

Snatched 841

Chapter 841 We Are Even?

"You saved me once, and now I've saved you. We're even now. We don't owe each other anything."

Georgia whispered as she helped Efren up.

It seemed that Efren heard Georgia's words, as the crease between his eyebrows that appeared when he lost consciousness did not disappear.

Thirty minutes later, the private doctor arranged by the hotel started treating Efren.

"The patient is just suffering from weakened immunity due to overwork, resulting in a viral infection. As long as he rests well during this period, he will recover soon."

The doctor said after giving Efren a fever-reducing injection.

But Georgia still asked, "Do we really not need to go to the hospital?"

"No, with this gentleman's physical condition, he will recover completely after resting for two days."

The doctor assured her, but he left a few fever-reducing pills for Georgia before leaving.

"If he develops a high fever again at midnight, give him one of these pills."

Georgia nodded, "I see."

It seemed that her plan to leave today had been ruined.

After giving Efren some water, Georgia took the opportunity to cancel their booked flight tickets.

It was already late at night, and Georgia began to feel sleepy.

But she still set a few alarm clocks and got up every half hour to measure Efren's temperature.

At three in the morning, just as the doctor predicted, Efren's temperature rose feverishly.

Georgia quickly took out the fever-reducing medicine and tried to feed it to him.

But Efren didn't cooperate.

Georgia could only coax him softly, "Efren, you'll feel better if you take it."

Finally, Efren opened his mouth and took the medicine as if he heard her voice.

Georgia still worried and moistened a towel to place on his forehead.

She continued to be busy until dawn when Efren's temperature finally dropped.

She breathed a sigh of relief and could no longer resist her sleepiness, falling asleep by his bedside.

Efren had a dream.

In his dream, his girl was by his side again.

She didn't look at him with fear but spoke to him in a gentle and soothing voice.

It felt so good.

If this was a dream, Efren really hoped he would never wake up.

As the sunlight shone through the window, he opened his eyes, realizing that he was still on the small island, guarding Georgia.

Everything that Georgia did last night was just his dream.

Disappointed, he reached his hand to rub his brow.

In a surprising turn, he discovered Georgia resting beside his bed.

Looking at the medicine tablets and the water basin with a wet towel left around, he recalled the discomfort he felt yesterday morning...

So he got sick last night, and Georgia took care of him all night?

At that moment, a faint excitement stirred in Efren's heart.

He was sick, but Georgia didn't take the opportunity to run away. This proved that she still had him in her heart.

Seeing the dark circles under Georgia's eyes, Efren felt heartbroken.

After much consideration, he carefully picked Georgia up and placed her on the bed.

Perhaps it was her presence that made him feel at ease, or maybe it was the effect of the fever-reducing medicine still at work.

Originally, Efren wanted to look at Georgia a little longer, but in the end, he couldn't resist holding her in his arms and falling into a deep slumber.

Georgia didn't sleep peacefully that night. She kept smelling Efren's scent and had dreams of the day he forced himself on her, abruptly waking up!

"No..."

Chapter 842 Georgia Said to Break Up?

Efren woke up as soon as he heard Georgia's exclamation.

He asked, "Georgia, what's wrong?"

He quickly sat up, wanting to hold Georgia in his arms.

But when Georgia saw that it was him, his appearance immediately overlapped with terrible scenes in her dream.

She said, "No..."

"Do not come!"

She dodged back in panic.

Efren realized and quickly stopped.

"I won't touch you, don't be afraid. Calm down!"

Seeing that he stopped, Georgia gradually calmed down, remembering Efren's fever last night.

Even so, she was still full of defense against Efren.

"Since you were awake, I'm going back."

She lifted the quilt and ran out.

But how could Efren let her leave?

He immediately stood in front of Georgia, clutching her wrist tightly.

"According to the frightened look on her face, it was estimated that once she left, she would flee to the ends of the earth again and even hide in places where I couldn't find her.

"I can give her freedom, but only if I can see her!" Efren thought.

But when Georgia saw him blocking her, she panicked and asked, "You... What else do you want to do?"

"Georgia, I won't hurt you. It was an accident that night. I admit that I was so stimulated by the scene that I couldn't calm down, and my mind was not clear enough, so I listened to that person's words.

