

Siblings: Forbidden Love - Chapter 6 Chapter 5 Reading Online for Free

Chapter 5

"Oh, Jason I love you so, I love you!" Anna screamed in a hush tone as she tried to control the pleasure that ran through her, it was so much that she shuddered. Her hand traced the flawless back of the sweet boy on top her.

He reached down and covered her nipples in his mouth, the hotness of his mouth made her shiver, his saliva moistened her nipples and she used her hand to close her mouth from shouting out loud, she mustn't wake up their parents, course what they are doing is a big sin and should they be caught, she doubt if they will ever be forgiven.

"Tell me you love me" he demanded from her as he looked deep into her eyes, his eyes were bright blue filled with passion than she had ever seen.

"I love you, oh God I love you!" She shouted repeatedly and he ?smiled, his perfect set of teeth flashing in the dim light of her room.

She smiled back while he killed her with endless passion, she closed her eyes as she couldn't take it anymore and suddenly felt him grab her shoulders, shaking her ferociously. She was startled, wasn't he so loving and gentle a second ago? Why did he soundly turn aggressive?

"Wake up Anna" he shouted and she was jolted awake, she opened her eyes to see him holding her shoulders, shaking her, he was dressed and the room was not dark as it was in her dream, she can see the sun rays seeping in through her window, looking at his face, all aftermath passion from her dream cleared.

"Wake up for crying out loud, if I don't wake you up, you won't get up" he shouted at her.

She frowned, why is he so worked up this morning? She wondered "what?"

"We are going to be late for school if you don't get up there young lady" he said releasing her shoulders and standing up straight.

He picked up her blanket from the floor and suddenly turned to look at her amused "why, you were having quite a dream weren't you?"

Anna frowned as she got up to realize that she was no longer covered in her blanket and half her top was opened, she looked to see him holding her blanket with a raised eyebrow, waiting for her answer "what are you talking about?"

He smirked and throw the blanket at her "who was it?"

Anna frowned deeper while she felt her pulse quickening, her heart was beating faster and she had a lingering fear that she might have done something or he might have an idea of what kind of dream she was having just moments ago "who was who?"

"The one you were telling you love" he looked deep at her and she felt her heart missed a beat.

"I don't know what you are talking about" she replied in defense.

"Oh no young lady you do, you should be happy mom wasn't the one that walked in here, I wonder how you will explain what you were doing a few moments ago" he retorted looking intensely at her.

Anna's heart beat stopped and restarted again, did she carry her dream into the world? Was her moaning loud and clear, just how did he know?

"I'm thinking about telling mom, perhaps if you tell me who it was, I might consider."

"Consider what?" She asked, wanting to be sure that it was what she is thinking that he is talking about.

"Consider about telling mom that you were having an erotic dream" he raised his eyebrow at her.

Heaven, she is finished, but how possible? It wasn't the first time she had had the dream and he woke her up, just why was today different, how did he get to know? "I'm I getting an answer?" He pressed.

Anna sighed and licked her lips, she can't tell him she was just having sex with him in her dream, that will be giving herself away and then all her hard work of keeping it a secret for the past two years will all be for nothing "fine. It was Cash."

Jason's eyes darkened and he lost the fun spirit he had just a few moments ago, his eyes turned cold mad he looked away to hide the hurt in them "get dressed and come downstairs, I will make breakfast" he immediately walked out of the room.

Anna furrowed her brows and wondered why he didn't press the matter and left just like that? She really can't understand his anger and just then she remembered how angry he was also last night when she made Cash her boyfriend, then if so, is he angry because she mentioned Cash a while ago?

She really couldn't name it, the more she tried to know why, the more she found out that it's so difficult to understand him this days. She got up from her bed and walked straight to the bathroom, wondering how her dreams had affected her reaction and why.

She got downstairs after dressing up to see him setting the dinning table and it was only for the both of them "where is mom?" She asked wondering why he was the one making breakfast.

"Left early" he replied.

"Thought she said she would wait for dad?"

"Didn't want to miss her flight and moreover, dad called, said he will be back in the afternoon. She couldn't wait since her conference is been held this morning, so she left" he walked back into the kitchen and came out carrying two plates with toast "eat fast, we can't miss the boss and it will be here in approximately fifteen minutes."

"Hey are you angry with me?"

"No" he replied as he took a bite from a toast.

She pouted as she watched him, he said he is not angry but he looked angry.

"Stop watching me and eat" he ordered and right then she concluded that he really is mad.

"I'm not eating" she refused her food, pushing the plate of toast away from her.

Jason sighed and drop his toast on the plate, Anna smiled secretly, she knows refusing her food will get him to talk, he pampers her like that.

"Eat your food Anna, we don't have time. Eat your food if you know you don't want to walk to school" he said looking at her.

Anna frowned and still insisted not eating "I'm not eating it."

"What do you want?"

"Tell me why you are angry with me."

"I am not angry with you."

"Really?" She clearly made it obvious that she don't believe him.

Jason sighed and closed his eyes, he licked his lips and Anna drowned in the sight, wishing upon wish that she be the one to do that. She closed her eyes immediately to shut the thoughts out, when she opened her eyes, Jason was looking at her "do you really love Cash?"

She sighed and bit her lip, she might as well just be truthful but if she do, how can she act heartbroken when she finally breaks up with him? "I don't know about love yet, but I really do like him" she averted her eyes with the fear that her eyes might say something different.

