

Still Loving You Nonetheless Chapter 1472

The mansion originally belonged to Mrs. Shelby, but after she died, it naturally belonged to Josiah. Ivy only needed to tell Josiah if she wanted to stay there.

The mansion was big and luxuriously decorated. Liam stood at the side of the door and glanced around, asking, "Have you lived here for so many years?"

"Yes."

"Was it depressing?"

"If I say no, would you believe me?"

"No." Liam shook his head. "The house's decor already seems a little depressing."

"Mrs. Shelby liked it this way."

"Then why don't you just stay in a hotel? Or we can live in my house in another area."

"It's fine. I feel like this is the closest place to my child," Ivy said wryly.

Ivy's answer immediately dispelled Liam's idea. After all, she was absorbed with finding her child, so he had to look out for her emotions.

"That's good."

"Yes."

"The restaurant I mentioned is just at the end of this road." Ivy pointed down the road that seemed to have no end. "Is it a little far?"

"I don't mind it. I'm not tired anyway." Liam nodded and looked at her. "You haven't slept all the way, aren't you tired?"

"I'm not."

The two walked for a while when Ivy suddenly stopped in her tracks. Liam followed her gaze and saw a beautiful little girl standing under the sycamore tree in front, smiling happily under the golden sunset.

Obviously, she liked Ivy very much and missed her very much.

"Siena!" Ivy walked toward her quickly and pulled the little girl into her arms. "Long time no see, Siena! I miss you."

"Aunt V, I miss you too!" Siena laughed, but she suddenly cried. " Aunt V, I thought I would never see you and Cooper again."

"How's that possible?" Ivy's eyes turned red when she saw Siena cry like this. "Cooper and I both like Siena the most."