"I regret every moment now that I treated you so cruelly. Especially when I saw you were afraid of me, my heart was torn with grief.

"But Georgia, the reason why I got so angry that I lost control is because I love you too much..."

After confessing, Efren went straight to the point.

"Georgia, I know you still love me. Otherwise, you wouldn't have stayed to take care of me last night.

So please give me another chance. I will definitely not do anything to make you angry in the future."

Georgia was silent for a long time before responding to him.

"I think you misunderstood. I stayed to take care of you last night, not because I still love you, but because you have helped me before, and now I have repaid your favor. In this way, we will not owe each other when we break up..."

The word "break up" made Efren feel uncertain.

"Break up? Do you want to break up with me?"

"Well, I really don't know how to get along with you now, and I think we are really not suitable."

After staying in the hotel for many days, Georgia gradually understood that blindly avoiding the problem could not solve it. It was better to speak out openly.

"Can't you really forgive me?" Efren felt so cold for the first time.

But this kind of coldness was not felt on the surface of his body, but the kind of coldness from the heart.

"I can't help it. As long as I close my eyes, I will remember how terrifying you were that night, and my legs trembled when I saw you. So... can you let me go?"

Georgia's voice was very soft, liked the feeling of a feather falling on the skin.

But in Efren's ears, it was so heavy.

Before he came to meet Georgia, he also imagined what she would say to refuse to reconcile.

And he was prepared that no matter what Georgia said, he would not agree to break up.

But he never thought that Georgia would beg him to leave...

"She was the girl I doted on in my heart!

"Since she didn't understand love, I protected her.

"I secretly created all kinds of surprises for her to make her laugh.

"How could I be willing to see her cry and hear her begging me?" Efren thought.

So no matter how reluctant he was, he gave her free...

Chapter 843 Pie in the Sky?

The moment her hands were free, Georgia walked away.

She left softly, but she still took Efren's entire world with her.

Later that afternoon, Georgia left the southern island by plane and returned to New York.

However, Efren lived alone on the island for a long time.

In this exotic country, he was also busy with work every day.

Some people might ask him, since he worked abroad, why not return to New York to work?

But Efren actually wanted to go back to New York.

But he was afraid that once he returned home, he couldn't help but want to see Georgia.

So he could only restrain himself in this unfamiliar country, not looking or thinking about Georgia, hoping to forget her, and also hoping to let her go as she wished.

Of course, during this period, he didn't just work and do nothing else.

How could he let off the person who made him break up with the girl he liked?

On the night when Georgia returned to New York, Efren sent his men to find Lenard.

Lenard was sent to the hospital by Susan before and after treatment. He was conscious.

As soon as he woke up, he asked Susan.

"When will you give me 3.3 million dollars, and when will you send our family abroad?"

There was no other reason. The angry appearance of the man that night was scary.

Lenard thought that if he didn't leave New York quickly, he would most likely die tragically.

But Susan said, "I'm already raising money. You can find a place to hide now. I will contact you after I have arranged everything."

Lenard could only follow what she said and hid in a private hotel that didn't even need an ID card.

Those days, he dared not even order takeout and could only rely on expired bread and mineral water to make a living.

Although life was hard, when he thought that he would be able to go abroad after a while and live a prosperous life with 3.3 million dollars, he felt that the taste of this bread was not bad.

After only hiding for a few days, Lenard couldn't bear to contact Susan again, but Susan changed her attitude.

She said, "I don't have any money, and I can't get an air ticket. If you want to live, you have to find a place to hide yourself."

Lenard was angry. "Are you pie in the sky from the beginning?"

"Yes, you are stupid and greedy. Who can give you such a large amount of money?"

Susan's words made Lenard not know what to say.

He thought Susan was from Georgia's side, so he believed she could easily give him 3.3 million dollars!

"But not to mention that I couldn't get any money now. I also completely offended Georgia.

"Even if I could escape that man in the future, I won't be able to find a decent job to make a living!" He thought.

In desperation, Lenard could only threaten Susan.

"If you don't give me money, then I'll go and tell Georgia and that man that you asked me to create conflicts between them! Let them see the real feature of you."

But Susan was not threatened. "Come on, believe it or not, as long as you appear in front of Mr.

Serrano, you will immediately become food for the tiger he raises in Cloudville."