Jason sighed and picked up his toast again and started eating it. She stared at him, wondering why he suddenly asked that, she wanted to question him but he spoke first "when he finally hurts you, you know my room."

What the heck? How can he saw that to her? It's not like she doesn't like his request but, it sounded as if he is expecting her to get hurt "why in the world would you say that?"

"Because I am one hundred percent sure that he will hurt you. No girl, absolutely no girl has a nice easy going relationship with Cash. Anna, I don't want it to sound like I don't want you to date, but Cash, he is not the one for you. You have had a lot of boyfriends before, have I ever reacted like this to any of them?"

She sighed for sadly it is true, he has never cared who her boyfriend is except Cash. Is he really that much of an asshole?

"No need for this topic now, get your books, the bus is here" he stood up and cleared the plates but not without her snatching her toast from it. She had him chuckle and couldn't help but smile too, a single sound from him always get her like that.

Due to the bus having arrived, they were not able to do the dishes and just ran out to catch up with the bus. Seeing them running to catch up, some of his admirers urged the driver to stop and like that they got in the bus.

"Hi Jason, I was the one that told Mike to stop" one of them said immediately they got in.

Jason looked at her and offered his killer smile with a thank you and she blushed. Anna felt her heart clutched, she really wanted to rip off that color from her face, she looked at Jason and was angry at him for smiling at her but she really can't be angry with him, can she?

They both took a seat at the back when Jason turned to chat with some friends and girls. Anna didn't have a friend and that's simply because, they all wanted her brother and she can't afford to sit with a friend who is in love with the same guy as she is, although she can't tell them that.

"Hi Anna" someone called and she turned to see one of her friends or so they thought.

"Hey Lila" she offered a smile.

"I saw you at Megan's party but before I could walk up to you, you vanished."

"Sorry about that, I left early."

"Is it because Jason was mad at you?"

Anna frowned, how did that become a story? "How did you know that?"

"Well, Christy heard him shouting at you at the balcony and she told Tom and Tom told Lukas and he told Mina and she told Francis and he told Florence and she told Joseph and then he told me" she smiled

Anna stared at her wild eyed, why, aren't they much of a gossipers? How many told who? Look at all the line that went before her "wow. What a nice line of story."

"Sorry about that but you know, the news is kind of new to everyone judging by the fact that he is so protective of you and should anyone do more than glare at you, they receive a warning glance from him and now to hear that he shouted at you, everybody was surprised, me too."

Anna nodded "yea, so why are you asking me now?"

"Well, I just want to ask you know, what you did to get him so fired up and also in a party" Lilla smiled.

"It's just a personal matter, no need to concern yourself with that."

"Okay then, you guys are good now?"

"Yea" Anna replied, ready to drop the conversation.

"Okay then" Lila smiled and let her be while Anna glanced at Jason to know why he said nothing upon hearing how their news traveled but he appeared to be in a heated discussion with one of his basketball fan. She sighed and rolled her eyes, hoping upon hopes that the matter shouldn't be the new story in school.

"Don't worry, it will die off soon" Jason suddenly said and she looked at him, he smiled "it's school, anything new is always a story, give it a day or two and something else will come up. Besides, they will see us walking into school together as always and will just have to shut up" he ruffled her hair and turned to continue with his discussion.

She sighed, so he was paying attention, she thought as she rest on her seat while looking out the window.

They got to school and all eyes was on them. Anna frowned and suddenly Jason hugged her from behind as they matched to her class "don't worry, when they see us like, they won't have much to say" he smiled and she did too.

Cashmere saw them coming and smiled "hi Anna"

"What are you doing here?" She asked him.

"Waiting to walk you to class, is that bad?" He asked with a raised eyebrow.

Anna looked at Jason and back at him "Jason always walk me to class."

"I know" he replied.

"Since you know then, why were you still waiting?"

"I want to walk you, I'm your boyfriend, is that not right for me do?" He asked. Anna wanted to argue with him but Jason suddenly spoke.

"Its alright, let him walk you" he looked at her and smiled "I will see you at lunch. I love you" he kissed her hair and walked away while Anna sighed. If he doesn't walk her to class then their news is not going to end anytime soon since another one will be up of him not walking her to class. She turned to see Cash smiling and figured he might have done it on purpose.

Did he think she was choosing him over her brother? Dream on, she thought and suddenly regretted her impromptu action last night, of course he will be over himself since she was the one that asked him to be her boyfriend. He might think that she is crazy over him, don't worry just a matter of six more days and it's over, she thought as she walked the way to her class and he rushed to fall into steps with her.

Walking back to his class "Cash a moment" he heard and turned to see Jason resting on the wall with his hands folded on his chest.

"Yea" Cash said and Jason smiled faintly before walking closer to him.

"I'm not against you being with my sister, wait who I'm I kidding? I am totally against you being with my sister but I'm not going to say a thing, it's her choice. Although I don't understand why she have to choose you of all people and I also won't question her again but I'm going to make my state clear and simple. If you are with my sister and you know you want to be with her, I'm just gonna say one thing. Do not hurt her, the day she get to shed a tear for you, is the day you get to see the other side of me" Jason said and turned to walk away.

"You don't threaten me Jason" Cash called after him and he stopped in his track, turned and looked at him.

He smiled "it's not a threat, but a promise" with that he walked off to his class.

Cash scoffed before following after him. He walked into their class and saw Jason already seated at his desk. He tried to get eye contact with him but Jason behaved as if he had no idea he walked in.

Previous Chapter
Next Chapter