

She Unveils 491

Chapter 491 Leave Here First

“Braden, what do you mean? I am Alina. Don’t tell me you can’t recognize me.”

Alina tidied up her torn clothes. Her eyes were full of tears. She looked at Braden and said with a little embarrassment, “Or you ... you dislike me. Do you think I am disgusting just because I was touched by those bastards?”

Are you not willing to touch me again?”

“You’re Alina!” Braden let out a sigh of relief. In fact, Braden had thought that the person who had called for help was Shirley. At that moment, all sorts of inhumane scenes automatically appeared in his mind.

Braden couldn’t accept it if those disgusting things really happened to Shirley. Braden thought, fortunately, it was not Shirley!

“What... what do you mean?”

Seeing Braden’s reaction, Alina was even more desperate. She felt this was even more painful than being humiliated by those people. “Did you think that the person who was calling for help was Shirley? Did you think that she was raped by those bastards in order to save you? After you found that it was actually me, you actually breathed a sigh of relief... You don’t care if I have suffered from those horrible things. Am I wrong?”

Braden did not answer Alina. Instead, he put on a serious face and asked, “Alina, why are you here? What happened?”

Alina took two steps back and looked at Braden. Tears streamed down her face.

Braden’s indifferent attitude completely made Alina collapse.

Alina yelled, “Braden, what do you think has happened? What happened to me just now? Didn’t you see it? Are you blind? Or do you just want to say that you are a heartless man? I came to save you! Did I do it wrong? Do I deserve it?”

“Alina, calm down. Tell me what happened first.”

Braden followed the direction of Alina’s voice and tried to pull her. But after searching for a long time, he touched nothing.

“You... What’s wrong with you? What are you looking for? What happened to your eyes...”

Alina finally noticed Braden’s

Braden had expected that Larry would not let them off so easily. According to Larry's vengeful personality, Larry wouldn't let them go unless he tortured Braden to the extreme.

“It’s a simple request. I just received an order from a customer. He is old and needs a strong heart, a heart from a youngster who was born with a silver spoon in his mouth. So he has set sights on you. After all, in the city, only Mr. Braden can afford the title of ‘God’s favored one’ ...”

Larry wore a relaxed smile as if he was talking about the weather. ‘As long as you are willing to cooperate with the picking doctor and exchange your heart with my client, I will release Ms. Gilmore.’”

“No, absolutely not”

Alina had been terrified and hiding behind Braden. But now, she had stepped forward and extended her arms to block Larry fearlessly. “You are a pervert. A devil. You can totally buy a suitable heart but insist on taking away Braden’s heart. What you really want is his life. Drop your crazy idea. I will not let you hurt him!”

Larry ignored Alina and looked at Braden with a smile. “What do you think, Mr. Stewart? She gave up herself for you just now. Are you willing to give up your heart for Ms. Gilmore’s sake? I’m now testing your loyalty to her.”

“If I cooperate with you, you will let her go, right?” Braden asked.

Braden’s tone was calm and his eyes were empty.

“Of course!”

Larry raised his eyebrows. “Although I’m called Midnight Ghost, bloody and perverted, I keep my word. I will definitely do what I say.”

“Okay, I agree.

“Let her go. I’ll go with you for the surgery,” hearing the commitment, Braden agreed without hesitation.

Alina collapsed and grabbed Braden’s arm. She was moved but distressed, bursting into tears, “Braden, don’t talk nonsense. I’m determined to be with you. If you die, I you. I want to Braden said in a calm voice, "Mom, I'm sorry. I didn't protect myself well. I made you sad."

Tracy looked at her once proud and outstanding son, who suddenly became so melancholy and sad. She felt like he had lost all light and was like a walking corpse.

She felt like her heart was being scraped by a knife. It hurt so much that she almost couldn't breathe.

"Son, what have you been through?"

She hugged Braden, shocked and distressed.

It was hard to imagine what kind of inhumane torture he had gone through when he was not there. It made him like this.

“It’s already in the past. I don’t want to mention it again.”

Braden’s voice was faint. He didn’t want to reveal anything or allow Alina to do it.

For him, everything he had suffered today was what he had to pay to Shirley. It was his own fault.

Now, the debt had been paid off, and they didn’t need to pester each other anymore.

“Well, let’s not talk about it. It’s good that you’re back...’

Tracy silently shed tears. She gently patted Braden’s back as she did when Braden was a child. She coaxed him to sleep and whispered, “Don’t worry. I will do everything to cure you!”

Perhaps Braden was too tired. He fell asleep when he got home.

Tracy was unwilling. She must know who was so daring to hurt his son so badly.

She knocked on the door of the guest room. “Alina, are you asleep?”

“Who is it?’

Alina asked in a frightened voice.

At this moment, she had already washed up. She was wrapped in pajamas on the bed. Her whole body was curled like shrimp, shivering.

Shirley took a sip of the grape slushie, her tone bored.

