and even though I wanted to say something, I couldn’t find the words. I got up from the chair, walked to the bathroom, and shut the door behind me. Leaning against it, I closed my eyes, trying to shut out the overwhelming emotions.

I had nothing. I couldn’t realise what I was missing until I saw them in front of my eyes again. I couldn’t face her, not like this. Squeezing my eyes shut, I took a deep breath, attempting to steady my racing heart. How could I justify to myself that I deserved another chance with her? I regretted every action I did in the past. If she gave me the chance, I would beg for it. But did I truly deserve her? And what about the children whom I didn’t even know existed until now?

But I wanted to protect them. I wanted them to be by my side. I wanted to see them grow. I wanted to be by her side.

After a few hours which felt like years the operation theatre door opened and the first one to jump was Kiara. As Eye and the other doctors walked out of the room.

“Alpha,” they all bowed to me. I nodded. my head acknowledging them.

“What happened to my daughter?” Kiara asked. I wanted to ask this but I don’t want anyone to know about their existence. Not yet.

“The little girl is out of danger but she is still weak. We have to wait for her to wake up.

Chapter 57

We'll monitor her closely. You can go and meet her after we transfer her to a private room," Eve said as she glanced up at me and bowed before leaving. And I knew she knew something and she went to her office.

One of the nurses told us about the room and we went there. Kiara was the first to enter the room and I could hear her soft cry, how she was k*ssing her cheeks and crying silently beside her.

I stood outside the room as my wolf howled to meet my daughter. He was screeching my chest and wanted to go inside. I closed my eyes before grabbing the knob and opening it.

My heart raced as I stared down at her sleeping on the bed, tubes attached to her arm and beeping on the machine but even in those sounds I could hear the faint lub dup of her heartbeat. She was looking so weak. I notice how her small chest heaves as she takes a breath.

Kiara was beside her as she lightly brushed her hair. Crying silently and thanking the moon goddess. I stood there not knowing if I could touch her. If I had the right to do so?

Kiara looked at me and she nodded her head indicating me to come near her. I walked to her bed... I saw her when she was playing in the garden but it was nothing compared to now.

"She is Hanna," She whispered softly and a small smile graced her lips.

Upon seeing her up close, she looks exactly like a mini Kiara. Even if her hair is not similar to Kiara's. Her features are exact copies of Kiara. And I felt my wolf howl in happiness.

I lightly brushed her hand thinking that if I touched her she would be bruised. Oh how much I loved her....

Chapter 58

SEND GIFT

COMMENT

Chapter 58

Ry's Point of View.

The sound of hustling and bustling outside of the room made me open my eyes. I frowned as I looked around the room where I and Hanna were held captive. The room is dark and I don't have a wolf yet to see in the darkness. I glanced down at Hanna. She was sleeping right beside me after crying for the umpteenth time telling me how much she misses mummy.

I lightly brushed her hair aside. She was getting weaker and I could feel it. I feel everything which she feels either if it is happiness or sadness. We share each other's emotions. I remember one time when I went with Aries and his Beta to hike in the mountains leaving her and mummy in the pack.

We

got stuck there because of bad weather and mummy wasn't able to reach out to us. The network died due to constant rain and I was able to tell Hanna that I was safe. It is the special bond we shared when we were in mummy's womb. That is what mummy told us.

"Hanna!" I called lightly to her as I tried to wake her. Her brows knitted but she didn't wake up. I touched her forehead and she was burning. I immediately jumped out of the bed running to the door and banging on it with my small fist.

Mummy always told me to look after her. And I can feel she is not feeling well right now. She was always the weak among both of us and needed special care, that is why Mummy never separated Hanna from her.

"My sister is having a fever, anyb*dy there please look at her," I yelled out to the men who kept us in this room.

The room reeked, a chilling atmosphere surrounding us. Tucked away in one corner was a meagre bed and a handful of simple wooden toys-our only companions in this desolate space.

For a trip to the toilet, we had to request an escort, but venturing out in the night was something I loathed. The guards were weary, and any delay would earn me a growl of impatience, especially if we stumbled on my way back to the room.

