"No, I have money. Don't worry, Rhonda. I'll be graduating soon. After I find a job and get my salary, I'll give all my money to you."

"Thank you. But how much can you earn right after you graduate? You better save up the money and keep it for yourself." Rhonda smiled at her brother dotingly.

"Rhonda, is Eliam nice to you?" Leonard was unhappy with Eliam for leaving Rhonda alone.

"Yes. Why do you ask?"

"Rhonda, did you marry him just for the five hundred thousand dollars?"

Rhonda paused for a moment. She feared Leonard wouldn't be able to stand the truth. Therefore, she made up a story. Rhonda told him that she had known Eliam for a long time and that it was not a lightning marriage without any feelings involved.

However, Leonard was still unconvinced. He asked why Eliam had left in a hurry.

Just as Rhonda was about to answer, Leonard pointed to a French restaurant on the street. A man and a woman were sitting by the window, having dinner.

The woman sliced a piece of steak and fed it to the man.

A frown lined Leonard's forehead. "Rhonda, isn't that Eliam? Who is that woman?"

Just then, the bus screeched to a halt.

Leonard hurriedly got off the bus. Rhonda couldn't stop him, so she ran after him.

Leonard headed toward the restaurant without hesitation.

"Leonard, listen to me..." Rhonda tried stopping him but failed. She anxiously took out her phone and called Eiam.

Eiam picked up the phone. Before he could say anything, Leonard walked over to him.

"Hi Eiam, I haven't had dinner yet. Do you mind if I join you?"

"Eiam, who is he?" Diana frowned.

"He is my..."

"I'm his brother-in-law. Well, to be precise, my sister is his wife." Before Eiam could say a word, Leonard pulled a chair and sat beside him.

"Sure. Order whatever you like." Eiam handed the menu to Leonard and asked the waiter to bring a set of tableware for him.

Leonard pretended to read the menu. Diana glared at him, her face reddening with rage.

She seldom got the chance to be alone with Eiam and was furious that a stranger had ruined her chance.

"You had dinner, didn't you?" Rhonda walked over and pulled Leonard up. "Don't make trouble here."

"I'm not full yet, Rhonda. I want to eat more. It's my brother-in-law's treat anyway." Leonard smiled innocently.

Bile rose in Diana's throat every time Leonard said the word brother-in-law. Her jaw tightened as she tried to suppress her anger.

"Eliam, the food here is bad. Please drop me home. I feel dizzy again."

Eliam hurriedly helped Diana stand on her feet. "Well, I'll drop her home first. Feel free to order anything. You don't need to pay for the food. Just give them my phone number, and they will add it to my bill."

Seeing the two leaving in a hurry, Leonard angrily pounded the table. The waiter recoiled in fear. He immediately walked over to their table to see what was going on.

"Sir, what can I do for you?"

"Those two who left the restaurant come here often to dine?" asked Leonard.

"They come here about two or three times a week. That lady loves our steak."

"Rhonda, did you hear that? I'm pretty sure something is going on between them." Leonard snapped, "Why did you let them go without asking anything?"

"Leonard, it's none of your business."

"What do you mean, Rhonda? You are my sister. Your husband is clearly cheating on you. I can't just ignore it as if nothing has happened."

"You don't know anything. What can you do?" Rhonda rubbed her forehead helplessly.

"Then, tell me what's going on!"

Rhonda had no choice but to tell Leonard the truth.

Leonard remained silent when Rhonda told him she married EIAM for the money. His eyes reddened as he sprang up to his feet and walked out of the restaurant.

"Where are you going?" Rhonda asked breathlessly as she caught up with him.

"It's between me and EIAM. You better stay out of this, Rhonda." With that, Leonard hailed a taxi and left.

Rhonda was utterly helpless. Finally, she sent a message to EIAM, telling him that Leonard might come to see him and asked him to call her if things went out of hand.

EIAM didn't reply. She wondered if he was probably driving.

Rhonda had no choice but to return to the Sloan family's residence.

As soon as EIAM dropped Diana back at the seaside villa, he received a call from Leonard. Therefore, he left right away.

Diana was so angry that she smashed the jade bracelet that EIAM had just given her.

However, she regretted it the moment the bracelet shattered. She frantically picked up the remnants and put them into the box.

The servant walked over to Diana and consoled her, "Miss Leslie, there is no point in losing your temper and throwing things around. You should find a way to drive that woman away."

"It's easy for you to say. Every time I speak about it to EIAM, he always says we should wait. I don't know what he is waiting for!" Diana grew furious as she thought about it.

"I can't believe a bumpkin is trying to win my man over! She's trying to have something that's beyond her league."

"Miss Leslie, never underestimate women like her. They go to any extent to marry wealthy men. You can't be lenient with her."

"All right. What do you think I should do?" Diana felt the servant was right.

"Everyone has a weakness, and so does Rhonda. For instance, does she have any siblings?"

"Wait!" Diana's thoughts flitted to Leonard, and she immediately came up with a plan.

Rhonda waited a long time, but Eliam didn't return home. He had sent her a message, asking her not to wait for him. She didn't sleep well that night.

Early in the morning, Rhonda awoke to the ringing of her phone.

It was a call from the emergency department of Kindness Hospital. The nurse informed her that Leonard was seriously injured and asked her to come to the hospital right away.

Hearing that, Rhonda anxiously rushed to the hospital.

Leonard was covered with gauze. He was in critical condition. Fortunately, he was admitted to the hospital in time, and his vitals looked good now.

Rhonda paid the medical bills, and they shifted Leonard to the ward.

To her surprise, Amanda was Leonard's attending doctor.

It turned out that Amanda was originally an orthopedic doctor. However, she transferred to the chest surgery department, and took charge of arranging the operating room just to be with Robert.

Now, she gained some sense and decided to take her life seriously. Therefore, she applied for a transfer back to the orthopedics department.

Amanda looked at Leonard's examination report with her lips pursed in concentration.

"Dr. Kerr, how is my brother?"

"He is seriously injured. Fortunately, his vitals are fine. His left leg has several broken bones. In my experience, I'm afraid your brother might have to spend the rest of his life in a wheelchair."

Rhonda felt like someone had hit her heart with a shovel.

Her body froze. She couldn't react.

"Dr. Kerr, please save my brother. He is still young. He can't lose his leg." Rhonda was about to kneel in front of Amanda.

However, Amanda hurriedly grabbed her shoulders and consoled her, "Don't worry. Things may not be as bad as we think. Our priority now is to call the police. You need to find out who assaulted your brother. After all, he needs surgery and rehabilitation training. I'm afraid it's going to be an expensive procedure."

Rhonda's eyes widened.

She immediately thought of Eliam. Last night, he had sent her a message, saying Leonard was with him and they were talking. He had even asked her not to worry about
