Chapter 201 Cleaning Up (8)

The demon commander knitted his brows when he saw this since he recognized the thing in my hand right away.

It was hard for him not to recognize this thing since it was the thing that had caused him all that pain before.

But he stayed calm when facing it since he knew that all of the cards were currently in his hands.

Even if the other side had this weapon that could hurt him, it wasn't as if he would be able to hurt him. He held the method for releasing the array in his hand and they wouldn't be able to do a thing without him.

So he wasn't worried that the other side would use this weapon to hurt him.

After taking a moment to think this through, the demon commander said, "Do you think that I'll fall for such threats? If you touch even a single hair on me, I can guarantee that this entire forest will blow up."

The elders all knitted their brows when they heard this.

There were a few of them that wanted to go forward to stop Zwein, but the green haired elder raised her hand to stop them.

She had made a promise that she would give him this time with the demon commander. Even if she had her doubts, she would at least keep this promise...

But that was just because they didn't have any other options.

When I heard what the demon commander said, I just revealed a faint smile as I took a step forward.

Then I said, "Who said anything about hurting you? I can promise that I won't hurt you with this thing...you might even feel quite a bit of pleasure from it, but that will all be up to you and what kind of preferences you have."

The demon commander deeply knitted his brows when he heard this.

He couldn't understand what I was saying, but he could tell that there was something off about what I had just said.

It was as if there was a deeper meaning to these words that he hadn't understood yet.

But he couldn't reveal a weak look or else he knew that he would be stepped over.

So the demon commander revealed a cold look on his face as he said, "If you think that you can scare me, you're a thousand years too young. The things I've seen are much worse than anything that you can imagine."

I gave a simple nod in response to this before saying, "I'm sure that they are, but that doesn't matter here, does it?"

After a pause, I simply said, "I'll give you one last chance. If you tell us what we want to know, then I'll spare you the suffering."

The demon commander narrowed his eyes to coldly stare at me.

In the end, he didn't even bother responding. All he did was give a snort and turn his head away.

Seeing this, I knew that it was impossible to strike any deals, so I turned to Cecilia and Moon to say, "Help me turn him around and bend him over."

The two of them had already been expecting this, but hearing it made the bitter smiles on their faces become even more bitter.

But still, they had the experience from before, so they didn't hesitate to come over to the demon commander's side. They quickly lifted him up and turned him around, bending him over so that his butt was facing up.

The demon commander had tried to struggle, but he wasn't able to since he was completely tied up.

During the process, he shouted, "What are you doing? Don't touch me!"

But all of these shouts fell onto deaf ears.

After he was put in that position, I then said, "Take it off."

When the demon commander heard this, he suddenly stopped shouting and he looked back at me in shock. He didn't understand what I had just said, but he could tell that it wasn't a good thing.

Cecilia and Moon once again revealed blushes on their faces, but they still came forward to take care of this order.

It was then that the demon commander realized what was happening and he immediately started to struggle. At the same time, he shouted, "You dare! I'll make sure that you burn in the flames of hell for this! There won't be a single moment where you will be able to live a good life! I will destroy..."

Before he could finish, his pants and underwear had been taken off, revealing everything.

When the two girls saw this, they couldn't help laughing because...the demon commander's thing was just too...small!

It wasn't even a fourth of the other demon's and it was like a little cherry compared to Zwein's thing...

The demon commander's face immediately turned red with both shame and anger when he heard this and his face twisted like he was about to explode.

The elders all had doubts at this moment, so the green haired elder couldn't help asking, "Young master Zwein, what is the meaning of this?"

pandasnovel.com I turned back and said with a smile, "Just give me a bit longer and I'll get the information out of him."

The demon commander roared out at that moment, "You think that I'll tell you anything after you've shamed me like this? I'd rather die than tell you anything! I will drag all of you to the grave with me after this!"

I ignored this and just took the step forward, holding The Penetrator in one hand while letting the bat part of it rest in my other hand.

When the demon commander saw this, he couldn't help stopping himself from shouting and looking at me with a strange look.

He didn't know what was happening, but he could tell that something was very off.

He stuttered a few times before saying, "What are you doing?"

I looked at him with the same smile and said, "Take a close look at the tip of this thing in my hand. What do you think I'll do with this?"

The demon commander had a confused look as he looked at The Penetrator.

He didn't understand what I was saying at first, but soon his expression started to change.

It went from confusion, to understanding, to shock, and finally to horror just like the demon from before.

He gave a gulp before saying, "Don't you dare. If you even think about it, I swear on the name of the demon lord that I'll tear you to pieces."

While he was trying to act tough, the quiver in his voice made his fear clear.

The elders had also been confused at first about what I was planning on doing, but then they also understood what was happening and they looked at me with the same terrified look.

It was as if they never thought that I could act this way.

Since the demon commander wasn't giving up, I took a step forward and pointed The Penetrator at his butt.

Even when it was right there and about to go in, the demon commander still wouldn't give up.

It made sense that he was the demon commander, his will was much stronger than the demon from before.

Since that was the case...I guess I had no choice...

Chapter 202 Cleaning Up (9)

Taking a deep breath, I put it right up against his butt and then pushed forward.

There was a bit of resistance, but it was able to enter the hole in the end.

The moment that it did enter, the demon commander couldn't help letting out a scream before it turned into a moan.

But hearing this moan just made me feel uncomfortable.

That was because I could hear the slight bit of pleasure that was in it...

Doing this to another man with this large dildo bat was definitely not something that I had wanted to do in my life...