Night after night, Hanna's sobs echoed through the darkness, a haunting melody of her yearning for our mother. This has become a regular occurrence in the recent days. Frustrated, I pounded on the metal door, the metallic clang reverberating in the stifling air.

After a series of forceful knocks, a lanky man opened it, his appearance dishevelled, resembling someone roused from a deep slumber. Strangely, he lacked the distinct scent that mummy had once explained werewolves possessed. The absence of that unique scent hinted that this man might be human...

10-02 Sal

Chapter 58

"What did I tell you, young master, about not making any noise at night?" he yelled, his voice filled with annoyance. However, his outburst failed to faze me. I had a gut feeling they weren't here to harm us. Ignoring his scolding, I hurried back to where my sister lay, pointing my small finger at her in distress.

"She's not waking up. I've called her many times, and she's got a fever. You need to see what's wrong with her," I urged, my worry etched across my face.

"What!" That was enough to jolt him out of his slumber, and he rushed over to where I stood. Without hesitation, he pushed me aside to get a clear look at my sister, fear etching his features. His hand reached for her forehead, and a curse escaped his lips. Fear gripped me; I had no idea when our mother would find us.

With urgency, he scooped up my sister, darting out of the room. I tried to follow, but he locked the door before I could catch up.

"Where are you taking her?" I shouted, my fists pounding on the unforgiving metal door. This time, there was no reply, leaving me alone in the cold, dim room.

Sinking back onto the bed, I drew my knees in close. Regret gnawed at me, a relentless reminder that I shouldn't have insisted on mummy taking us to Uncle Aiden's pack or stopping in front of that cafe. If only I hadn't been so bossy about it, Hanna wouldn't be in this dire condition.

For the first time, tears welled up in my eyes. I had been trying to maintain a brave front for mummy and Hanna, but now, alone in this room, fear consumed me. The night noises became ominous, and sleep eluded me until the first light of dawn. The chirping of birds offered some solace, drowning out the haunting hoots of owls that had plagued the night.

The door creaked open, and I could hear hushed voices as it unlocked. The same skinny man returned, accompanied by a smaller, pudgy one. Though I could hear most of their conversation, I feigned disinterest.

“Pack only the necessary items. We have to hurry,” the skinny one ordered, prompting the fat one to gather the few wooden toys strewn about. The other one lifted the bed, preparing to leave. Before exiting, he turned to sneer at me.

“Where are you taking me? Where’s my sister?” I demanded.

“If you want to know about your sister, it’s better to keep your mouth shut and come with us,” Jerry, the skinny one, yelled, attempting to intimidate me. As usual, I refused to be swayed. The fat one chuckled, finding amusement in Jerry’s failed tactics.

Chapter 58

“It wouldn’t work on him, Jerry. He’s an Alpha King’s son, alright. Let’s pack and hurry out of here,” the fat man remarked from outside, his voice carrying as he loaded the bed into the back of a van.

Little did they realise that not a single one of them bothered to wear masks or conceal their faces. This time, I wasn’t blindfolded. I committed their faces and voices to memory, vowing to carry them with me for years to come. It was a promise to myself – a promise of eventual retribution. One day, I’d get my revenge.

SEND GIFT

Tip: You can use left, right keyboard keys to browse between chapters.

Chapter 59

Chapter 59

Killian’s Point of View

I woke up to a sight that took me by surprise-Kiara sleeping on one shoulder and my little daughter on the other. Their hands clutched my shirt, and my wolf howled in happiness. It was a rare moment of pure joy, a stark contrast to the years of battling depression that my wolf had endured for missing his mate.

At that moment, I didn't want this dream to end. The realisation of how much I had missed over the years hit me like a ton of bricks. My wolf revealed in the happiness, a stark departure from the usual struggles.

I could sense my wolf attempting to forge a connection with Hanna, coaxing her timid. wolf that only I could feel. It struck me how foolish I had been to ever doubt Kiara's sincerity in this matter.

