

Snatched 961

Chapter 961 Promising

"Remember to attend on time tomorrow." Byron handed the invitation card to Cora.

Cora flipped through it. "The new product press conference of Sunda Group in New York?"

Sally also glanced at the invitation card eagerly and then asked wonderingly, "Could it be that what Matt said is true? Mr. Hansen, are you the founder of Sunda Group?"

Byron didn't answer directly but just said with a smile, "Tomorrow, you'll find out if you accompany Cora to have a look. The driver is here."

Byron also took the initiative to open the car door for them.

Cora and Sally could only follow in the car.

After Sally got into the car, she was still muttering, "Oh my god, I feel like I'm promising. I asked Mr.

Hansen to open the car door for me."

Then, she went back to the main topic and said, "Cora, I always feel that Matt was right. Mr. Hansen is probably the founder of Sunda Group."

Cora handed the phone to Sally. "I don't think it's possible. You see, this is the information of the Sunda Group that I found on the Internet."

Matt was so swearing just now, and Byron personally sent her an invitation card for the press conference. Cora also doubted it.

So, after she got in the car, she searched for it on the Internet.

She did not find the information of the founder of Sunda Group. But there were many legends about the founder of Sunda Group.

Some people said that they met the founder of Sunda Group, saying that he was over sixty years old, with sharp eyes, which was very scary.

Someone also said that the founder of Sunda Group was an old lady who founded Sunda Group together with her husband...

But among all kinds of rumors, there was only one with similar conditions to Byron.

After Sally saw the rumors on the Internet, she stopped talking about this topic.

Soon, the two returned to the Yoris Mansion.

When Sally saw Martin, she hugged Martin and kissed him madly, kissing Martin's face so that his face was covered with lipstick marks.

"Martin, why do you grow and become more handsome? I will take you back to be my son-in-law. Tell me, what kind of girl do you like?"

During the intense discussion between Martin and Sally, Sara also brought them soup and various snacks.

"Both of you drink some hangover soup and have some snacks. I know you haven't seen each other for a long time, so there must be endless things to talk about. I'll take Martin to bed first."

Sally thanked her. After Sara left the room, she sighed, "She looked like a good mother now."

"Well, she is very good to me and Martin and so are the others. No matter what decision I make, she will support me."

These were all the ease and joy that Cora had never felt by Flora's side before.

"Some people use their childhood to heal their whole life, and some people use their whole life to heal their childhood. You, it's the latter now. But it looked like it should have been healed gradually."

This night, Sally and Cora kept chatting, from their respective emotions, to their children, and then to their families.

It wasn't until dawn that the two fell asleep.

Just after eight o'clock, Cora's cell phone rang.

Cora squinted her eyes, found her phone, and looked. It was Byron calling her.

As soon as she connected, his gentle voice came from the phone, "Cora, haven't you woke up yet?

Didn't you agree today that you will come to the new product launch press conference of Sunda

Group?"

Chapter 962 Verify

Cora squinted her eyes. She was sleepy and confused. Her voice became a little hoarse and irritable.

"I didn't agree. I talked with Sally too late last night and wanted to sleep."

But Byron still coaxed patiently, "Wait until the press conference is over before going to bed, okay? Just come over and have a look. I'll send someone to pick you up."

"But what's so interesting about the press conference? I'm not interested in smart home."

Cora was old-fashioned. Even if the smart home developed by Sunda Group was popular all over the world, she would not have those products in her room.

"Yes, you'll know when you come." Byron's voice was still gentle.

"I..." She didn't want to go.

When Cora wanted to say that, Sally also woke up.

Hearing that Cora had been talking about the new product launch event of Sunda Group, she immediately remembered the speculation from last night and became interested.

"Are you going to the new product launch event? Go, Cora. I also want to see what the press conference looks like."

Sally took Cora's phone directly, and communicated directly with Byron, "Mr. Hansen, I will bring Cora to you right now. Remember to leave a seat for me too. It would be better if you can give me a set of products."

