Chapter 751 Seeking Revenge

"That is Hadley Kardon. He works for Airborne Insurance Company. I have already drafted his walking paper, and I will dispatch someone to deliver it to him later."

When Carter sent wreaths to Layla and Lenard's wedding, he was curious about how these two families offended Byron, so he checked the identities of the two families by the way.

Then he learned that Layla had stolen Georgia's boyfriend, Lenard.

He believed that this issue was unresolved.

So he prepared Hadley's walking papers in advance.

Byron was not surprised that Carter had already prepared the walking papers.

Carter had always been thoughtful, and he would arrange all things properly. Byron didn't need to remind him of everything.

"When you dispatch someone to deliver the walking papers, don't forget to take a few invitations to Hadley. Remember to tell them to attend Madam Hansen's birthday dinner with his whole family."

Byron

added.

Carter understood Byron's intention.

"Yes. I'll tell them to come with the bridegroom."

"All right."

Byron hung up the phone. He turned around and found that Cora was slightly surprised.

"Well? Are you satisfied with the solution?" Byron asked.

Cora came back to her senses and directly leaned over to kiss him on the cheek. "Yes."

She wanted Byron to teach Lenard and the Kardon family a lesson.

Cora wanted to stand up for Georgia. She felt sorry for Georgia after Georgia broke up with her boyfriend, the jerk Lenard.

Now Byron taught Lenard and the Kardon family a lesson and had prepared an act of revenge.

Thinking about the scene, she felt happy for Georgia.

"Kiss me if you're satisfied?" Byron smiled, looking at Cora.

Cora knew what he meant, and her face blushed.

"Nope, it's almost time for work." She refused.

"So what?" Byron said as he turned over to kiss Cora.

Hadley just finished his daughter's wedding yesterday. So it was a little late when he arrived at the company he worked for.

He was in the highest position of the company. Even if he was late, no one dared to say anything.

Then Lenard arrived at the company.

The two walked and chatted.

Then Lenard said, "Dad, Layla wants to ask for leave today. She was tired after the wedding, some guests were too noisy, and she barely slept a night."

"It's okay. If she's too tired, then just let her rest for some days. I'm the leader of this company, and no one dares to say something," Hadley replied.

He smiled shamelessly.

Then he said to Lenard, "Why don't you just stay with Layla at home for a few days? Anyway, I've already made arrangements for your promotion."

Lenard immediately nodded and bowed. "Thank you, Dad."

"It's all right. We are family now. As long as you treat Layla well, I will promise not to treat you badly."

But when they arrived at the door of Hadley's office, Hadley's expression changed.

"Why is Mr. Arthur Wells here?" Hadley asked cautiously.

Hadley put away his arrogant posture, approached Arthur in a pleasing manner, and prepared to greet him.

Hadley's assistant replied, "Mr. Arthur Wells has been here for a while. He is waiting for you."

"Then why didn't you notify me!" Hadley gave the assistant a look with a little anger.

If he had known that Arthur was coming, he would not have dared to be late.

Arthur was the key person dispatched from the headquarters of the Hansen Group to inspect the various subsidiaries. Any important instructions from the headquarters were delivered by Arthur on the headquarters' behalf.

It was no doubt that Hadley and the others did not dare to offend Arthur.

Chapter 752 The Uncertain Promotion

The assistant was a little annoyed. It was obvious that Hadley didn't answer the phone, but in the end, Hadley passed the responsibility to the assistant in front of Arthur.

But Hadley was in power in the company. The assistant was worried that if he offended Hadley, he would lose his job, so he could only swallow his anger.

Lenard didn't know Arthur.

But it was the first time he saw Hadley showing such humble expressions. He was surprised and puzzled.

He greeted Arthur with a slight nod and then stood where he was, contemplating the true identity of Arthur.

Hadley was receiving Arthur with an oily smile.

He said, "Mr. Arthur Wells, I have prepared some excellent wine here, and I am waiting for you to come and share it with you. Now let's get into the office first, so we can savor its taste while chatting."