I turned to my other side, and there she was- Kiara, looking as captivating as ever. Her cheeks were nestled against my chest, a familiar and cherished sight whenever we shared bed. Kiara had this habit of circling around the bed. She always tries her best to sleep at a distance from me but in the middle of the night, she came to me and hugged me. And I am not gonna lie, I always enjoyed that warmth.

The morning sun poured through the open curtain of our private room, casting a gentle glow on her face. She was a truly a vision of beauty, her eyelashes brushing delicately against her cheeks. I took a moment to appreciate her, to acknowledge the simple, yet profound, beauty that she is.

I closed my eyes, allowing the memories of the last night to wash over me. How beautiful she looked with only my shirt on. Her hair flowed freely. How fluffy her boobs felt under my hand. She had gained weight and it was only in the right places, making her more irresistible than ever.

That's when I noticed her stirring awake. Kiara slowly opened her eyes, blinking a few times before her gaze met mine. We locked eyes for several moments, a silent exchange passing between us. Her eyes widened suddenly, and she sat up abruptly, causing my wolf to whimper in pain at the sudden distance.

A corresponding whimper echoed from the other side of my shoulder. In the dream, Hanna nestled closer to me, her grip on my shirt tightening. I could sense the tension in Kiara's eyes, but the emotions behind them remained elusive, leaving me to wonder what she was feeling at that moment.

"I

"Good morning," I greeted, my voice emerging huskier and deeper than usual, and as her eyes met mine, it felt like fireworks ignited within me.

1/5

Chapter 59

“Good morning. She always does that. In her sleep, she has a habit of hugging onto something. Let me take her away,” Kiara spoke, moving around the bed to gently separate Hanna from me. My wolf resisted the distance, but I understood that Kiara wasn’t prepared to share her with me just yet. I, too, wasn’t ready to push her on this matter.

“Just like you,” I said and looked at me.

I hadn’t been there in her life all these years, and I knew that seeking a second chance would be the most challenging task for me.

[FLASHBACK BEGINS]

Last night I had told her that she could go back to the alpha house and sleep there while I would stay here in the private room but she doesn’t want to get separated from Hanna. And I can understand this feeling very well because I too like seeing her so close to me.

As we both didn’t want to leave the room we decided to stay. The couch in the private room is too small for me. I watched how Kiara made a space in the bed for herself hugging Hanna close to her. I watch how she lightly brushes Hanna’s hair trying to ensure that she is safe and sound and is with her. That sight alone brought so many emotions in me.

It was past midnight and I could feel my back getting stiff from sitting there. I went to the bathroom to freshen up and when I walked back to the couch only to find Kiara was awakened because of the sound.

“I’m sorry; I didn’t mean to disturb you,” I whispered softly, but she shook her head.

“You should go and sleep in the Alpha house, Killian, or you could ask Eve to give you another room,” she suggested, but I didn’t want that. I wanted to be selfish; I wanted to be near them.

“Kiara, we have already discussed about this. I’m staying here,” I affirmed.

“Or is it because you find me hard to resist due to what happened tonight,” I smirked, noticing how her cheeks turned red from embarrassment. I could hear her heartbeat quicken, and the deep breaths she took. My eyes dipped down on her breast before looking at her eyes.

“Nonsense!” She whispered and then almost yelled, and I hushed her, pointing to Hanna, who was sleeping soundly beside her.

“You’re going to wake her up, sweetheart, I warned.

“Then you should stop mentioning about it, so I don’t have to yell at you,” she retorted,

Chapter 59

Π

back at me. And I couldn’t help but laugh at her. I always found her cute when she was angry.

“Because you’re throwing me out of my own hospital,” I added.

“I don’t even want to talk to you. Do whatever you want,” she declared.

“Yes, sure, because if you see me, you might attack me again,” I quipped, turning to walk back to the couch. However, her soft hand caught onto my arm, halting my steps.

My throat dried as I replayed the moment when our bodies had touched. Her warmth against mine. Damn, when did I become so horny?

“I’m sorry for what I did that time, Killian. I just wanted my kids to be safe and with me,” She looked away, her hair falling to shield her face. I reached down, brushed her hair back, and compelled her to look at me. Guilt clouded her eyes, and I frowned.