"The best seat is reserved for you. As for the products, if you bring Cora here, I will take care of all your smart products in the future. All new products will be the first for your family to try."

Sally was different from Cora. She liked smart home products the most.

So she had already bought a lot of smart home products, including many products under the name of Sunda Group.

However, the smart home products under the name of Sunda Group were more expensive, because they were facing high-end people.

So every time Sally compared the cost performance, she finally chose other lower-grade products.

But she was still a diehard fan of Sunda Group.

Therefore, when she heard Byron's promise, she felt so happy.

"No problem. No matter what happens, I will bring Cora to the press conference. Mr. Hansen, wait for my good news!"

Then, Sally helped Cora hang up the call.

As a result, when she turned around, Cora was lying on the bed again.

"Cora, get up quickly."

Sally pulled Cora.

Cora hummed, "You sold me just for a set of smart products, right?"

"Not really. Cora, don't you want to verify our guess?"

Sally's words made Cora a little shaken.

So, in the end, Cora was dragged to the press conference by Sally.

It was Carter who received the two.

"Please go this way. Your seats are over there."

When Carter led them to their seats, the two couldn't help feeling a little puzzled.

"Carter, this seat... Are you sure you didn't make a mistake?"

"That's right. You see, the executives of Sunda Group are all sitting in the back seats. We are sitting so close to the front. We don't come here to do wholesale business!"

Cora and Sally asked one after another. But Carter said, "Don't worry, the seats are arranged like this.

Sit down first, and I'll get someone to bring you drinks."

"Go and do your work. Don't worry about us. We will figure it out ourselves." Cora said hastily.

There were a lot of people at the press conference. There were still many people asking him questions along the way Carter led them.

Carter didn't dare to delay and left soon.

Not long after Carter left, the host announced, "The press conference starts now..."

Chapter 963 Did a Lot

Following the host's words, those media people from all over the world immediately aimed their cameras at the stage of the press conference.

Even near where Cora and Sally were sitting, there were a few media people who recorded every moment on the stage with their cameras and expressed their excitement.

"Great, I finally got to see the founder of Sunda Group."

"I waited for several years just to take a picture of him. But after several years, I didn't even capture a single back view."

"I thought that I would never know who this mysterious founder is in this life. But I never thought that I still have such a sacred opportunity..."

Listening to the discussion, Sally kept looking around. "Cora, where is Mr. Hansen? He called you to come over to watch the press conference. Why isn't he here?"

"I don't know what's going on."

Cora looked around but still didn't see Byron. She felt more and more that it should be as she thought that Byron was not the founder of Sunda Group at all.

At this time, the host announced, "Now we invite the founder of our Sunda Group to come up and introduce our new product."

As the host said, everyone at the press conference applauded to welcome the founder.

However, in this lively atmosphere, Byron walked up in a black suit. He was tall with a handsome face.

There were no gorgeous accessories. But it seemed that he had his light, making people unconsciously focus on him.

It was just that the moment they saw the man clearly, almost everyone present was stunned.

"What's going on here? Why is Mr. Hansen coming up?"

"Isn't Mr. Hansen just the person in charge of the domestic part of Sunda Group? Didn't Sunda Group keep declaring today that their founder will come?"

The discussion became louder and louder until Byron began to introduce himself.

"Hello! Everyone, I am the domestic director of Sunda Group and the founder of Sunda Group, Byron Hansen!"

A concise self-introduction made everyone at the press conference a little dumbfounded.

"What! Byron is not only the domestic director of Sunda Group, but also the founder of Sunda Group?"

"Since it's the founder, why didn't Mr. Hansen say anything from the beginning?"

"Rich people probably like to play low-key. My God!"

Not only was there a lot of exclamation at the press conference, but even the simultaneous live broadcast of the press conference on the Internet was world-renowned.

From the major search engines to the headlines of various foreign news, there was all flash news about Byron being the founder of Sunda Group.