"Murder is against the law. Anyway, I don't believe your nonsense."

"In Cloudville, Efren is the law. If you don't believe it, you can try it."

Before hanging up the phone, Susan said, "Besides, you probably don't know that Efren has liked Georgia for many years and has been waiting for her to grow up. You took advantage of this opportunity, and he hated you..."

Chapter 844 Continue to Hide?

"... Later, he finally waited for you to break up with Georgia and then dated her, but you created such a big misunderstanding for them that Georgia insisted on breaking up with him. Now he hates you so much. There are many people searching for you in the whole city!"

After Susan's words, Lenard felt as if a basin of ice water was poured over his head.

He yelled. "You told me that Georgia cheated on me! If I hadn't listened to your nonsense, I wouldn't have done those things."

"It turned out that Georgia had never been sorry to me and even gave me such an easy and high-paying job regardless of the past.

"As long as I lived in peace and contentment, I could start my business and live a prosperous life if I earned enough money for the rest of my life.

"But Susan's appearance destroyed everything again!

"Now I can't wait to kill her." He thought.

However, Susan still laughed at him. "That's why I said you are stupid. You believe what others say, and you don't even think about whether the person you know is someone who would do such a thing."

"You..." Lenard was furious, but he could only speak roughly, "I will definitely kill you!"

"Come on! Do you believe it or not, as soon as you appear in public now, Efren will chop you up and feed you to the tiger?"

Susan also said, "Idiot, if you want to survive, just keep hiding. I don't have time to accompany you."

Then, Susan hung up the phone, took out the SIM card from the phone, and threw it directly into the river in front of her.

From the beginning, she used a number card that did not need to register her name when she called Lenard, and she was ready to leave safely.

Only Lenard foolishly thought that she would really pay him 3.3 million dollars and send his whole family abroad.

Seeing the phone card disappear quickly in the turbulent river, Susan smiled and left...

After Georgia returned to New York, she devoted herself to her work.

Her diligent appearance of leaving early and returning late made people wonder if she was switched.

In the middle of one night, Nora couldn't sleep and went downstairs to drink water. She encountered

Georgia, who had just come back from the outside, and hurriedly dragged her into the living room to chat.

"Georgia, what are you doing these days?"

Recently, when Nora woke up, Georgia had already gone out to work. When she fell asleep at night, Georgia had not returned.

Although they lived under the same roof, Nora felt that she hadn't seen her granddaughter for a long time.

"The company is on the right track. As a boss, I should take the lead in making a breakthrough."

Georgia said.

"But our family is not short of money. Look at how thin you have become recently."

Nora felt distressed when she saw Georgia had lost weight recently.

"Although our family is not short of money, I am a young person, and of course, I also need to gain my own career."

Georgia vowed solemnly, which made her feel a headache.

Nora said, "Career and deeds cannot be at the expense of health. Dear, you can allocate work to other people, and you should take a few days off."

"Grandma, I'll take a break after I'm done with this job. Now I'm leading this plan, and it can't be allocated."

Nora's persuasion failed, so she asked Cora to go to the company to find Georgia the next day.

At that time, Georgia was listening to the secretary talking about today's itinerary when Cora pushed the door in.

"Busy person, see what I have brought you?" Cora said.

Chapter 845 Lady Model Worker!

"Auntie, why are you here?" Georgia asked.

When Georgia saw Cora, she stepped forward with joy and took her arm.

Cora joked, "I've been dating you a few times lately, and you have stood me up. Do you know that your reputation with me has already fallen below the issuance value, making you a no-show? So I'll date you and come straight over."

"Auntie, I've been really busy recently, sorry."

Georgia apologized repeatedly and asked the secretary to make coffee for Cora.

"Your grandma said that you have lost weight recently, but I still don't believe it yet. But take a look at you, what you look like now. Hurry up and drink this porridge. This is the seafood porridge made by your grandmother."

Cora sat down and looked at Georgia up close and became worried.

Because Georgia not only lost a lot of weight but also had a bad complexion.

"Auntie, I just lost weight successfully!" Georgia argued.

"You weren't fat before! Hurry up and drink the porridge first."

The Hansen family had a nutritionist to control the calorie intake, so no matter how much Georgia ate, she would not gain weight.