“Then get ready. This thing may be a little shocking.”

Larry’s tone was mysterious. It was full of suspense.

Shirley rolled her eyes. “Alright, Larry, hurry up. I’m going to sleep now.”

“So lazy. You always sleep for a long time. I promise you won’t be able to fall asleep after you see it.”

Larry sent a video to Shirley’s phone.

Shirley opened it lazily, and her expression froze. Her fingers tightened slightly.

A few minutes later, Larry asked, “How is it? Are you done?”

Shirley said lightly, “I’m done.”

“Really?”

Larry was surprised and asked, “How do you feel?”

“I don’t feel anything.”

Shirley was calm, her face expressionless.

“That’s impossible. How could you not feel anything? I, an emotionless guy, was touched just by looking at it. As a girl who is deeply in love, you definitely have more feelings, right?”

Larry let out a long sigh. “I’m also quite surprised. Braden really has guts. For the sake of the daughter of the Gilmore family, he’s willing to sacrifice his own heart. He is giving his life away. It looks like he really loves the daughter of the Gilmore family. He is dominated by love. If I were his family, I would beat him to death!”

“You didn’t really do something to his heart, right?”

Shirley suddenly realized something. She frowned slightly and asked nervously.

“How could I do that? I promised you that I would spare him. It was just to scare him and figure out whom this guy really loves, but the result was like this!”

Larry gritted his teeth. Even though he mentioned it now, he was still furious. “The one he loves is indeed the daughter of the Gilmore family. He is definitely a bastard. If you would have chopped him up and fed him to

Shirley was not joking. She felt that her brother was right. It was time for her to go back.

Therefore, they took a flight and returned to Seatie City.

Larry came early to pick them up.

Larry was dressed like a gentleman today. He looked like a harmless learned scholar.

No one knew that he was the infamous "Midnight Ghost" who had killed many people and was extremely terrifying.

"Shirley, my sister, I'm here!"

Larry leaned against a large black jeep as he stared intently at the exit.

When Larry saw Shirley and the two children, he waved at them excitedly.

"Sister?"

Nancy and Keith exchanged glances. Then they pulled Shirley back and asked curiously, "Who is this person? Why is he wearing a mask in the daytime? It's strange."

"He is my brother."

Shirley replied honestly with a smile.

She had talked to Larry on the phone many times recently, but Nancy and Keith didn't know about Larry.

"Brother? Did you meet him at a bar or something?"

Keith frowned and complained with a face full of disgust, "Nobody will flirt with women in that way these days. You must be kidding.”

“You’re wrong. He’s my biological brother!”

Shirley rolled her eyes. “Do you think everyone is like you? You are always thinking about hitting on women!”

“He’s your biological brother? No way!”

Nancy felt that her world was turned upside down. She was so shocked that she stammered, “Shirley... Aren’t you... Aren’t you an only child? Why did you suddenly get a brother? Did you get tricked by this person?”

The air seemed to freeze in an instant, and everyone felt embarrassed.

Keith's smile froze on his face. After a long time, he laughed and stretched out his hand towards Larry. "Ah. It's you. I'm pleased to see you!"

"It's really a pleasure..."

Larry smiled. His gaze was cold. 'You know what? There have been many times when I wanted to chop you into pieces to feed crocodiles!"

"Hahaha. Larry, you are so humorous!"

Keith pointed at Larry. "I thought that Braden shut you up back then. I thought you had been hiding at Sutor Wharf and didn't dare to come out!"

"Mr. Guerra, come on. You can try me if you want to know whether he has shut me up."

"No. If I try, I will die."

They were fighting against each other with words. They were smiling on the surface, but what they said was not friendly.

Shirley and Nancy held hands and retreated to the side, afraid of being injured by mistake.

"Alright. That's enough. Get out of the way. Don't block the exit."

Shirley held Bennett and Alisha's hands and said, "Guys, this is your uncle. I mentioned him. Do you remember? Greet your uncle."

"Uncle!"

The children called Larry in their cute voices.

"Hi, Ben, Ally. I miss you so much. I finally saw you. Come here. Let me hug you!"

Larry originally wanted to continue to argue with Keith, but when he saw the lovely children, his anger vanished. He squatted down and picked them up.

Bennett asked Larry curiously, "Uncle, why are you wearing a mask like Quintin? Do you know Quintin?"

Bennett reached out to take off Larry's mask.

"Hey. Ben, don't touch my mask!"

Larry stopped him with a serious expression.

"Why?"

“What’s the point of lying to you!”

Keith casually put his arm around Larry’s shoulder and patted his chest, “Don’t worry, bro. Since you’re Shirley’s brother, you’re my so going to be my best friend. Why would I lie to you? I also want the best for you!”

“But you’re in cahoots with Braden. How can you be a good person?”

Larry frowned, looking disgusted at the man’s arm draped over his shoulder, feeling the urge to chop it off.

Over the years, death had been with him like the wind. Thus, he had grown very cautious of people, unaccustomed to being this close to others.

