

Still Loving You Nonetheless Chapter 1469

Ivy suddenly asked, "Have you carried forward the child's matter?" "Yes. Don't worry."

"Who did you ask to handle the matter? Can I contact that person directly?" Ivy added, "since you're so busy, I can't always call you to ask about your progress."

"I'll visit you every day," Liam said, "but you can contact Mr. Crawford directly if you want. I'll send you his phone number later."

"Alright. Thank you."

"Goodnight." Liam smiled at Ivy.

The next day, Ivy hesitated and called Mr. Crawford.

Mr. Crawford thought she was calling to find Liam, so he hurriedly replied, "Miss Landers, Mister Liam hasn't come to work yet. H- he..."

thought about it and guessed that she was highly likely out for her child's matter.

Thankfully, Ivy picked up the phone, but she did not tell Liam that she was going through the procedures for going abroad, she was probably afraid that Liam would stop her if she let him know.

Liam waited in the ward for a long time, but Ivy did not return, so he left. When he returned to the company, Mr. Crawford told him that Ivy had asked him about the child today. Liam did not find it strange, but he asked casually, "Did you tell her?"

"Mister Liam, I told her about the investigation abroad, but she was delighted to hear it."

"Of course she's happy, she only needs a glimmer of hope to feel joy now," Liam said bitterly.

"You can leave. I'll get back to work." Liam lowered his head and started working.

Ivy completed the procedures within a few days, and her injuries have also reached the standard for discharge.

Liam was not against Ivy's discharge. She still moved back to Jay Mansion. After all, she was not in the mood to find a job or another place for the time being. Since she was willing to return to Jay Mansion, Liam was naturally happy.

Liam personally picked her up from the hospital and gave her a bunch of fresh lilies.

Ivy looked at the bouquet and said, "Thankyou, but it's better not to spend so much in the future."