Therefore, she apparently lost weight as she was busy these days.

But after Georgia took a few sips, she lost her appetite.

"It's hard for me to go back to report your grandma until you finish it." Cora urged.

"Auntie, please. I really can't eat..." Georgia said.

"Are you disappointed in love again?" Cora suddenly asked.

This made the smile on Georgia's face that she was striving to maintain disappear in an instant.

"How did you know it?"

"It's hard not to know it, okay? If someone is disappointed in love, they won't recover. In contrast, you turned into a model worker!"

The last time when Georgia and Lenard broke up, it was also like this that she wished to regard her career as her life, so it was difficult for Cora not to notice the clues.

"But if I don't work hard, I will think much. Instead of wasting time on meaningless things, it's better to focus on my career."

Georgia smiled.

In fact, two days before returning to New York, she had rested at home.

But whether she opened her eyes or closed her eyes in those days, she would always think of Efren, thinking of the happiness they had together, and then thinking of his persistent behavior no matter how she explained it, and then thinking back to those days when he was at the southern island by her side...

She was sad and couldn't relieve herself because she didn't know how she and Efren came to this point.

Those nights, she shed tears on her face, and every day she lived badly!

She couldn't bear her spineless look, and she regarded love as more important than life, and she was afraid of her parents worrying her.

That's why she decided to devote all her time to her career so that she would have no time to think about her love.

Although she thought of Efren occasionally, she was only in a trance for a while.

After all, she was so busy that she had no time to be anxious and uneasy about men.

Georgia was satisfied with her current state. She was so busy that she didn't even have enough time to sleep every day, and she was extremely sleepy. As soon as she got home, she fell asleep...

Even though people around her said that she had lost weight and worried about her health, she persisted.

She believed that as long as she persisted for a while, she would soon completely forget Efren.

She only thought about him a dozen times today, much less than before...

Chapter 846 Hiding Her Husband?

"It's good to be ambitious," Cora said. "But it's not easy to forget someone in a day or two. Moreover, forgetting doesn't mean you never think of him again. It means you feel nothing when you do."

Her words made Georgia, who was sipping soup, pause.

"Auntie, is this from your own experience?" She asked.

At that time, Georgia was just beginning to feel pleased with herself for thinking less about Efren daily.

She thought that she could bury Efren deep in the river of memory in a few more days.

But now, all of that seemed far away.

"I suppose you could say that," Cora responded. "But if you truly like him, give him another chance.

The odds of meeting someone you truly like in this life are slim."

Georgia replied, "I'm not sure he really likes me."

Georgia had many friends, but none like Cora, whom she felt like confiding.

Cora smiled, "Mr. Serrano seems to like you a lot. Don't worry."

Georgia was taken aback. "Auntie, how did you know that?"

Cora explained, "When two people truly like each other, they can't hide it in their eyes. I've thought he had feelings for you since I first saw him."

This made Georgia feel excited again.

But those feelings soon faded.

No matter how much Efren liked her, he ignored her explanations. He was arbitrarily assertive.

She decided not to reconcile with him anymore!

"Auntie, let's not talk about him anymore. It's pointless," she insisted.

Cora wanted to advise her more, but seeing Georgia's reluctance, she finally gave up.

"Alright, let's not talk about him. Finish your soup quickly. Come with me for treatment. I can't find anyone to accompany me to the beauty salon if you don't come," she said.

"Okay..."

Georgia hurriedly finished her soup to prevent Cora from bringing up Efren again. She went with Cora to get a beauty treatment, shop, and eat heartily.

However, just after she finished eating with Cora and was about to return to the Hansen Mansion, she received a call from Layla.

"Georgia, did you hide Lenard? You wretch, how could you ruin someone's family?" Layla accused.

"What nonsense are you talking about?" Georgia responded.

"If you don't give Lenard back to me, I'll expose you. You use the identity of the Hansen family heiress to maliciously suppress and steal other people's husbands and children's fathers!"

Lenard had been missing for a while, and Layla found that her calls to him were being blocked.

Initially, Layla didn't care much. Her marriage to Lenard was in name only.

Moreover, given Lenard's current health condition, he wouldn't be able to handle heavy work and, therefore wouldn't have a promising future.