But Arthur refused. "No need, Hadley. I'm here to deliver some files to you from the headquarters."

Arthur's stern face made Hadley even more uneasy.

"What files?" Hadley asked.

Arthur took out two envelopes and handed them to Hadley.

Hadley immediately opened one of the envelopes.

But seeing that it was his walking papers in the envelope, Hadley panicked.

He said, "Mr. Arthur Wells, what's going on? I work hard at Airborne Insurance Company, a subsidiary of the Hansen Group, and I've always been diligent, and my performance is not bad. But why do you want to fire me?"

Hadley panicked, but the assistant felt happy.

"You old fart deserve it!" The assistant thought.

Hadley used to treat people arrogantly and always indulged his daughter in messing around in the company as if the Kardon family ran the company.

Now that Hadley had been fired, he couldn't treat other people arrogantly anymore, and his daughter, the troublemaker of the company, had to leave the company with him!

Thinking about the working environment without the two rotten apples, the assistant was so excited.

But Lenard panicked.

He betrayed his love in order to be Hadley's son-in-law.

If his father-in-law were to be fired, his dream of getting promoted would be shattered.

Seeing the different expressions of them, Arthur said, "I don't know the reasons. Maybe there are other arrangements at the headquarters."

Then Hadley realized that he had another envelope. He quickly opened it.

Inside the envelope were not job offers but some invitation cards for Nora's birthday dinner.

"They are Madam Hansen's birthday invitation cards." Hadley was surprised as he read them. He found that he was not the only one invited.

The whole Kardon family was invited. His son-in-law Lenard was invited too.

"Mr. Arthur Wells, I don't know why..."

Hadley was confused.

The headquarters of the Hansen Group fired him and then invited his whole family to Nora's birthday party.

What did it mean for the Hansen Group to do this?

Hadley had got no idea but looked at Arthur, hoping that Arthur could make it clear.

But Arthur added, "I have worked in the Hansen Group for years, but things like this didn't happen before. So I guess Mr. Hansen may have taken a fancy to your ability and wants to reassign you to other jobs."

Hadley was still a little uneasy. "Is that so?"

"Well, maybe it is. The Hansen family often holds dinner parties, and many people from the Hansen Group have been invited. But in recent years, Sir Hansen and Madam Hansen have been keeping a low profile. They rarely invite people to their birthday dinners. Even the executives from the Hansen Group have never been invited. But now your family is invited. You are so lucky."

Arthur's words made Hadley feel relieved a lot.

Chapter 753 Was It a Wasted Effort?

"Really? Then thank you for making this special trip," Hadley replied gratefully.

"Never mind. Get your personal belongings sorted out as soon as possible. The newly appointed acting president by the headquarters will take over here in a few days," Arthur said.

"Okay, I'll sort it out right away," Hadley replied.

"Don't forget to bring all your family to Madam Hansen's birthday dinner."

Arthur reminded Hadley.

"Yes, and thank you, Mr. Arthur Wells," Hadley replied.

Arthur left. Hadley returned to his office and began to organize his personal belongings.

Lenard followed in. "Dad, if you leave Airborne Insurance Company at this time, what should I do to get promoted then?"

Lenard was using his marriage as a bargaining chip for promotion, and now he didn't want his efforts to be wasted.

Hadley told him, "I have already submitted your promotion information, and it will not be confirmed until the new acting president reviews it."

"Then what if the new acting president takes me down?" Lenard was nervous.

"It will prove that you are not the person for this job if he rejects you," Hadley answered.

Seeing Hadley's indifferent look, Lenard got a little angry.

"But Dad, you have said you would appoint me as a manager in Airborne Insurance Company after I married Layla. Now that I have done what I promised you, what should I do if someone else takes the position of manager?" Lenard was worried.

In pursuit of this position, Lenard even betrayed the girl he loved.

Seeing that Lenard was serious about the position, Hadley got impatient.

He added, "I did promise you, but now I have to change jobs, and I can't help it. Besides, you have got benefits from marrying Layla. We have bought houses and cars for you. I even made arrangements for your younger siblings, and I also gave you a gift of 200 thousand dollars!"