I really thought that he would give up and tell us what we wanted to know before I had to do this, but it seemed that this demon commander wouldn't give up that easily.

So I had no choice but to follow through or else I would have ruined my tough image.

When I did this, all of the elders and the girls in the room turned away...

Well, they couldn't help peeking back between the slits in their fingers since this was their first time seeing something like this.

With how big it was, there was no way that I was able to put the whole thing in. So the only part that had gone in was just the tip of the dildo bat, but that was still plenty big enough.

I was scared to push even further in, so I quickly pulled it out in one swift yank.

When I did, the demon commander couldn't help letting out a surprised cry before his face fell forward onto the ground. There were a few tears that had come out of the corner of his eyes as he laid there on the ground.

I gave a cough before saying, "Are you willing to talk now, or do we have to do that again?" Then after a pause, I added, "Of course this time, I won't be as gentle."

When the demon commander heard this, his body on the ground couldn't help trembling.

His face immediately twisted as if he was very torn on this decision.

There was a long silence that hung in the air as we all waited for the demon commander to respond.

The only thing that could be heard was the sound of blood dropping onto the ground.

As for where that blood came from...it was from the demon commander's butt.

It was his first time having his hole be violated like this and it was something as big as The Penetrator, so there was no doubt that it had been torn open by it. Blood kept dripping down from his butt that was lifted in the air, forming a small pool on the ground.

But since the demon commander wasn't saying anything, I knew that I had no choice but to keep pushing him or he would stall forever.

So I raised The Penetrator in one hand again, but this time I didn't hold the bat part with my other hand. There was a bit of red on the tip of The Penetrator that I wanted to avoid touching after all...

The demon commander had still been lost in his thoughts until he saw that I had raised The Penetrator again.

When he saw this, his eyes couldn't help trembling as he said, "What are you doing?"

I just said with a calm smile, "Well, that depends on what you say next. If you give me the information that I want, then I won't do a single thing. If you don't...then I guess I'll have to go a bit deeper this time." I think you should take a look at

The demon commander trembled when he heard this.

It would be a lie to say that he wasn't shaken when he heard this.

But there was something that was holding him back at the same time.

Seeing the conflicted look on his face, I didn't wait any longer as I walked forward again and placed The Penetrator up against his bleeding butt.

Finally, the demon commander broke and said, "I'll tell you! I'll tell you!"

I stopped there and waited for the demon commander to speak, but what he said next wasn't what we wanted to hear.

Instead, the demon commander said, "If you can guarantee my safety, I'll tell you what you want to know."

I shook my head and said, "Wrong answer."

Then without hesitation, I started pushing The Penetrator forward.

But before it could go in, the demon commander said with a bitter smile, "I'll tell you everything, just don't do it anymore."

At this, I stopped myself.

I also couldn't help letting out an inward sigh of relief, but I still had a firm look on my face as I looked at the demon commander and waited.

The demon commander saw this and with a sigh, he started giving us the information that we wanted.

He told us that to release the array, all we had to do was send the right order of runes into the array to deactivate it. Once that happened, we would need to release another sequence of runes into the array to release all of the power that it had drained.

Otherwise, we could take the power from the array and bring it somewhere else.

Which surprisingly was actually their plan.

They had been planning to drain the power from this forest for another plan, but the demon commander didn't know what since no one had told him.

He had only received the order to come here and use this array to drain the energy from this forest.

After learning this, the elders immediately sent people to take care of the array.

Half an hour later, we received the report that the array had been deactivated and they could sense the flowing back to the forest from it.

It seemed that the demon commander had told the truth.

So with this, we patched up the demon commander and put him back into the cell.

As he walked away, he looked back at The Penetrator in my hand and he couldn't help shaking his head with a bitter look.

Chapter 203 Cleaning Up (10)

Once the demon commander was taken away, all of the elders couldn't help letting out a sigh of relief.

They had never expected this thing that they had thought to be trivial to be this serious.

That also made them much more grateful towards me since I had been the one that had saved them from this.

After taking some time to calm down, the elders turned back to face us.

I had been sitting there calmly waiting for the elders to finish calming down and when they faced me, I revealed a serious look as I waited for them to speak.

The elders all gave a nod of appreciation when they saw this, before the green haired elder suddenly bowed her head. After this, the other elders followed suit and also bowed their heads to me which caught me off guard.

I was about to say something, but the green haired elder said, "Thank you for everything that you've done. If it wasn't for your help, it really would be hard to tell what would have happened with the demons."

I opened my mouth before closing it again as I was torn on what to say in response to this.

But in the end, I just simply said, "It was nothing."

The green haired elder looked up again and said, "You were discussing the matter of the dispute between our people. I would like to put an end to that now. We will allow your people to chop more trees from the forest and we'll even show you where some of the better quality older trees that need to be disposed of are, but before that..."

After a slight pause, the green haired elder said, "Before that, we have a small request that we need to make."

I slightly knitted my brows when I heard this, but then they relaxed and I said with a nod, "What is it?"

The green haired elder had a difficult look on her face and she hesitated a bit, but she still said, "We would like to ask that you wait a bit before you start the logging."

I was surprised when I heard this.

The green haired elder saw this and thought that I had taken offense with this, so she quickly added, "It isn't that we have a problem with cooperating with you, it's just that...the forest needs some time to recover the power that was lost. Before that, it would be dangerous for the forest if we were to cut down trees. I hope that you can understand."