“It’s okay. You did what you thought was the only option left at that time,” I reassured her.

“Killian,” she whispered breathlessly. A memory of our passionate encounter flashed in my mind, and I pushed it away, despite the fact that the recollection had already sent blood rushing south, causing my cock to harden.

“Don’t use that tone, sweetheart, because you know it makes me crazy. And I don’t want to scare my daughter,” I whispered lightly.

“I am sorry. I know they sound like useless words that will do nothing to fix this mess... Or take back the pain that, because of me, you went through-physically or mentally. Leaving you to handle the birth of our children alone and you turning human, I am sorry, Kiara, for all of it,” I said quietly as I sat beside her.

“Can I have one chance?”

She shook her head negatively, and it shattered my heart. “No, Killian, what’s done is done. I don’t want any of this. I know I am selfish for coming here, for asking for your help to find my children, but I just wanted them. What we had, it ended the day I rejected you,” she said, closing her eyes, taking a shuddering breath as she firmly pulled away from me and turned her back.

“We just need to find out about Ry... perhaps when it’s all over, you can be a part of the children’s lives. But we are over, Killian... there is no return.”

I knew she was right, and I had hurt her more than I should have.

“You blamed Aiden for Alpha Eric’s kidnapping. You didn’t give me a chance to tell you about them. You don’t come to me when I ask for your help...” I said, my voice low, filled.

Sat, 3 Feb

Chapter 59

with regret.

盤 57%論

“I know... I know I hurt you, and I won’t try to reason with you... Instead, I will show you that Kiara Woods is the only woman I want and have ever loved,” I declared.

Her heart thudded, and I took her elbow, turning her around to face me. I couldn’t miss the look of shock and confusion on her face.

Raising my hand, I brushed knuckles over her cheek and n*eck. Satisfied to see her eyelids flutter shut, I pulled her into a comforting hug. Wherever our bodies touched, I could feel the tingles, a silent promise of the emotions that still lingered between us.

“Go to sleep, Kiara,” I whispered softly, gently brushing her hair. My gaze shifted to my daughter, her chest rising and falling into a peaceful slumber. The steady rhythm of her heart provided enough comfort for me to close my eyes. I couldn’t recall when I eventually drifted into sleep.

[FLASHBACK ENDED]

I’ll go and call Eve to check up on her, I announced, rising and walking out of the room. It dawned on me that last night might have been a moment of weakness, and even without a wolf, Kiara was always strong. She has that aura around her.

Running my fingers through my hair, I walked out of the room and straight to Eve’s office. Glancing at my watch, it showed past ten in the morning. As I approached her door, I was about to knock when I overheard her speaking in a hushed voice to someone. I tried to eavesdrop on the conversation.

Knocking on was clear the door, I heard a faint “come in.” Entering, I found her alone, though I was clear that I had distinctly heard someone else present....

“Alpha!” she greeted, and I could sense her nervousness by the rapid beating of her heart.

“I came to ask you to check up on Hanna,” I instructed, scanning the room. Besides Eve, there was no one else. I enhanced my hearing ability, but there was no sign of another person. Whom had she been talking to? My gaze shifted to the curtain swung because of the air.

window and the “Alpha, you don’t have to come for that. I’ll be there in a few minutes. Actually, I came to check up on her in the morning but saw you all sleeping, so I decided to do it an hour later,” she explained nervously. I walked toward the window, glancing down at the floor, but there was no one in sight.

I looked back at her as she hurriedly grabbed her coat and stethoscope.

“Eve,” I called her name, and she immediately looked at me.

10:02 Sat. 3 Feb

Chapter 59

“I need you to do everything you could to keep that little girl safe. It doesn’t matter how much it costs; I just need that girl safe,” I commanded, letting my aura intensify within the room. She gasped, submitting to my authority. I nodded, satisfied with her response, and turned to leave.

“Alpha, is she your daughter?” Her question made me freeze on the spot.

“How?” My eyes widened in surprise.