"But what I want is the position of manager. The others are arranged by yourself. I didn't ask you for them," Lenard explained.

Lenard had inquired about the income spectrum of the position at Airborne Insurance Company. With the salary of the manager position and additional sources of income, he could potentially earn over 200 thousand dollars annually.

If he served as a manager for two or three years, he would obtain all the material possessions.

If he held the position of power, he could arrange job opportunities for his younger siblings.

In short, as long as he became a manager, all problems would be solved smoothly.

Otherwise, he would not choose to betray his love.

But at present, he was afraid that all his efforts would be wasted.

Hearing Lenard's words, Hadley just persuaded him coolly, "Lenard, you are still too young and naive.

You should know that some things cannot be obtained by greed alone."

Lenard said without expression, "I simply want to get what I deserve. Yet, you are unable to fulfill the promises you made initially. Shouldn't we consider ending the relationship between Layla and me, given that we haven't obtained the marriage certificate?"

In fact, Hadley did not like Lenard, thinking that Lenard was too eager for quick success.

But there was no way because Layla loved him so much. She wanted to marry Lenard.

If Layla knew that Lenard was going to break up with her just because he couldn't get the manager position, she would definitely be heartbroken.

If Lenard and Layla hadn't held a wedding before, Hadley would definitely cut the association between Layla and the greedy young man, Lenard.

Hadley wanted to stop Lenard. Because the wedding had already taken place, if Layla and Lenard broke up, she would become a divorcee in the eyes of others, though they had not got the marriage certificate. Besides, it would be difficult for Layla if she wanted to marry a wealthy young man in the future.

Considering all aspects, Hadley could only soften his tone and said, "Well, if the headquarters of the Hansen Group appoint me to be an executive of other subsidiaries, I will arrange for you a position at the same level as the position I promised you before in Airborne Insurance Company."

Hearing Hadley's words, Lenard felt better.

Chapter 754 Without Sadness

Time passed. It was the day of Nora's birthday dinner.

Early in the morning, Cora put on the custom-made dress Byron made for her and planned to take Georgia to do hair and makeup.

But Byron blocked the door with his arm and refused to let her go. "I ordered such a beautiful dress for you. Don't you even say thank you?"

"Thank you, Byron," Cora said casually.

She wanted to escape from under Byron's arms as she finished speaking.

But Byron directly carried her on his shoulders, threw her on the sofa, leaning himself onto her body.

There was a common belief that the affection between couples and lovers tended to diminish over time as they lived together.

But Byron's affection for Cora defied this notion. His love for her continued to grow stronger and deeper with each passing day.

They didn't have intimate activities with each other these days because Cora was having her period.

Having been together for such a long time, Cora knew what some of Byron's actions meant, but now she wanted to push him away.

"Get up. We can't do that now. I'm going to take Georgia to do hair and makeup. Did you forget that we have a plan to give the scumbag a lesson today?" Cora said gently.

Byron did not forget that at the dinner party today, there was a big show that Cora was looking forward to.

But he didn't let Cora go. He still leaned on her body, lifting Cora's chin with his slender fingers. "Tell me, when can we engage in intimate activities? Tonight, perhaps?"

"Yes," Cora shyly answered.

In order to take Georgia to do hair and makeup as soon as possible, Cora said yes.

Hearing her answer, Byron smiled.

He was looking forward to tonight's tenderness.

"Get up quickly!" Cora said as she pushed Byron.

Cora didn't dare to look at Byron's eyes because she could sense the intense affection in Byron's eyes, feeling as though he could see right through her.

Hearing her words, Byron got up immediately and helped her tidy up her messed-up clothes.

When Cora was about to leave the house, he took a deep look at her dress and smiled.

He added, "Don't change your clothes tonight."

Cora flushed and rushed out of the house immediately.

On the first floor of the Hansen Mansion, maids were preparing the meals for the dinner party and decorating the dance floor.

On the second floor, some guests who had come earlier were sitting and chatting in groups, and some were busy chatting with Nora.