I knew that she had mistaken my expression, so I quickly said with a smile, "No, no, that isn't a problem at all. I understand the circumstances and I don't mind this at all."

Hearing this, the green haired elder and the other elders let out a sigh of relief.

For these humans that had done so much and had even risked their lives to help them, it really was hard for them to ask even more of them.

But I couldn't help being surprised by the fact that they found this difficult in the first place.

This was a very simple and reasonable request, but the elves found it hard to make it.

It really seemed like the elves really were something else.

After a long silence, it was as if I had suddenly thought of something as I said, "Actually, I have something else that I want to discuss with you."

The elders were caught off guard by this, but the green haired elder said, "If there's anything that we can do for our saviours, please ask."

I shook my head before saying, "It isn't like that. I was just wondering if we could talk about cooperation between us?"

The elders looked at each other with confused looks before the green haired elder asked, "Cooperation? What do you mean by that?"

I said with a friendly smile on my face, "I can see that you are doing well for yourselves, but I am sure that there are things that you would want from human society. So I was wondering if we could start trading between our two sides."

The elders looked at each other with confused looks again, but this time, there was a different emotion in their eyes.

It seemed like they were tempted a bit by the offer that I had made.

It was true that the elves preferred living as one with nature, but that didn't mean that they didn't have any desires at all.

There were some things that the humans had that they had wanted before, but they didn't trade with humans, so they couldn't get them. The only times that they could get them was when elven travelers came and traded these items with them.

So these human items could be considered very rare.

If they were able to directly trade with the humans, that would naturally be an improvement.

But the elves didn't build any meaningful relationships with the humans and they liked keeping to themselves, so trading with them was impossible to begin with.

However, this was a very special situation.

I was someone that was in charge of a town and Haley was here as the representative of her company. As long as we worked together with the elven village, there was no way that we wouldn't be able to set up a trade network with the elven village.

The elders didn't say anything at first as they just kept looking at each other.

With the way that they were looking at each other, it was as if they were using their eyes to discuss what they wanted to do.

So I just patiently waited for them to finish.

After a long period of silence, the green haired elder finally said with a nod, "Alright, we can discuss this further after everything has been settled."

I gave a nod in agreement when I heard this.

It seemed like they wanted to wait a bit before deciding this, but it made sense since there were other things that they wanted to deal with.

The only one who looked impatiently right now was...Haley.

She could smell the profit that came from this since elven goods were very rare to begin with.

Every single thing that had come from the elves had been treated as a special object in human society. So anything that could be proven to come from the elves would always be sold for a high price.

If they could open up the trades with the elves and directly get stuff from them, then she was sure that she would make a large profit from this.

So she was disappointed that this couldn't be set right now.

The sooner that she started, the sooner she would be able to build her network.

But at the same time, she knew that rushing this would just lead to failure.

So she had no choice but to accept this for now.

pandasnovel.com After this had been settled, there was nothing else for us to do.

So the elven elders were about to send us back to the house they gave us when suddenly...

"Wait, you can't leave yet." The green haired elder suddenly said this.

Chapter 204 Second Goddess (1)

We were caught off guard by this sudden outburst from the green haired elder.

pandasnovel.com When she said this, all of us couldn't help raising our guard since it sounded like...she wanted to do something to us with the way that she said this.

To my surprise though, Moon also came forward to stand in front of me along with Cecilia.

In fact, she didn't even know why she did this.

When she realized what had happened, she found that she was already standing in front of him.

Seeing this, the green haired elder revealed an awkward look before saying, "I'm sorry, I didn't mean it like that. I was just too surprised that I couldn't help letting that outburst slip."

I immediately knitted my brows and revealed a confused look when I heard this, but I could see that the green haired elder was sincere about this.

So I raised my hands and patted both Cecilia and Moon's shoulders at the same time.

Moon immediately lowered her guard since the other side was the elven elders of her village, there was no reason for her to do this in the beginning. But she had somehow been unable to stop her body from moving.

Cecilia had a more conservative stance, but she still lowered her guard when I mouthed to her, "Trust me."

After the two of them calmed down, the green haired elder let out a sigh of relief.

She looked at Moon with a complicated look before turning back to say with an apologetic look, "I'm sorry for startling you like that. It was just that I had received a sudden message from our goddess about you that caught me off guard."

I was about to say that it was fine when I suddenly processed what she had said.

Goddess?

She said that her goddess had spoken to her?

When I understood this, I couldn't help revealing a strange look.

This was a look of amazement that had traces of confusion and doubt in it.

Seeing this, the green haired elder revealed an understanding look, but she still said, "I know that this is a lot to take in, but our goddess wishes to meet you at the Tree of Life."

I couldn't help revealing even more amazement when I heard this.

The goddess that she was referring to was without the Goddess of Life and I wasn't surprised by that. I was more surprised that she would say that the goddess wanted to meet me at the Tree of Life.

The Tree of Life was the sacred tree for the elves and the representation of the Goddess of Life on this planet.

This was not a place that even elves would be able to access freely, let alone a human.

So I was surprised that I would be allowed to go to that place.

At the same time, there was a problem that I had to address.

"As far as I know, the Tree of Life is in the elven capital. Does that mean that I have to travel all the way there to commune with the Goddess of Life?" I asked this with knitted brows. I think you should take a look at

This was indeed a problem since I wouldn't be able to travel that far on such short notice...but this was a request from the Goddess of Life, so I didn't feel right about rejecting it...