Layla had already planned to have the baby, send it to an orphanage, and then marry a wealthy old man using her youth and beauty.

Once the old man died, she would inherit his property and live a rich and leisurely life.

But unexpectedly, she heard from someone else that Lenard was working at Georgia's company...

Thus, Layla and her family suspected that Georgia had feelings for Lenard and decided to blackmail Georgia.

They heard that rich people cared a lot about their reputations.

So even if Georgia had no feelings for Lenard, the fact that Lenard was working at her company made it seem like she was hiding a married man.

To prevent Layla and her family from spreading rumors, Georgia needed to give them at least several million dollars...

Chapter 847 Guilty Conscience?

Layla didn't expect that Georgia would not even bother to continue talking to her. She just hung up the phone.

Layla's parents, Jennifer and Hadley, rushed to her quickly, asking, "What happened?"

"She just thinks I'm crazy, and then she hung up," Layla said.

"She must be guilty then."

After Jennifer analyzed the situation, she added, "Let's make a scene at her company tomorrow! I don't believe she can hide Lenard forever!"

Hadley wasn't very supportive of making a scene at Georgia's company. He was afraid of fully angering the people from the Hansen family.

"I think this approach is inappropriate. Should we try to talk to Georgia privately?"

The consequence of angering the Hansen family before was losing the achievements of his decades of hard work. Now, his family was living in a low-rent house.

So, Hadley was very worried. If they upset the Hansen family again, they wouldn't even be able to face the consequences.

"What are we going to talk about? Do you think that jerk will really have a proper conversation with us?"

Jennifer asked angrily.

When she found out that Lenard was working at Georgia's company these past few days, she purposely went there to stake out.

She didn't see Lenard. Instead, she saw Georgia looking thinner, more beautiful, and covered in luxury items.

In comparison, she and Layla lived in a cheap rental, wearing clothes they'd bought from street stalls. It was a world of difference.

So, Jennifer started feeling despair.

They might be ruined together if they didn't make a fortune from Lenard's situation and return to their previous luxurious life.

"You're afraid of the Hansen family, but Layla and I aren't anymore. People are bound to die eventually.

I just want to live well these few decades. If I can't live well, I might as well die sooner and be reborn," she said.

Layla agreed, "Yes, I think the same. Moreover, it was Georgia who was wrong in the first place this time. We just need to make a big deal out of this point, and I don't believe the Hansen family will stay silent!"

Hadley was probably infected by the determination of these two. His last concerns disappeared.

"Fine then. The shoeless aren't afraid of those who wear shoes. If it doesn't work out in the end, then so be it."

The time he fainted at the Hansen Mansion, even though he was rescued later, he needed to take much medicine every day now to keep his body functioning.

The cost of these medicines was not small. If their family didn't quickly find their next source of income, he would have to stop his medication.

Whether he would live or die then was uncertain. It was better to make a big move now while he could still move. Maybe he could return to his previous worry-free life in the next life!

After the family discussed it, they created some props to fuel the fire...

On the other side, Georgia looked upset after hanging up the phone, and Cora noticed it.

"What happened?"

"Layla is demanding Lenard from me!"

At the mention of Lenard, Georgia's expression turned even worse.

If Lenard had betrayed her before, Georgia might have had some old affection left for him.

But this time, Lenard said all those messy words in front of Efren, causing her and Efren to break up completely. It also ruined Georgia's last bit of affection for him.

"She is demanding Lenard from you? What's the reason?"

"Who knows what she's thinking? She said he worked at my company before, and now that he's gone, she wants me to be responsible!"

Cora was surprised. "He was working at your company before? Did you know?"

Georgia looked a bit embarrassed. "I knew it was my mistake. I let him work at my company... But I understand now that people to be pitied usually deserve it. It's not necessary to be overly compassionate."

"As long as you understand, that's good." After Cora comforted Georgia, they returned to the Hansen Mansion together.

In the blink of an eye, it was the next day. Georgia had returned to her old hardworking lifestyle and was in the office early in the morning.

She didn't expect that at ten in the morning, her secretary would come in with a hurried expression and say, "Ms. Georgia Hansen, three people are causing a scene outside the company..."

Chapter 848 A Stab in the Back?

"Send the security staff out to drive them away," Georgia said casually.