Cora dragged Georgia up to the cloakroom on the third floor and instructed the stylist to start doing Georgia's makeup and style her entire look, from head to toe.

"Auntie, I could do it myself. I wouldn't want to inconvenience you," Georgia said.

Georgia didn't like overly grand looks, so she often wore light makeup when she attended a dinner party.

But the stylist was smearing eyelashes and glitter on her face at the moment, which made her a little worried that she would steal the limelight.

"I heard from Madam Hansen that many young talents were invited to the banquet tonight. So I will help you dress up." Cora smiled.

"But Auntie, I'm not in the mood to fall in love now. I just want to focus on my work," Georgia explained.

Indeed, after going through a breakup, it was common for people to experience a period of time of sadness and emotional healing.

But Georgia was different. She looked like she had no sad emotions after breaking up with Lenard.

Cora learned from Byron that Georgia recently hired a formulator for her skincare company.

All the new products were launched in the market. Georgia had partnered with a few influencers to promote those products. Now, the products were selling very well.

"Georgia, do not go to extremes. You should firmly believe that there are still good men in the world."

Cora talked to her.

Cora coaxed and wheedled Georgia to do a makeover.

At the same time, Hadley and his families and Lenard presented to Nora's birthday dinner.

Chapter 755 A Mega Salary

Although the Kardon family had always been regarded as a wealthy family, they had not been able to rank among the rich in New York. It was not surprising that the Kardon family had no connection with top wealthy families.

From the moment they entered the Hansen Mansion, the Kardon family was amazed.

"My God, this courtyard is so beautiful!" Someone from the Kardon family was attracted by the decorates of the Hansen Mansion.

"This guest seems to be a famous dramatist, and that one is a star!" Another one from the Kardon family talked about other guests.

"Wow, there are so many tables on one floor alone. How many people do the Hansen family will entertain?" One from the Kardon family was surprised.

Lenard didn't make a sound, but he was still amazed too.

No one could imagine the lifestyle of the wealthy.

The Hansen family had an expensive big house, luxury cars, beautiful suits, dresses, and fancy jewelry, and almost all the other guests they had invited were wealthy.

But among the guests, only the Kardon family were always dramatically amazed.

Those people seemed to have been used to such scenes. They were all great wealth, like the Hansen family.

Lenard realized this situation, then he thought, "Mr. Hansen invited Hadley and his families over.

Maybe Mr. Hansen saw the ability in me and wanted to arrange a better job for me.

Otherwise, Byron wouldn't have arranged the Kardon family and me among such a group of wealthy guests."

Thinking of this, Lenard was excited.

Lenard even thought that if Byron arranged for Hadley to be the acting president of headquarters of the Hansen Group, then Lenard would also be able to follow Hadley as a manager.

If it was true, Lenard would be a promising young man with a mega salary. Then he could start his own companies, and it would not be a problem for him to arrange for his relatives to be presidents of his companies.

If everything went well for him, he would be very rich and got so many girlfriends.

When Lenard was absorbed in his pleasant illusions, Layla suddenly pulled off his sleeve.

"Lenard, take a picture of me here. I'll post it on Instagram to show off later," Layla said.

Lenard didn't like Layla at all. Although she was pretty, he just disliked her.

Every time Layla talked to Lenard in this commanding tone, Lenard was fed up with her.

But he wanted a mega salary, and he needed to use her connections to full advantage.

Lenard took out his mobile phone and took pictures of Layla.

After taking the photos, Layla was busy posting to Instagram, then she said to Hadley, "Dad, I want to work with you if you are assigned to work at the headquarters this time. You just left Airborne Insurance Company for a few days, but our supervisor kept niggling at me every day, and I didn't dare to be late."

"Of course, I will arrange an easier job for you then," Hadley replied.

Lenard listened to their conversation without emotion, looking greedily at everything around him.

Lenard thought that one day he would become a man of great abilities and wealthier than the Hansen family, so he could buy this mansion and hire hundreds of maids to take care of him.