The green haired elder revealed an understanding smile before shaking her head and saying, "No, you don't have to do that. You can just visit the sapling Tree of Life that we have here and commune with the goddess there."

I was surprised to hear this, but I gave a simple nod in response.

I never expected that there would be a sapling Tree of Life here.

I had seen these things in the game before, but as far as I knew, the entire elven race only had five of those in the first place as well. This was not something that could be entrusted to an elven village that easily...

Just what was so special about this place?

Seeing the look on my face, the green haired elder suddenly added, "The vine that we used before also came from this sapling Tree of Life."

I looked at her with a surprised look before revealing a bitter smile.

It seemed that the fact that I had recognized the vine being from the Tree of Life hadn't been missed.

She was basically saying that she knew that I had a lot of secrets and that she was not going to press me to reveal them, but at the same time...it was almost a kind of threat.

I wasn't bothered by this since I knew that she was just doing this for the safety of her village and race.

After all, I wouldn't want someone that I had just met two days ago to know things like this. These kinds of things could easily be used to harm them if they fell into the wrong hands.

After taking some time to gather my thoughts, I gave a nod and said, "Alright, let's go meet the Goddess of Life."

The green haired elder nodded before standing up and waving for me to follow.

But when Cecilia and Haley also tried following, the elders immediately came forward to block them.

Cecilia immediately raised her guard while Haley took a step back.

The green haired elder immediately said, "I'm sorry, but you have to understand that this sapling Tree of Life is a sacred place for us. Other than the one summoned by our goddess, we can't allow other people to go there. I hope that you can respect this."

Cecilia looked like she wanted to insist, but I waved my hand for her to calm down again.

I had already figured that this was the case, but I accepted this risk since I didn't believe that the elves would do anything to harm me.

So in the end, Cecilia put down her weapon and sat back down. But the look in her eyes seemed to say, "If you touch one hair on his head, I won't let you off."

The green haired elder who this gaze was aimed at revealed a faint smile before saying, "I promise that we'll bring him back safely."

Then without waiting, she turned around and walked further into the room.

Instead of going to the entrance to this tree house, she went to the center of the room and opened up a secret hatch.

Chapter 205 Second Goddess (2)

Leading into this secret passage was a set of stairs that would bring us into the middle of the tree.

I was surprised to see this, but I also followed her into this passage.

This passage was quite well lit for a secret passage, but it wasn't lit by torches as one would expect. Instead, there was a glowing moss that was growing on the walls of the passage that lit the way.

Judging by the light they released, it seemed that this was some kind of phosphorescent moss that grew naturally.

But I didn't have time to admire this moss as the green haired elder quickly led the way.

We followed this passage for some time until she finally arrived at a door.

This passage had stopped going down after a certain point and had led us forward for a long while before we reached this door.

When we arrived at the door, the green haired elder raised her hand as if she was telling me to wait before walking forward to stand in front of the door. Then she raised her hand again to draw some symbols in the air with mana that she threw at the door.

These symbols disappeared into the door the moment that they made contact with it.

Then once those symbols disappeared, there was a light that appeared around the door.

This light flashed once before it disappeared without a trace.

After the light disappeared, there was a clicking sound that rang out before the door in front of us opened.

Once it opened, the green haired elder didn't hesitate to walk through this door, but I was a bit more hesitant.

I walked up and looked past it before walking through it.

When I looked through, I found that this was a passage that had led us out of the village.

We were now deep in the forest outside of the village.

At the very least, this was a place that I didn't recognize.

So I had no choice but to follow the green haired elder.

She was very familiar with this place and it took her no time to lead us over to what seemed to be a path. However, this path seemed like it was made of wood, or rather, it seemed like it was the root of a tree instead of an actual path.

Seeing that I had a hesitant look on my face, the green haired elder said, "It's just the root of the Tree of Life, it's nothing dangerous."

I looked at her with a doubtful look, but since I couldn't see anything from her face, I decided to follow her.

The two of us walked atop this giant root and in no time, we arrived at the base of the giant tree that this root belonged to.

This tree...really was fitting of the name Tree of Life.

With how strong the trunk was, how green the leaves were, how fresh the air was around it, it was as if the very essence of life could be found in this place.

The two of us walked right up the trunk of the Tree of Life.

As we were standing there, I saw that there was something that was at the base of this Tree of Life. I think you should take a look at

It seemed to be some kind of altar that was glowing with green energy.

The two of us came right up to the altar before the green haired elder suddenly fell to her knees in front of the altar.

I couldn't help being taken aback when I saw this and I felt very uncomfortable as I didn't know what to do in this situation.

Was I supposed to go to my knees like the green haired elder had done and worshipped the Goddess of Life?

But as I was standing there in a daze, there was a green glow that suddenly appeared around the green haired elder.

This was a faint light at first, but then it became brighter and brighter until there was finally one bright flash of light.

After this bright flash of green light, the light that had been around the green haired elder disappeared.

I was surprised by this at first until I realized what had happened.

That green light hadn't disappeared, but rather it had transferred to me.

When I looked closely at it, it was as if I could see something through that green energy.

But then I was pulled out of these thoughts by a voice.

"It's you. You're finally here."

I looked around myself when I heard this, trying to find the source of this voice.

However, no matter how I looked around, I couldn't find a single other person.

There was only me and the green haired elder who were currently standing there in front of the altar.

It was even so quiet here that it didn't seem like there were any other creatures in the surrounding area which was strange. After all, this was a place that seemed to be filled with the aura of life, but there weren't any creatures around...