She wasn't paying attention, busy reviewing some reports.

Her secretary hesitated instead of notifying the security personnel.

After flipping through the reports, Georgia noticed the secretary hadn't left. "What's the matter?"

Anything else?" She asked.

The secretary looked troubled. "Ms. Georgia Hansen, it's not that I won't get the security team. But one of those people is pregnant. If anything happens to the baby, we could be in trouble."

"Moreover, they've unfurled a large banner. It says you've hidden a pregnant woman's husband.

There's quite a crowd at the company entrance..."

Upon hearing this, Georgia immediately knew who was causing the fuss.

She slammed the report onto the table and said, "I'll take a look."

Soon, Georgia saw Layla and her family downstairs at the company.

A crowd had gathered around the company entrance.

Some were employees in company uniforms, and some were just passersby.

Layla and her family were very busy.

A banner that read, [Pleading for the company president, Ms. Georgia, to return my husband Lenard!]

was held at each end by Jennifer and Hadley.

Layla was holding Lenard's picture, tearfully accusing Georgia of her crimes. It looked as if she was seeking justice for her dead husband.

Because of this, people started to gather around.

"What happened? So he's been hidden away? I thought he was dead."

"Is this real? The guy looks pretty average. The company president is rich. She could have any man she wanted. Why hide someone else's husband?"

The bystanders were confused and incredulous.

Until an employee whispered, "Even though I also think the guy is ordinary, Ms. Georgia Hansen did ask us to have him count inventory in the warehouse."

Then, everyone believed it was true and began pointing fingers at Georgia.

"She's so pretty, but why do such disgraceful things?"

"Some people rely on money and power to do whatever they want!"

"People with bad characters always covet what others have."

Hearing the crowd attacking Georgia, Layla was overjoyed.

Yes!

Just like this!

Once Georgia couldn't stand the finger-pointing, she would use the money to get rid of them.

This feeling of getting something for nothing was simply too great.

At that moment, Georgia angrily stormed over, snatched the banner, and tore it to pieces.

"You distort the truth! How can you be so shameless? You and Lenard secretly got married behind my back. If I hadn't caught you, I would still be the deceived girlfriend."

Everyone looked at Layla with suspicion upon hearing this.

Although embarrassed, Layla quickly swore, "Regardless, we are married and have a child. No matter how much you like Lenard, you shouldn't do this."

Layla got so caught up in the drama that she even knelt before Georgia in front of everyone as she spoke.

"Please, Ms. Georgia Hansen, give me back my child's father. I can't let my child lose his father before birth."

Layla's pregnancy was visible, and her kneeling made many pretend to be sympathetic.

"Just give her back the child's father. You're beautiful and rich. You can have any man in the future."

"If you don't return the child's father, we will expose you!"

Some even took out their phones, ready to take pictures of the scene.

Chapter 849 Let the Villain Grind!

Georgia was close to tears. "I did not hide Lenard. He hurt me. I want to find him too..."

But her explanation was seen as a cover-up by others.

"Would you let him work in your company if he hurt you? You lie without a second thought!"

Some even said, "Young girls these days are incredible. They can lie without feeling ashamed."

Georgia felt attacked by all. The Kardon family seemed almost overjoyed at her distress.

Jennifer twisted the truth. "My husband was once a manager of a listed company. He lost his job because of your family, had a stroke, and spent all our savings."

Hadley joined the onslaught against Georgia. His eyes turned red.

"I could overlook your past actions. But now, you hide my son-in-law. Are you trying to drive us to a dead end?"

With the Kardon family's remarks, the crowd turned hostile. They looked ready to tear her apart.

Georgia was almost in tears.

Suddenly, a familiar male voice rang out from the crowd.

"Quite rare to see a whole family twisting facts like this."

Everyone turned toward the voice. Georgia spun around too.

Because she recognized the voice... It was Efren!

When she turned, she indeed saw Efren walking toward them.

He was tall, with long legs, exuding extraordinary charisma.

Seeing him, the crowd gave way.

He was striding toward Georgia, just like in their moments of love.

But Georgia didn't want him to see her in such a state after their separation. She held back her tears and stepped forward.

"Why are you interfering? This isn't your business!"

"How is this not my business?" Efren saw Georgia's red-rimmed eyes, his heart aching.