But when his daydream was at its most exciting parts, he found Georgia was in the Hansen Mansion too.

Georgia was on the phone, arranging some work matters for her skincare company, and didn't notice Lenard.

Lenard looked Georgia up and down and suspected that she was not Georgia.

Because of his impression, the skirts Georgia used to wear had never cost her more than 30 dollars, and the bags that she purchased from Amazon stores cost her less than 16 dollars.

Let alone the poor living conditions of the house she rented before.

But the woman in front of Lenard was wearing a beautiful dress, and her makeup was delicate.

Her temperament was elegant, as if she was born to live in upper-class affluence.

She was completely different from the Georgia he was familiar with before.

But he was attracted to her and stepped forward to greet her.

"Georgia?" Lenard was slightly tentative.

Chapter 756 A Rich Man

"Okay, tell the manager. I'll come over when I'm done here."

Georgia heard someone calling her. She subconsciously turned around after hanging up the phone.

The moment she saw Lenard, pain, astonishment, and bewilderment all flashed in her eyes one by one.

But in the end, all emotions returned to calm.

"Why are you here?"

Georgia had already concealed her emotions well, looking at Lenard indifferently.

But Lenard didn't know if he was hurt by the indifference of his former lover and asked Georgia coldly,

"Why are you here? I should ask you this question."

Georgia was puzzled. Why would an outsider come to ask her when she was in her home?

But before she could reply, Layla's voice came. "Lenard, I've been looking for you for a long time. What are you doing here?"

When Layla came over, Hadley and his wife also came over.

The whole family was busy studying the structure of the mansion and the age of some ornaments. But they couldn't find Lenard when they turned around.

Layla was quite worried that Lenard would get lost in such a big house. She was very anxious.

Hadley and his wife were also busy helping her find someone.

After searching for a long time, they found that Lenard was chatting with a well-dressed girl under a tree.

In this situation, how could they treat Lenard and this girl kindly?

"It's nothing. I met an old friend and chatted for a few words." Lenard frowned but tried his best to restrain his anger.

After Layla stepped forward to look at the woman a few times, she recognized that it was Lenard's ex-girlfriend Georgia.

"So it was you. Why are you here? Did Lenard let you in?"

Compared to Georgia, Layla was more aware of Georgia's existence.

So she immediately stepped forward and took Lenard's arm, declaring her ownership.

"I don't care how much you loved each other before. But now he's married to me. He's mine. If you dare to seduce him again, I'll deal with you."

Georgia wanted to clarify directly that she was only at her own home.

But Lenard took the initiative and said, "I didn't bring her in. I was also curious about how she would appear on this occasion. So I came here to ask."

At this moment, Jennifer Kardon, Layla's mother, stepped forward.

"Come in by herself? That's impossible. Didn't we just look at the door just now? The guard is still checking if there is an invitation card. I heard that an invitation card can only bring one person in."

"That's probably because she fell in love with a rich man. The clothes alone cost a lot of money. Does she have the money?" Layla couldn't hide the contempt in her eyes.

It was because she dared to snatch Georgia's man before. She thought Georgia's background was normal, and Georgia couldn't compete with her.

Now a poor girl like Georgia, her clothes were much better than theirs, but even her makeup was extraordinarily exquisite.

On her own, it was certainly impossible to reverse her sight so much in such a short time.

The only possibility was that she was supported by an old man.

"Georgia, is this the case?" After Lenard was stunned, he was full of pain and shock.

He hadn't got Georgia yet. He pestered her to ask for several times. But she refused.

He thought she was a conservative girl.

But Layla's words enlightened him.

Perhaps from the very beginning, Georgia didn't like him that much. She was waiting for an old rich man.

Chapter 757 His Niece

"Even so, does it have anything to do with you?"

Georgia didn't want to talk with them. And after saying this, she wanted to pass them.

However, when Layla saw the beautiful necklace around her neck, she liked it very much.

Because she was spoiled by Hadley since she was a child, she liked to grab others' things very much.

Anyway, her father could silence these people afterward. So she became more and more unscrupulous.