That would be unsettling no matter how one thought about it.

Seeing that he was looking around like a crazy person, the green haired elder revealed a knowing smile, but she didn't say a thing.

She just stood up and walked away, leaving Zwein alone at the altar.

Even though this was a very important place for the elven village and elven race, she was willing to leave him alone here...

But I didn't notice any of this as the voice said, "Let's bring you to see me now."

I couldn't understand what this voice meant, but then there was a flash of green light in front of my eyes.

This was a bright flash of green light that made me unable to keep my eyes open, so I had no choice but to close them.

When I opened them again, I found that I was in a completely different place from before.

I was no longer at the base of that giant tree, but rather I was in a forest that was filled with the same aura of life as before.

Chapter 206 Second Goddess (3)

This was a forest that was filled with lush greenery, but that wasn't what my eyes were attracted to.

After coming back to my senses, my eyes fell onto the green figure that was in front of me.

This wasn't just a normal green figure, but rather a figure that was covered completely in green light. This green light was so strong that I wasn't even able to see the real appearance of this person.

At the same time, there was an...ethereal feeling that was coming from this person.

It was just like when I had met Solista for the first time.

As I was staring at this green figure, I could feel that this green figure was also looking at me.

The two of us just kept staring at each other before a voice finally said, "You're here."

I took a deep breath to calm myself down before saying, "You're the Goddess of Life?"

The green figure gave a nod in response before asking, "You're not surprised to find that you're here?"

With a bitter smile, I said, "Well, it's not my first time after all."

The Goddess of Life seemed to also reveal a smile as she said, "Yes, I can tell by the mark on your hand."

I looked down at the mark that Solista had put on me before and revealed that bitter smile again.

The last time that this had happened, I had been pulled into a world of pure white by Solista. It was there that we chatted a bit and I learned a bit about this world.

Also, when I left, she had put this mark on my hand without any warning.

I still hadn't figured out what this mark was for or what it did, but for now, it didn't seem like it was going to harm me. So I had been ignoring it the entire time.

After a moment of silence, the Goddess of Life then said, "I am Vivrum, the Goddess of Life of this world."

I was surprised to hear this self introduction since it almost seemed like this Goddess of Life was putting herself on the same level as me. But then I remembered that gods were able to read my thoughts, so I couldn't help feeling even more worried that she would be offended by this.

But there was no reaction from Vivrum at all.

Seeing that there was no retribution to come, I calmed myself down and said, "I am Zwein, but my name used to be Lin Fan. I was transmigrated here after I died in my previous world."

Vivrum gave a nod before saying, "I know, that person has already told us all about you."

I couldn't help knitting my brows slightly as I asked in a confused voice, "That person? Who do you mean by that person?"

I could have sworn that I had made a mistake, but it almost seemed like the green figure had jolted when I asked this. It was almost as if this Goddess of Life had just realized that she had made a mistake.

But she didn't let my question bother her as she said, "You must have a lot of questions about why I summoned you here."

She had smoothly avoided the question that I had asked and changed the topic back.

Although I was still curious about 'that person' that she mentioned, since she wasn't willing to talk about it, it wasn't as if there was anything that I could do. I think you should take a look at

So I just went along with her and gave a nod in response.

The green figure gave a nod as well before she said, "It's simply because I wanted to meet you."

After she said this, I couldn't help looking at her with a confused look. At the same time, I was waiting to see if there was anything else she would say, but it didn't seem like it.

It seemed that this was the reason why and there was nothing further...

But that wouldn't make any sense at all...

Even if he was a reincarnator, there was nothing special about him that the gods would want to meet him.

So why did they keep summoning him and pulling him into these special realms?

I just stared at this green figure as I tried to figure her out, but there was nothing that I could see.

I couldn't even see her true appearance after all since she was covered in that green light, so I just had to accept her words for what they were.

After another long silence, I gave a sigh and said, "Alright, now that you've seen me, can you send me back? Or is there something else that you need?"

I knew that this was a bit rude, but I wanted to see how far I could push it with this Goddess of Life.

At the same time, I wouldn't be against it if she was a bit offended and didn't want to talk to me anymore.

But Vivrum didn't seem bothered by this tone at all as she said, "Yes, there's something else that I wanted to talk to you about."

I gave a sigh when I heard this, but I waited for her to speak again.

Vivrum just casually continued, "I'm sure that you've already heard that the gods of this world were created by the God of Earth, so it could be said that we are like siblings."

I gave a slight nod in response when I heard this since this was something that I had heard from Solista. However, I couldn't help being surprised to hear her suddenly bring this up.

Vivrum gave a nod as well before saying, "Since that's the case, I want to make things a bit more interesting for you in this world."

"Huh?"

That was the only response that I could give.

But before I could react, she was already in front of me.

This green figure was taller than me, so what appeared in front of my line of sight was her chest.

I couldn't see it because of the green light, but I could tell that it was quite large with how it bulged on her figure when she came this close.

But that wasn't even the most shocking thing.

The green figure suddenly leaned forward and placed a kiss right on my forehead.

Chapter 207 Mark Of Life (1)

I couldn't help looking up at the green figure in shock when she kissed my forehead, but by the time that I looked up, she had already moved back.

She moved a few centimeters away, but she was still standing there in front of me.

I couldn't see her appearance because of the green light, but it seemed like she was smiling as she stood there.

After taking some time to come back to my senses, I finally asked, "What was that? Why did you do that?"

