

Seduced 29

Chapter 29

Felix clearly knew that I was injured, but he didn't come to see me even once. It would be a lie if I said that I wasn't disappointed.

I hoped so fervently that there would be a moment when I opened my eyes, and he would be there, sitting beside my bed and peeling an apple for me. There would be a beautiful ray of sunshine shining on him as if he were my god.

On the afternoon of my third day in the hospital, I had just woken up from a nap when I heard the sound of arguing coming from outside my door.

The voices were very familiar. It was Felix and Lilac. I couldn't hear very clearly as there was a door between us.

It seemed that Felix had come to visit me, but Lilac was against it. The two of them were having an argument right in front of my door.

I would be discharged tomorrow, and it was no longer important whether or not he came to see me. But if Lilac became upset with him because he came to see me, then it might bring me unwanted trouble. If that was the case, it would be better if he didn't come at all.

I hoped he could come, but I still maintained my rationality.

As I listened, I fell asleep again. I only woke up when my mom came in.

The incident had traumatized me, so the doctor kept giving me sedatives. That was why I kept dozing off.

The hospital room looked like it always did. Ultimately, Felix hadn't come.

Mom asked me why my expression looked so strange, but I smiled and said I was tine.

In the evening, the rich magenta hues of dusk crept into my room and shone on my face. It dazzled me and stung my eyes.

I raised my arm to cover my eyes, and very soon, the skin on my arm was wet.

No matter how much I tried to be strong, I was just a 19-year-old girl. I hadn't yet learned how to hide my feelings completely.

Mom must have noticed that I was crying because I heard her sigh lightly.

I fervently hoped in my heart that she wouldn't be disappointed. I would get better after some time.

Felix clearly knew that I was injured, but he didn't come to see me even once. It would be a lie if I said that I wasn't disappointed.

I hoped so fervently that there would be a moment when I opened my eyes, and he would be there, sitting beside my bed and peeling an apple for me. There would be a beautiful ray of sunshine shining on him as if he were my god.

On the afternoon of my third day in the hospital, I had just woken up from a nap when I heard the sound of arguing coming from outside my door.

The voices were very familiar. It was Felix and Lilac. I couldn't hear very clearly as there was a door between us.

It seemed that Felix had come to visit me, but Lilac was against it. The two of them were having an argument right in front of my door.

I would be discharged tomorrow, and it was no longer important whether or not he came to see me. But if Lilac became upset with him because he came to see me, then it might bring me unwanted trouble. If that was the case, it would be better if he didn't come at all.

I hoped he could come, but I still maintained my rationality.

As I listened, I fell asleep again. I only woke up when my mom came in.

The incident had traumatized me, so the doctor kept giving me sedatives. That was why I kept dozing off.

The hospital room looked like it always did. Ultimately, Felix hadn't come.

Mom asked me why my expression looked so strange, but I smiled and said I was fine.

In the evening, the rich magenta hues of dusk crept into my room and shone on my face. It dazzled me and stung my eyes.

I raised my arm to cover my eyes, and very soon, the skin on my arm was wet.

No matter how much I tried to be strong, I was just a 19-year-old girl. I hadn't yet learned how to hide my feelings completely.

Mom must have noticed that I was crying because I heard her sigh lightly.

I fervently hoped in my heart that she wouldn't be disappointed. I would get better after some time.

When I tell the hospitat, both farmities turned on and stood in my Uncle Austin and Aurd het helped to pack up my things. Wombled using bent on the floor to the my shoelaces. The room was busty

My heart felt warm. Even though I did not have a boned, had op sweet toe tom mytemy store

very content

Felix stood in the distance with an unhappy tilt beside him. Sex had sped a few times whenever he tried to come and help, so he had no choice but to be sad there with her,

He would occasionally glance over at me, and there was concern in his eyes. Mold the te spoke to Lilac in a low voice,

Lilac looked at me continuously, pouting and looking very displaced

I guessed that Aunt Mel had forced her to come and that Lilac dared to say no. That was why she was having a tiff with Felix

Whether or not that was the case, it wasn't any of my business.

I wasn't the one who had wanted him to come. There wasn't much point in it anyway.

As for Lilac, she was really being jealous for no reason. No matter how jealous she was, it had nothing to do with me.

I had gotten injured and suffered a huge shock that day. When I was discharged, the doctor told me the wounds had healed, but I had to rest for a few more days.

The incident had almost scared my mother to death. She kept holding my hand and repeating how I had been so lucky to survive.

She memorized every word the doctor said and was determined to carry it out to the letter once we got home. She added many of her own ideas and even took time off to stay at my side and nurse me

I couldn't argue against my mother, so I had no choice but to lie in bed all day. Morn fed me so much that I was becoming a pig. I ate, slept, slept, then ate. I was about to grow mold from boredom.

One afternoon, at around 2:00 pm, my mother's office called her. They told her there was something she had to take care of, so she rushed out the door with her little bag. Before she left, she gave me instructions that must have been at least 500 words long, and I agreed to all of them.