Lenard was snatched in this way, and so was the necklace.

She quickly tore off the necklace from Georgia's neck. "This chain is very beautiful. Let's make a price."

"It's not for sale. Give it back to me." This was Georgia's favorite necklace. She would not give it to Layla.

But Layla didn't listen and grabbed the necklace in her hand.

"If you don't sell it, I'll say you stole it."

"You..."

When Georgia was slightly annoyed, Cora happened to come to look for her.

"Georgia, what's the matter? Did they bully you?" After seeing Lenard and the Kardon family, Cora's eyes were slightly cold.

Lenard was slightly surprised when she saw Cora.

He recognized this beautiful woman.

She looked very familiar with Georgia. Could it be that she brought Georgia to the dinner party?

"She took my necklace," Georgia said.

"Nonsense, this is my necklace, and you stole it." It was Layla's usual trick.

Unexpectedly, after Cora looked at the red marks on Georgia's neck, she went straight up and slapped

Layla.

Cora almost exhausted her strength and knocked Layla to the ground. She lost two of her teeth.

She immediately ignored the necklace in her hand and threw it on the ground.

Cora directly stepped forward to pick up the necklace and handed it to Georgia.

Neither Hadley nor his wife expected Cora to attack suddenly and beat their daughter up like that. They were angry.

"What's the matter? Why did you hit my daughter?"

"Do you know who we are? We are the distinguished guests invited by Mr. Hansen! If you dare to do anything to us, you will go to jail."

When the couple helped Layla up, they didn't forget to speak harshly to Cora.

Lenard still wanted to rely on the Kardon family to earn tens of millions of dollars a year. So he was naturally on the same side as them at this time.

"If you're sensible, apologize to Layla now. Otherwise, it will be too late for you to regret it in front of Mr.

Hansen later."

But just as he finished speaking, a clear male voice came.

"Honey, what's the matter?"

Several people followed the voice at the same time and saw Byron, who was wearing a hand-made black suit, walking towards them.

This was the handsome face that once appeared on the major financial news. Coupled with his domineering demeanor, Lenard and the Kardon family immediately recognized that this was Byron, the uncrowned king of New York.

Did he just call his wife?

Could it be...

When they were shocked, Byron walked up to Cora's side and wrapped his long arm around Cora's waist.

It was doomed.

This woman turned out to be Byron's wife!

Georgia and this woman seemed to have a good relationship. Would they offend Byron?

However, something that made them even more confused was still happening.

When Byron walked up to Cora, Georgia called obediently, "Uncle!"

"Yeah." Byron nodded.

At that moment, the Kardon family and Lenard felt as if they were struck by lightning...

Byron turned out to be Georgia's uncle!

Chapter 758 Vent Her Anger

Was Georgia one of the Hansen family?

Lenard was more confused than the Kardon family.

The Kardon family only knew her name was Georgia. But Lenard knew her surname was Hansen.

But he never connected Georgia with the top family in New York.

Georgia was always dressed in ordinary clothes. She didn't even see a single luxury item. Moreover, Georgia never mentioned her relationship with the Hansen family...

If he had known that Georgia was from the Hansen family, he would never have betrayed Georgia just because of the little benefits promised by the Kardon family.

The more he thought about it, the more Lenard regretted it.

And after Byron glanced coldly at several people, he asked Georgia again, "Did they bully you?"

He didn't deliberately raise his voice. And even his expression didn't change.

There was nothing else.

It was strange that his inquiry made several of them start to tremble.

An intuition told them that if Georgia affirmed their crimes, they would all die in an ugly way.

When they were trying to solve this embarrassing situation, Georgia said, "They took a fancy to the necklace that you and Auntie gave me. They took it away unreasonably and even wanted to frame me for stealing it. Fortunately, Auntie arrived. Otherwise, I would have suffered."

As soon as these words came out, both Lenard and the Kardon family noticed that Byron's eyes turned cold.

"I bought this necklace at the auction. It's worth more than 3.3 million dollars. Does the Kardon family have something like this?"