The green figure said in a voice that almost seemed like she was teasing me, "Well, it was to make your life a bit more interesting. How about it? Did you enjoy it?"

I just looked at her, not knowing how to answer this question.

But she didn't mind...it was almost as if she had a knowing look on her face.

I quickly remembered why she would have such an expression.

Gods could read minds and hear thoughts...

She must have heard me when I thought, "How soft these lips are."

With a bitter smile, I gave a sigh and said, "Are you done teasing me?"

The green figure raised a hand and patted me on the head before saying, "You're just so cute that I couldn't help myself."

This Vivrum, she really was different from Solista...Both of them seemed like they were playful, but she acted with less restraint and less seriousness.

The green figure seemed to pout her lips as she said, "Are you comparing me to that idiot? I'm much more mature than that fool."

The bitter smile crept on my face again.

I kept forgetting that gods were able to read minds...

So I took a deep breath to clear my mind before asking, "Is there anything else that you need from me?"

The green figure looked at me before shaking her head and saying, "No, that's everything. But..."

She let her voice trail off as she said this.

παΠdasNovel.com Hearing this, I couldn't help feeling a bit suspicious...the way that her voice had said this, it was almost as if there was something that she wanted to say, but she was hesitating on saying it.

In the end, Vivrum still said, "Can you call me big sister? It's a personal request, but I hope that you'll accept it."

My jaw couldn't help dropping the moment that I heard this as I looked at her with a very strange look.

At the same time, my head was completely blank when I heard this because...I had no idea how to react in this situation.

This was a god, a being that was worshiped by the mortals for overwhelming power and she was asking me to call her 'big sister'?

No matter how one looked at it, this was a very strange situation.

Seeing the expression on my face, Vivrum just tilted her head and asked, "You can't do it?" I think you should take a look at

I once again didn't know how to react to this situation, but there was one thought that passed through my mind.

Even though I had no idea what she actually looked like because of that green light, I couldn't help thinking, "Cute..."

Vivrum suddenly revealed a smile and said, "You think I'm cute? That's so sweet."

Without hesitation, she reached out and took me in her arms, hugging me against her chest.

I didn't know how I was feeling her, but I could feel the softness of her body around me. As for the most soft feeling, it came from her chest in front of my face...

After enjoying this for a bit, I pulled myself out of her embrace and said, "Please stop teasing me."

Vivrum said in the same teasing voice, "Even though you enjoyed it so much."

She tilted her head down and looked at my lower half.

I followed her gaze and realized...that there was a bit of a tent that was being pitched in my pants.

I quickly hid it out of embarrassment, but she said, "It's fine, don't worry, it's just a natural reaction."

I really wanted to dig myself in a hole and hide there, but there was nowhere for me to do that.

So after giving a cough to calm myself down, I said, "Big sister, can you send me back now?"

Vivrum looked like she was about to say something, but then she just gave a nod and said, "Alright, I'll send you back. Thank you for going along with my willful request."

I was about to say something, but then I realized that there was a layer of green light that appeared around me again.

Then before I could react, there was a bright flash of green light that was just like the one that had brought me to this place.

The last thing that I saw was her standing there waving at me.

Once he had disappeared from this place, the green figure brought one hand up to hold her cheek and crossed her other arm at her chest as she said with a sigh, "I wonder when he will be able to come and meet our true forms. It shouldn't be long, but I really don't like waiting."

...

When the flash of green light disappeared, I found myself back where I had been before.

In front of me was the giant tree and the altar at the base of the tree.

To the side was the green haired elder who was looking at me with narrowed eyes, as if she was trying to figure something out.

Seeing that his eyes had focused, the green haired elder asked, "You're back?"

I looked at her in a daze as I was still adjusting, but then I gave a nod in response.

The green haired elder was about to say something, but then she suddenly knitted her brows.

Looking at the way that she was looking at me, I could tell that she was looking at something specific on me. However, I couldn't tell exactly what she was looking at.

Chapter 208 Mark Of Life (2)

Based on the direction that her eyes were pointing, it seemed like she was looking at something that was on my forehead.

Of course, I wasn't able to see my own forehead, so I had no idea what she was looking at.

But I did remember that Vivrum had placed a kiss on my forehead...

Could it be that she had done something special when she did that?

Finally, I couldn't take it anymore and asked, "Is something wrong?"

The green haired elder didn't react at first, almost as if she couldn't hear what I said.

However, she then took out a mirror and handed it to me.

I was surprised that she would keep something like a mirror in her Storage Ring, but she was still a woman in the end...

I didn't say anything as I took the mirror from her and then looked at my forehead through it. As soon as I saw what was on my forehead, my lips couldn't help twitching...

It was a pair of lips that was imprinted on my head...

If I was to go out like this, there was no doubt that I would draw a lot of attention. However it wouldn't be any good attention...what was most likely is that people would look at me with strange looks.

I couldn't help revealing a bitter smile in the end since no matter how much I tried rubbing it, it wouldn't go away.

Could it be that I was going to have to live my life like this?

No, the green haired elder recognized this, so she should know what it is. That should be my clue to find a way to get rid of it.

The green haired elder had still been standing there in a daze when I turned around and she was still looking at the mark on my forehead in a daze. With the way that she was so focused on it, it really made me feel a bit awkward.

But I took a deep breath and asked, "Do you know what this mark is?"

The green haired elder was pulled out of her daze when she heard me and she gave a slow nod, but she didn't say anything else.

Seeing this, I couldn't help revealing a bitter smile before asking, "Can you tell me what it is?"