“Alpha she has a rare blood flowing through her veins of course no one in the world can possess it apart from the one that belongs only to the Alpha King family,” She said. Of course, Eve is a great doctor and world wide known to be precise. That is why she is the head doctor of my pack. She has knowledge about herbs and she also heals many through the unknown power...

“You can’t tell anyone about it, Eve,” I commanded in my Alpha voice. A clear warning for her. My wolf surfaced forward and added more aura to my command. She whimpers under my influence but easily submits.

“I wouldn’t say anything. You are the Alpha King.” Eve scowled at me for enforcing the command.

“What about Lucia?” I asked, binding my hands around my chest. I had sent her to the Eclipse pack to ensure Lucia’s health was kept in check. I hadn’t heard anything from Austin or Nicolai, and it was bothering my mind.

“Alpha, she has a very little chance of surviving. I’ve already conveyed the news to the Alpha of the Eclipse Pack and her mate, but they are persistent in keeping her on the ventilator,” Eve revealed, and I realised I needed to share this information with Kiara.

But what confuses me is that Rogue King hasn’t done anything in these past few weeks.

“Alpha, that little girl is not only important because she is carrying the Alpha King’s blood,” Eve said, causing me to knit my brows. What was she trying to imply?

“Make it more clear, Eve,” I urged.

“She has the power of your mother’s lineage too, Her words sent a shock through my spine.

5/5

曲

Tip: You can use left, right keyboard keys to browse between chapters.

Chapter 60

COMMENT

Chapter 60

Kiara Point of View

I splashed another batch of water onto my face, hoping to cool down the heat on my checks. As I looked up, I stared at my reflection in the mirror, running my fingers through my hair. I hesitated to step out of the bathroom. The moment Killian walked out of the room to call Eve, I bolted into the bathroom to hide in there.

I couldn't recall how I had fallen asleep in his embrace, but I knew it was a moment of weakness that I shouldn't have shown to Killian.

The memories of last night flooded back, and I once again felt a surge of heat. His touches, his k*sses, his embrace-everything felt so real, so enchanting, that I could drown in it. I had been this close to killing him, and it was only because of the choice the attacker gave me. What I didn't expect was Killian's lack of reaction. He seemed to understand. Where did that cruel, ruthless alpha king go? Normally, nob*dy would survive attempting to kill him.

Glancing at the shirt I was wearing, I lifted the fabric and raised it to my nose, inhaling softly. When I walked out of his room last night I was able to wear the jeans which I kept on the side of the couch. His scent lingered-a familiar and favourite scent that brought a mix of conflicting emotions.

What surprised me were his words, "Kiara, you should have told me this. I would do anything to bring them back. I had made a promise to you, even if I had to kill myself. I will do that," It sounded so real and confident. But could I trust him again? I hadn't forgotten what Rihanna had said to me. What did he do to my parents? How can I able to forget about it?

Last night, I was finally able to meet my daughter. As soon as I saw her, I took a deep sigh of relief, but my son was yet to be found. And why did Alejandro bring only her? Where is Ry?

My heart clenches as I remember the morning.

[FLASHBACK BEGINS]

My eyes fluttered open, and I found myself cocooned in warmth. I snuggled more into that enchanting scent, realising that I was against a hard wall of muscle.

Wait! A wall of muscle!

Da mn! Killian!

I looked up and stared into those stormy eyes that seemed to bore into my soul. Lowering my gaze, I noticed how my head rested on his shoulder, his hand clamped.

02 Sat, 3 F2D

Chapter 60

around my waist, holding me tightly against him. And I can feel the fireworks in me.

I used to always hold him like this... I didn't want to get up. The moment felt like a forbidden apple, tempting me to savour the warmth and comfort of his embrace.

50

Frustrated at my weak resolve, I abruptly distanced myself from him, jumping out of the bed. For a moment, I caught a glimpse of hurt in his eyes. Why was he sad? I had to ensure I never found myself in this predicament again. I am not going to be weak in front of him again.

[END OF FLASHBACK]

I heard the door of the room open, and his and Eve's voices filled the space. Taking a deep breath, I walked out of the room. I don't trust anyb*dy in this pack anymore. And more importantly if it is Eve. Eve had her stethoscope on Hanna's chest.