Byron's gaze finally fell on Hadley, making Hadley feel that his heart was about to break free and run away.

He hurriedly explained, "We don't have such a thing, it's because our daughter made things difficult.

That's why she scolded Miss Georgia Hansen."

He not only explained but turned around and slapped Layla.

It was no less than the slap Cora gave Layla just now. She was slapped to the ground and rolled.

When Layla got up again, she lost two more teeth and cried out in pain. "Dad, how could you beat me so hard!"

Jennifer helped Layla up. When she saw that Layla's front teeth were gone, she also went hysterical.

"Are you crazy? How can you beat your daughter like this!"

Seeing her daughter suffer, Hadley also felt distressed.

But he also reprimanded severely, "How many times have I told you, no matter how much you like, you can't snatch things that don't belong to you? Why don't you listen?"

He knew that if he didn't take action to teach Layla a lesson at this time, his job at the headquarters would be ruined.

He had to do it.

When he entered the headquarters to work, he could implant as many teeth as he wanted for Layla!

After he had finished scolding Layla, he scolded Jennifer again, "It's because you indulged your daughter time and time again that made her have such a willful character!"

He shifted all responsibility to his wife and daughter and hurriedly apologized to Byron and Georgia.

"Sorry, Mr. Hansen, I have been busy with work these years and neglected to discipline my children, which is why she made such a big mistake.

"Miss Georgia Hansen, I'm sorry about today's incident. I will discipline Layla well in the future. Please forgive us!"

Byron didn't respond, but only looked at Georgia.

This action made Georgia instantly understand that the presence of the Kardon family and Lenard here today was all arranged by Byron and Cora to let her vent her anger.

While being moved, she realized that blindly giving in would only make people think she was weak and deceitful.

So she even sneered at Hadley, "If Auntie hadn't arrived just now, you probably helped your daughter wrong me. Get out of the Hansen Mansion right now."

Chapter 759 Never Be Hired

"No, Miss Georgia Hansen, please let me explain..."

Hadley also tried to plead for himself.

But Georgia called the housekeeper at the side, "Throw them out. This kind of person is not worthy to come to celebrate my grandma's birthday!"

The housekeeper quickly responded and called the bodyguards.

"Miss Georgia Hansen, it was our fault. Please forgive us."

Hadley almost bowed to Georgia. But Georgia refused to look at them.

Hadley knew that it was almost impossible for Georgia to forgive them.

So he could only look at Byron.

"Mr. Hansen, Mr. Arthur Wells said that you asked me here today to assign me a new job. Then this new job..."

What he meant was Byron could tell him the content of this new job first.

But before he finished speaking, he was interrupted by Byron, "It seems that you haven't understood that I invite you here to let my niece vent her anger on you."

As if struck by lightning on the spot, Hadley slid slowly to the ground.

So from the moment he was fired, he was unemployed. There was no such thing as Byron asking him to work in the headquarters.

And the reason why they were invited was, to put it bluntly, to bring them here to be humiliated by Georgia.

However, their family was still arrogant and made Georgia angry.

Hadley regretted it.

But no matter how regretful he was, Byron didn't take a second look and only told the bodyguards,

"Throw them out. Don't let them be an eyesore here. And inform the other subsidiaries of the Hansen Group that these people will never be hired."

Hadley's face was pale now.

In New York and even in the whole country, three-quarters of the industry was under the name of the Hansen Group.

If they were excluded by the Hansen Group, they would not be able to live in the country.

It was serious, causing Hadley to faint all of a sudden.

Layla and Jennifer were anxious to send him to the hospital. They didn't care about anything else.

But the two women couldn't lift Hadley at all.

Layla hurriedly asked Lenard for help, "Lenard, hurry up and help me carry Dad. We have to send him to the hospital immediately."

Her father was important to Layla. She couldn't imagine if she lost him.

But facing her heart-piercing crying, Lenard didn't even look at her and said almost heartlessly, "He's your father, not mine. It was your family who coerced and lured me, so I had no choice but to marry you."

Layla never expected that Lenard would sever ties at this time.