“No, no, no, not anymore. From now on, I’m drawing a line between me and that heartless, cold-blooded Braden!”

Keith exaggeratedly made a “no” gesture with his hands and said with a flattering smile, Now I’m on your side, bro. I’ll listen to you.”

“I wasn’t joking earlier. If you don’t mind, I can introduce you to that plastic surgeon sometime and have him evaluate if your face can be restored.’

“Alright.”

Larry nodded, the wariness in his eyes slightly diminished.

The two men sat in the car and started chatting passionately. Larry even enthusiastically invited Keith to visit ‘Crimson Pawnshop” and have a drink with him.

admitted, "Bro, you're indeed clever. I do like your sister, so I don't dare to upset you. Otherwise, I might never see her again."

"I know you're a hopeless romantic, just like Braden. For a woman, you'll betray your bros without thinking. If Braden finds out, he'll surely kill you."

Having said that, Larry had a complicated smile. "But now he might not have the mood to care about these things. If you pursue my sister at this time, it's an excellent opportunity."

"My bro Braden... I mean, what happened to that scumbag Braden? Wasn't he holding a beauty in his arms, enjoying his life? Why would he be in a bad mood?"

"Why do you care so much? Haven't you already betrayed him?"

"No, no, I'm just curious if he's really that bad to hold another beauty, and if a heartless person will also be abandoned by others."

"Don't worry. He's already gotten his retribution."

Keith sensed from Larry's triumphant tone that Braden must have encountered some trouble. Just as he was about to inquire further, Shirley entered the room.

"Keith, come out. I want to talk to you.'

“With me?”

Keith looked at the domineering Shirley, who was like a mob boss, and felt flattered and a little frightened.

“That’s right. You. Come with me.”

Shirley waved at the man and left without waiting for his response.

Shirley turned her head and saw Nancy's figure, feeling somewhat guilty.

"Nancy, when did you get here? Why didn't you say anything?"

"I've been here for a while. Seeing you two in a steamy private chat, I was too embarrassed to interrupt."

Nancy slowly approached them. Her tone was indifferent, filled with detachment and coldness.

This was bad!

Shirley frowned, guessing that Nancy had heard their conversation earlier, both the parts could and couldn't be heard.

Nancy, with her strong pride, must be very hurt!

"Nancy, don't listen to Keith's bosh. He's just talking nonsense. He's not really like that. He's... he's..."

Shirley hurriedly tried to defend Keith, but soon realized that his words were difficult to excuse.

"Shirley, you don't need to explain for me. I am that kind of person. It's better for Nancy to see the truth sooner and give up her unrealistic fantasies. It's for her own good."

Keith put his hands in his pockets, with a smile on his face. His eyes exuded a sense of freedom, unrestrained and captivating.

Nancy looked at him coldly, devoid of any emotion, and said disdainfully, "Keith, I admit you have a way with flirting, so much so that during our time on Sunflower Island, I've had my moments of confusion. But those moments are far from being 'flipped'. I could never like someone like you."

Keith shrugged nonchalantly. "Understandable. After all, I'm not an elite, nor am I a top student. I'm just a carefree, aimless wanderer. How could I dare to hope for your affection?"

"I don't like you because I look down on you. You're a coward at heart, afraid to face your own feelings. You're the weakest man I've ever seen, even weaker than my ex!" Nancy exclaimed.

"Coward?"

Keith touched his chin as if he had been hit where it hurt, and laughed, "How am I a coward? Just because I don't like fighting and killing, is that wrong?"

Chapter 500 We Are Adults

This dinner was dramatically chaotic, like the god of love had gotten drunk and started randomly matching people together.

Larry and Nancy kept hinting for Keith to show affection to Shirley, while Shirley kept giving opportunities for Keith to show affection to Nancy.

Keith claimed to be showing affection to Shirley, but in reality, his attention was all on Nancy. He peeled shrimp after shrimp, then started peeling crabs, piling up a mountain of food in Nancy's bowl that she couldn't possibly finish eating...

"Alright, alright, stop peeling. I'm full, really full."

Nancy wore an awkward smile, stopping Keith from peeling more shrimp.

Then, she lowered her voice, "I've been a wingman for you long enough. Why don't you chat with Shirley, serve her food? Have you forgotten everything I taught you? If you don't act soon, she'll leave the table."

"Are you really disgusted with me? Is it because the shrimps I peel aren't clean enough, or the crab legs I handle aren't plump enough? I can do better!"

Keith looked at Nancy with pitiful, puppy-dog eyes.

That confused Nancy.

"Ahem, I'm full too. You guys enjoy your meal!"

Shirley wiped her mouth and got up to leave the table, calling out to the two children,

"Let's go, Ben and Ally, I will take you to play!"

"I'm full as well."

Larry also stood up.

Even if his observation skills were poor, he could see who Keith was aiming for. So he stopped trying to play matchmaker.