I composed myself before walking to where they stood beside the bed.

"She is fine, Alpha. She just needs more rest. We just have to wait for her to wake," Eve reassured me as I looked down at my baby. She looked weak, and I wanted to cry, feeling helpless that I couldn't save her from this. Them. I don't even want to think about what happened to them. How will they live without me? How many torture these little souls endured.

"When will she wake up?" Killian asked.

"In a day or two. She is weak because fatigue has taken over her. Is she always this delicate, Luna?" Eve inquired.

"Yes," I admitted, looking down. It had all happened because of me. I should have considered the circumstances my babies would face because of the rejection. My little princess had a tough start, spending seven long months fighting to survive in the hospital. Now at four, she's still tiny, unlike Ry, who seems older than he is. Her journey from fragile beginnings to where she is now is nothing short of inspiring. Meanwhile, Ry carries himself with a maturity that defies his age.

Despite both being of Alpha blood, my little one may be small in size and light on the scale, but her brilliance shines just as brightly as her brother's. My mind is drawn to Ry who still hasn't been found. Stay strong baby momma will definitely find you.

After checking, Eve and the nurse who accompanied her walked out of the room, leaving me alone with Killian. I needed to inform Aries and Aiden that she had been found.

“Killian, can I borrow your phone?” I requested.

“Why?” he asked, raising his eyebrow at me.

Chapter 60

“I need to tell Aiden and Arics that we have found Hanna,”

“For Aiden, I have already informed him. He’s on his way here. As for Aries, I don’t think he needed to know,” he growled at the mere mention of him. This sudden change in behaviour took me by surprise.

“Killian, I had already told you that he is a very important part of my children’s life. It can’t throw him out of there life just because you have a problem with him,” I asserted strongly. Aries had done so much for me, and I couldn’t repay him in this lifetime for all he had done for me and the children.

“Be careful of him. I don’t trust him, Kiara. He is a shrewd one,” he said icily.

“Of course, you would say that. You’ve never liked him,” I replied, frowning slightly. I knew he wasn’t perfect, but...

“Think what suits you, Kiara. But I would stand by my words.”

“Of course, but I’ve also been around for the last four years, and he has always been good to me and more importantly to my childrens,” I said quietly.

“That still doesn’t change my mind. For the goddess’ sake, Kiara, when would you ever start listening to me?”

“Killian, you have no right to control me. When it comes to my children, I know who they are safe with and around whom they are not. You’ve lost all your right to meddle in the decisions I make regarding my children or my life,” I said, glaring at him. I extended my hand in front of him, waiting for him to hand me the phone.

A curse left his lips before he pulled out the phone and gave it to me. I walked to the other side of the room so our conversation wouldn’t be heard by Killian. But who am I kidding too? He is the Alpha King and he had the power to hear. I dialled Aries’ number, and after a few rings, he picked up.

“Aries”

“Kiara, for heaven’s sake, where are you? I’ve been waiting for you to call me. Do you know how many bad thoughts started to bug my mind? I was about to go to the pack to bring you here,” “Aries, wait... Hanna... we have found her.... last night,” I told him. It was quiet on the other side for a while before he said.

“I’m coming there, Kiara. Don’t worry... I am so happy we have found her. Is she okay?” He asked.

“Yes Aries she is okay. I think you should come here. If she woke up she would be happy to find you here,” I said knowing Hanna sees Areis as her father. That was when a growl. heard from behind making my core clench. Staying by his side is not doing anything good to me.

盘菜:50%蘭

Chapter 60

“I am happy too Kiara I am coming right away.” He said and I ended the call.

I turned my back and found Killian looking at me, his jaws clenched and anger radiating from his b*dy. I ignored that and gave him back the phone.

“Thank you,” I said.

“I need to talk to you about something,” he said.

“Lucia...” he stopped, making my throat feel dry and my stomach churn.

“She met with an accident, and after that, she went into a coma.”

SEND GIFT

Tip: You can use left, right keyboard keys to browse between chapters.