Even Matt, who was on duty at the hospital at this time, saw the news and rushed to Tyler's office.

"Look, I'm right! He is the founder of Sunda Group!"

Matt also said, "He hides so many secrets. He must not be sincere to Cora. You should seize the opportunity now and confess your love to Cora."

But after Matt said so much, Tyler just stared at his phone screen and said, "There is no chance."

Matt wondered and said, "He didn't do anything. Why don't you have a chance?"

Tyler said, "You saw that he didn't do anything. But in fact, he did countless things that we couldn't see."

"I do not understand what you're saying!"

Matt didn't understand what happened to Tyler. So he simply watched the live broadcast of the press conference, only to find that in addition to explaining new products, this press conference of Sunda

Group even mentioned Sunda Group's donation of scholarship to the medical school.

Chapter 964 The Origin of Sunda Group

At the same time, at the scene of Sunda Group's press conference...

The giant screen was displaying some donations made by Sunda Group over the years, but Byron brought up the previous scholarship to New York Medical College.

"Actually, I feel a little guilty about this donation. I only helped their scholarship because my wife, Mrs.

Hansen, was studying there."

As soon as these words came out, there was quite an uproar at the press conference.

Sally excitedly grabbed Cora's hand. "Cora, he said that he gave our school a scholarship because of you! Did you hear that?"

But Cora was still confused.

She had received scholarships for so many years. But she never thought that these scholarships were supported by Byron.

So, did this man know her many years ago?

Cora looked at the man on the stage in astonishment, and the man happened to be looking at her too.

In his eyes, there was a tenderness that couldn't be concealed at all.

And the question that Cora was curious about was also something that many media was particularly curious about.

So they couldn't wait and started asking questions.

"Mr. Hansen, do you mean that you knew Mrs. Hansen at that time? That's why you offered a scholarship to the medical school, right?"

"Mr. Hansen, is Mrs. Hansen Dr. Lane? But as far as we know, you haven't held a wedding yet!"

"If you like Mrs. Hansen so much, why did you cheat so often?"

The questions were very sharp.

So even Carter was a little worried that Byron would be angry on the spot.

These questions were not in the speech he had prepared before.

But fortunately, because all the questions were related to Cora, Byron was patient.

"Take your time one by one. First, Mrs. Hansen and I have never betrayed each other. The news that has been released during the previous period is also my intention!"

Byron talked eloquently, telling about the recurrence of depression after Cora lost her child and also explaining the treatment plan Johnson said.

In addition, he also said, "In this life, my wife will only be Cora. Regarding the matter of marrying her, I am always on call. I have already drawn up the wedding venue, including the guest list."

Finally, he also explained the scholarship issue.

"Yes, before I offered a scholarship to the medical school, I knew that she was studying in medical school. Even the Sunda Group was named for her."

At this time, Byron's eyes suddenly fell on Cora who was under the stage.

The affection in the deep eyes was like an impenetrable net, completely enveloping Cora.

"I remember the first time I saw Cora. I was attracted by her..."

At that moment, there was a lot of exclamation from almost the audience.

"Gosh, it's so touching."

"I never thought that secret love could be so sweet! It was so warm..."

"Others say that the feelings of rich people cannot be trusted. But now, Mr. Hansen has broken everyone's perception."

Many people shouted directly, "I believe in love again."

In the midst of everyone's emotions, Byron took the bouquet of roses handed to him by Carter and walked slowly towards Cora who was stunned...

Chapter 965 Perfect Reproduction

Cora looked at Byron walking towards her on the stage. Her eyes were red. She felt something.

Even if Matt had guessed something before and revealed it to her, it was not as shocking as Byron's confession.

At this time, Byron had come to her with a bouquet in hand.

"Cora, since I have loved you for many years and have not made any mistakes, can you reconcile with me?"

He knelt in front of Cora on one knee. His charming eyes reflected the figure of Cora alone, and his tone was cautious and sincere.