The green haired elder narrowed her eyes to look at my forehead before saying, "That is the Mark of Life."

"Mark of Life?" I couldn't help repeating after her. After thinking for a bit to see if I had ever encountered this, I then asked, "What is this Mark of Life?"

The green haired elder didn't speak right away and instead revealed a strange look.

After hesitating a bit, she finally said, "The Mark of Life is the special mark given by the Goddess of Life. It is only used to mark those that she had shown favour towards, as symbolized by the leaves of the Tree of Life on one's forehead."

Leaves?

I looked closely at the mirror again and found that what I had thought were lip marks were actually leaves. But no matter how I looked at them...they really did seem similar to a kiss mark instead of being leaves. I think you should take a look at

After the green haired elder said this, she didn't say anything else as she kept staring at me.

But this wasn't the information that I wanted.

There was still something else that I wanted from her, so I asked, "Is there a way to get rid of this?"

The moment that the green haired elder heard this, her chin immediately dropped down.

After a few seconds of silence, she revealed an agitated look and said, "Those words are blasphemy! This is the sacred mark from the Goddess of Life and you want to get rid of it?! Do you understand what kind of sacrilege you are saying right now?"

I couldn't help taking a step back when I saw her agitated appearance, but I then said, "Well, is there at least a way to make it so that it isn't as visible? You should understand how conspicuous it is to have something like this on my forehead."

The green haired elder looked at me like I was a fool before shaking her head. She put her head in her hand and said, "How did this fool get the sacred mark? This is something that all elves dream of and never have a chance to get. Even if they do get it, they wouldn't want it to fade at all since having this mark is a sign of glory. This idiot even wants to make it disappear..."

She kept muttering to herself, but I could clearly hear it...

It was almost as if she was directly complaining to me which caused a bitter smile to appear on my face.

I could tell just how important this mark was to the elven race from these words, but from my perspective, it was something that was a bother.

So I was about to open my mouth to say something else.

But before that, there was a voice that rang out in my head.

"Just think about it disappearing and it'll disappear."

I couldn't help looking around myself when I heard this voice, but I wasn't able to find a single thing.

Of course, I wasn't confused as to who this voice belonged to since I had heard it not long ago.

It was Vivrum, the Goddess of Life.

Since this was what she told me, I did what she said and thought about making the mark disappear.

While doing so, I made sure to hold the mirror up so I could see the mark in the reflection.

As she had advised, after willing it to disappear, it soon faded from my forehead until it was completely gone.

When I saw this, I let out a sigh of relief.

But there was no time for me to relax at all as the green haired elder suddenly shouted something.

"What did you do!?"

Chapter 209 Mark Of Life (3)

I couldn't help taking a step back when I heard this, but that just caused the green haired elder to come forward.

She quickly grabbed my shoulders and moved her face towards mine.

But of course, she wasn't planning on doing anything as her eyes were completely focused on my forehead.

With the way that she was focused on my forehead, it was almost as if her gaze was about to burn a hole through it.

I just revealed that same bitter smile as I waited for her to finish.

Finally, the green haired elder asked, "Where did that mark go? You need to understand just how important this mark is and the disappearance of a single one of these marks is a very important matter!"

I was about to say something, but then the same voice rang out through my head saying, "You can make it appear again."

I was surprised to hear this, but I didn't waste any time doing this.

With a thought, the mark appeared on my forehead again.

When the green haired elder saw this, she looked at this mark on my forehead with the utmost focus before saying, "How? How did you do this?"

As she said this, she grabbed me and pulled me in even closer than before to carefully look at the mark on my forehead.

I just gave a bitter laugh before saying, "I just thought about it and made it disappear. Then when I wanted to appear, I just thought about it and it appeared again."

The green haired elder revealed a very strange look when she heard this.

After a long silence, she finally said in a strange voice, "It...it can do that?"

I didn't know what to say since I knew even less about the mark than her, but I still gave a nod in the end.

The green haired elder just stared at the Mark of Life on my forehead for a long while she muttered, "Well, no one has ever tried something like this before, so it could be a feature of the Mark of Life. After all, no one would want the Mark of Life to disappear since this would mean that one was no longer blessed by the Goddess of Life..."

She kept muttering about all kinds of different things that I didn't understand.

Finally, she slowly let go of my shoulder and took a step back.

Seeing that she was calming down, I asked, "What is so special about this Mark of Life?"

The green haired elder was pulled out of her thoughts and she looked at me with a confused look before suddenly saying, "It's the mark of a god, isn't that special enough?"

I opened my mouth and revealed a surprised look, not knowing how to respond to this.

After all...she was right!

This was a mark that was received from a god, so that alone made it special enough...

But that wasn't what I meant.

The green haired elder also understood this, so she continued by saying, "It isn't that special among the humans, but among the elves that worship the Goddess of Life, it is a very important matter. There aren't many that are blessed by the Goddess of Life in the first place, so those that do are usually regarded as the envoys of the goddess."

Her expression became even more strange as she looked at me and after a pause, she added, "Even if you are a human, just by receiving this mark, you will be regarded as an important person in our elven society." "I think you should take a look at παΠdαsNovel.com I couldn't help knitting my brows when I heard this.

This was something that had both good and bad implications.

The good implication was that in future dealings with the elves, there was no doubt that this would help me make a good impression on the elves. With this mark, I would certainly be more welcomed by the elves.

And there was no doubt that I would have more dealings with the elves after opening trade up with this elven village.