"How can you do this? We treat you well. How can you be so ruthless?"

But Lenard remained unmoved. Layla could only cry and beg him, "Just help me take Dad to the hospital, okay? After we send him to the hospital, I don't care what you do."

But Lenard turned a blind eye to her and went to hold Georgia's hand instead.

"Georgia, I was forced to marry her. It's all over now. No one will stop us from being together. Trust me, I will treat you wholeheartedly in the future."

As long as he reconciled with Georgia, the decline of the Kardon family had nothing to do with him.

If he could marry Georgia, he could choose the position of acting president of the Hansen Group subsidiary.

Lenard was extremely excited as if he had reached the highlight moment of his life.

But Georgia shook off his hand directly. "Go away, take your father-in-law to the hospital quickly. Don't disgust me here."

Lenard pestered her again.

"Georgia, that's not my father-in-law. My father-in-law will only be your father. The only person I love from the beginning to the end is you."

Georgia wanted to maintain the demeanor that a lady should have. But Lenard's words disgusted her, she couldn't stand it and slapped him.

"I was blind before, so I didn't see that you are such a bastard!"

Chapter 760 Played With My Feelings

After being beaten, Lenard seemed to realize that there was no hope of reconciling with Georgia. He simply became angry and asked Georgia, "You never actually loved me, you were just playing with my feelings!"

"I didn't." Georgia felt that the man in front of her was strange.

"No? Then why did you never tell me that you are from the Hansen family? Why did you pretend to be poor in front of me?"

Lenard accused Georgia. "You just looked down on me and played with my feelings! But you still pretend to be affectionate in front of me. You are disgusting..."

Those accusations made Cora feel harsh.

Not to mention how would Georgia feel.

Cora saw that her eyes were red.

Originally, she didn't want to join in. But she couldn't stand it anymore.

"That's enough!"

She suddenly made a sound, causing Lenard to unconsciously focus on her.

"The reason why Georgia didn't tell you her identity was because she was worried that you would feel inferior in front of her. To make you less stressed, she didn't even dare to use any high-end things in front of you.

"You said she was playing with your feelings. If she played with your feelings, she wouldn't want to bring you back on Grandma's birthday and officially introduce you to her family."

Hearing this, Lenard almost looked at Georgia in astonishment.

It turned out that Georgia thought about taking him home to meet her parents.

If he hadn't been unable to wait any longer and agreed to hold a wedding banquet with Layla, today would be the day he would meet her parents.

But under his astonished gaze, Georgia looked away in disappointment.

And Cora continued, "She even thought that after her family recognized you, she would let you be the acting president of Airborne Insurance Company, and she considered your younger siblings. She also imagined that after you got married, she would take your parents to the house under her name to live in, and the family went out together on weekends..."

It was also after these words that Lenard realized what he had lost.

That was right. If he hadn't gone so mad as to hold a wedding without telling Georgia to satisfy his greed, he would have replaced Hadley today as Airborne Insurance Company's acting president.

The problem of his siblings getting married and employed which he was worried about before would also be easily resolved.

With Georgia, his parents would also enjoy their lives peacefully.

But all of this was destroyed by himself.

"Georgia, I'm sorry. I didn't know what you think. I thought..."

He thought that she kept concealing the identity of the Hansen family because she looked down on him, and she didn't have him in her plans.

But now it seemed that she loved him very much. That was why she was so careful to please him and his family.

But his apology and remorse now came too late.

Georgia couldn't listen to anything. She just told the bodyguards at home, "After dragging him out, help take that person to the hospital. Don't let these people disturb everyone's interest."

The bodyguards followed her order, dragging Lenard away, and helping Hadley to the hospital. Some helped him, and some went to drive.

In a blink of an eye, the farce that was staged in the yard ended in a hurry with the departure of several protagonists.

Cora was still a little worried about the scar on Georgia's neck. She went up to check it. "Go upstairs,

I'll apply medicine for you, so as not to leave a scar."

The two went upstairs.

When Cora applied the medicine to Georgia's neck, she burst into tears...