He wished to embrace and comfort her.

But he knew that Georgia wouldn't let him touch her.

"We broke up," Georgia emphasized.

"Yes, we broke up. But you know me, right? If they make you cry, it's my business!"

Efren tried to touch Georgia's nose as usual.

But this time, Georgia moved her face away.

"I don't need your intervention!"

Efren withdrew his hand, embarrassed. "I'll take care of this."

As Efren was about to approach Layla's family, Georgia hurried forward. "How can you deal with this?

Don't make things worse!"

In Georgia's eyes, Layla's family was like leeches, clinging on and hard to shake off.

She didn't want Efren to be as unfortunate as her, so she tried to stop him.

But Efren just gently tapped her head. "Georgia, you must have heard the saying, 'Let the villain grind!'"

He wouldn't make some things clear to Georgia, afraid to frighten her.

But for the others...

He had never shown mercy!

Efren walked past Georgia straight to Layla's family.

Layla thought he was a helper Georgia had found. When he approached, she wasn't bothered initially.

"Who are you? I warn you. I'm pregnant now! If you dare do anything to me, I..."

Before she could finish, a group of people barged in and started beating Layla's family.

Even Layla herself was grabbed by her hair and slapped repeatedly.

Chapter 850 The Whole Family Gets Slapped!

"How could you be so cruel? She's pregnant, and yet you're attacking her openly?"

A passerby pretending to be kind started making a fuss.

But then, one of Efren's men turned around and asked him menacingly, "You want to take the beating for her?"

The pretending-to-be-kind man became quiet after this.

Some nosy people tried to film the incident with their phones secretly. But one of Efren's men approached them and snatched their phones away.

"What are you filming? Since you like filming so much, do you want me to film you getting beaten?"

This person also fell silent right away.

The rest of the onlookers were scared of provoking these people and dispersed.

Watching everyone leave, Layla's family started to become scared.

"Please, stop hitting us."

"We won't stir up trouble with rumors anymore. I can even write a letter of assurance if you need it."

Hadley and Jennifer couldn't stop the beating and started begging for mercy.

Layla also said, "Stop hitting me. If you continue, my baby might not survive. I know I was wrong."

Please stop hitting me."

These people only slapped her face. They didn't hit her elsewhere, proving they didn't want to harm her unborn child.

But with all the slaps, she felt her head was about to fly off. She felt she might lose her life if they kept hitting her.

Plus, these people looked so vicious, as if they were ready to take a life.

However, even though they begged desperately, Efren didn't call a halt.

The screams of the family of three were so awful that even Georgia couldn't bear to watch.

Especially when Layla cried and begged her, "Miss Georgia Hansen, please ask them to stop. I won't dare to mess with you again."

"Even if I can't avoid punishment, can they at least wait until after I give birth?"

Seeing Layla as weak and powerless, Georgia finally gathered the courage to persuade Efren.

"Enough, stop hitting them!"

Efren simply brushed away the hair hanging down her face. "Georgia, evil people don't deserve sympathy."

Afraid that she would fall for his tender gaze again, Georgia quickly turned her face away.

"I know that, but she's pregnant. Let her go this once."

And since Efren taught them such a harsh lesson, Georgia believed Layla and her family wouldn't dare mess with her again.

Efren kept staring at Georgia's beautiful eyes for a moment before he finally spoke, "If you want me to spare you, tell me where Lenard is."

As soon as Efren spoke, his men stopped beating them.

Layla's family thought for a moment that they had escaped death.

But when they heard Efren's demand clearly, all three of them nearly broke into tears.

"If we knew where Lenard was, we wouldn't have come looking for Miss Georgia Hansen."

"Lenard has been missing for a month now. I found out after making many inquiries that he was working at Miss Georgia Hansen's company."

"Sir, we don't know where Lenard is. Please spare us."

Upon hearing them mention that Lenard had been working at Georgia's company, Efren turned his gaze back to Georgia.

When Georgia caught Efren's gaze, she spoke straightforwardly,

"He came to me before, saying he had hurt his leg and couldn't do heavy work. I felt sorry for him, so I arranged for him to do a lighter job. But after he repaid kindness with ingratitude, he never returned to the company. Whether you believe it or not, that's the truth!"