The bad thing was that there was no doubt that I would be dragged into elven politics because of this.

Even if the elves lived a free life, there was no way that they would be able to resist the other races if they just kept acting this way.

The only way that they would have the power to resist the other races is if they formed some kind of united front, which was what the elven kingdom was.

The elves were still allowed to move freely, but it was the influence of the elven kingdom that allowed them to move across borders like this.

So no matter how free the elves were, they had no choice but to form a government that involved politics.

With this mark, I would surely be dragged into those elven politics...

There were ups and downs to each side of this decision.

But at the very least, I would be able to hide this and slowly make a decision.

After thinking this through, I made the decision to make the Mark of Life disappear.

When the green haired elder saw this, she gave a sigh as if she was acknowledging my decision, but she didn't say anything about it.

She just said, "We have to announce this to the village at least."

I looked at her for a bit before giving a nod.

This would make it easier for me to negotiate with the elves in the village which would help open up trade between our two sides.

Though there was the risk of exposing this to the other elves, the benefits that came from it were much greater than the risks.

I didn't oppose going along with this.

With this settled, the green haired elder gave a satisfied nod before turning to lead us back to the village.

As I left, I couldn't help feeling that there was something that was watching us.

But then again, when I thought about it, there was something that was watching us.

This was the territory of Vivrum, so of course she was watching over us.

So as we left, I waved behind me to say goodbye.

I didn't know why, but it felt like there was something waving back to me.

Chapter 210 Cleaning Up (11)

When we arrived back in the village, we took the same passage as before.

We came back out through the secret passage and found that everyone who had been there was still waiting for us in that room.

The moment that they saw us, they all revealed different expressions.

Cecilia and Haley immediately came forward and surrounded me.

They went around me, looking over my body, seeing if anything had happened to me.

When they saw that there was nothing, they finally gave a satisfied look and sat down again.

During this time, Moon had also moved closer and it seemed like she was observing me as well.

Once they were satisfied, the green haired elder finally moved the meeting forward.

The green haired elder gave a simple summary of what happened when we went to the Tree of Life sapling, but she left out one part of that narrative.

But it wasn't as if she wasn't going to tell them, she was just waiting for the end to make a bigger impact.

After she finished her story, she said, "There's something else that I need to announce."

When her voice fell, she turned to look at me and I knew what she was asking for.

When we came back, I had hid the Mark of Life on my forehead so that it wouldn't cause a scene. But now she was planning on telling them about it, so I had no choice but to reveal it.

With a thought, the Mark of Life appeared on my forehead.

The elders had been staring at me since they saw the green haired elder look in my direction.

The moment that they saw the Mark of Life appear, all of them revealed shocked looks.

They looked at each other as if they were confirming what they were seeing and then turned back to look at me.

There were many of them that suddenly stood up and came forward to surround me, but the green haired elder raised her hand to stop them. She used her hand to draw an invisible line that they couldn't pass and they all gathered there.

They knew that if they all came closer like this, it would scare me off, so they followed the instructions of the green haired elder.

But the way that they surrounded me like this, it was almost like I was an animal that was locked in the zoo...or a beautiful woman that was surrounded by men who wanted to ravage her...

It really was a strange kind of feeling...

However, there was one person that went past that line that the green haired elder created.

This person was Moon who had a shocked look on her face the moment that she saw this Mark of Life.

She couldn't help herself as she came right up to me and looked at my forehead, lost in the mark that was there. With the way that she was looking at me, I was even scared that she would come right up to my face to stare at it.

But she remained at a decent distance in the end.

After a long silence, she finally said, "It's the real mark, it really is the Mark of Life."

I didn't know what to say in response to this and it didn't seem like she wanted me to say anything in the first place, so I just sat there in silence.

παπdαsNovel.com After another long silence, Moon finally looked away from the mark and looked at me. The way that she was looking at me was very strange and I couldn't put my finger on what kind of emotions she had.

After letting them stare at me for a bit, the green haired elder said, "I'm sure that all of you know what this means..."

She let her voice drift off and she didn't finish this thought, but the look on the faces of the elders made it very clear what they were thinking.

She then turned to Moon and said, "We'll make the announcement tonight and then you'll be able to do what you want."

Moon had been staring at me the whole time and didn't look away as she gave a nod in response to this.

Everything that they said just confused me even more.

It was clear that what they were saying was related to me, but I had no idea what they were planning to do at all.

It didn't seem bad, but it also didn't seem good...

So I couldn't help feeling a bit worried.

But before I could say anything, the green haired elder said, "We will host a banquet tonight to thank you for everything that you've done and we will announce our intentions to open up trade with you there."

The way that she said this almost seemed like everything had been set.

At the same time, the things that she said weren't bad.

She had basically confirmed that they were going to accept our offer of opening up trade between our two sides, which was something that made Haley's eyes light up.

But for some reason, I couldn't help feeling that there was something off about this.

In the end, she didn't let me ask anything as she called the two blonde elves in.

The two blonde elves also couldn't help being surprised the moment that they saw the mark on my forehead, but that reminded me that I still had it out.

So with a thought, the mark disappeared.

All of the elves were shocked by this, but the green haired elder assured them that this was a normal thing.

The green haired elder then had the two blonde elves escort us back to the place we were staying.

Moon didn't hesitate to stand up and come with us.

The green haired elder was about to say something to stop her, but then she revealed a smile that had a deeper meaning and said, "Go on."

I couldn't help feeling that there was something very strange about all of this...