During the few seconds when Byron walked towards Cora, Cora's mind kept flashing all kinds of things about the two of them over the years.

During this process, although they also had some unhappiness and even broke up, they were more loving and lingering.

Especially during the four years when Byron disappeared, she regretted not being able to love each other well when both of them were alive.

But recently, what happened to her?

Was she crazy?

Two people were alive. So they should stay together!

As long as she worked hard, they could get through all the difficulties.

They still got through the four years.

Thinking of this, Cora took the bouquet from Byron, threw herself into his arms, and burst into tears.

At this moment, Byron felt that his heart, which had been wandering for a long time, had finally returned to shore at this moment.

He couldn't help but kiss Cora in front of so many people at the press conference, and hundreds of millions of people who watched the live broadcast...

Sally watched the whole process and couldn't help but cry.

Byron kissed Cora for a long time. But no one was impatient. They just applauded and cheered for them very excitedly...

At this time, a woman on the Southern Island was also watching the live broadcast of the press conference, which made everyone in the world believe in love again.

The moment she saw Byron's confession, she almost lost control.

Byron said that he liked Cora for so many years.

And his cheating some time ago was just a frequently created illusion, to cure Cora's depression.

Isidra was going crazy with jealousy.

When she saw Byron uncontrollably kissing Cora, she directly smashed her phone to the ground.

After the medical staff heard the sound, they rushed as soon as possible.

"Ma'am, don't get too excited. You can't make an overly intense expression on your face right now, or all the plastic surgery you've done before will be in vain."

After hearing what the medical staff said, Isidra controlled the hideous expression on her face and quickly grabbed the mirror to check her face.

Through the mirror, Isidra saw her face, which was almost identical to Cora's, and her skin was so good.

Now just change to the same hairstyle as Cora in the live broadcast, with their similar heights and her recent liposuction filling. Even Byron should not be able to tell which of them was the real Cora.

Thinking that she would soon be able to replace Cora and get Byron's supreme favor, Isidra began to mutter to herself.

"Byron, I love you blindly. Look, you like this face and this figure, so I will reproduce it perfectly for you!"

Isidra caressed her face lightly and smiled.

"Byron, wait! I'll find you right away. We'll be together soon..."

Chapter 966 Hold It Today

After the press conference was over, Byron took Cora to the backstage of the press conference.

Cora wanted to ask Byron a lot of questions. But she didn't expect to see the Hansen family as soon as she entered backstage, and even the Yoris family also came.

Seeing the two of them coming in, everyone had smiles on their faces.

"It's a happy ending." Nora and Osborn said.

Although they didn't show anything during this time, the two of them were more anxious than anyone else.

Sara and William also beamed.

Although they were quite surprised about Byron suddenly becoming the founder of Sunda Group, they were also quite moved when they heard that he liked Cora very much from the very beginning and had done so many things for Cora.

Furthermore, Byron also explained the scandal some time ago in front of everyone. Cora and everyone in the Yoris family would no longer have to receive those critical looks when they went out, which also made them breathe a sigh of relief.

The point was that the two reconciled. The harmonious appearance also made their parents feel relieved a lot.

"You two should be together in the future. Don't be separated again." William said.

And Georgia excitedly suggested, "Byron, quickly arrange the wedding on the schedule, so as not to have any problems."

Cora blushed. "Georgia, stop it. We have our arrangements!"

But Byron said, "I think Georgia's proposal is quite reasonable. Why don't we hold it today?"

Georgia smiled and said, "Byron, I wanted to say tomorrow or the weekend. But you just said today.

Look, you are the one who can't wait..."

While everyone was laughing, Byron looked at Cora affectionately. "I said before. I will be on call for marrying you at any time! But of course, the sooner, the better."

To live up to the expectations, the Hansen elders choose a good day for the wedding.

Then, the Sunda Group, the Hansen Group, and the Yoris Group collectively sent information that night, announcing that the two would hold a wedding this weekend. At that time, the employees of the Yoris Group, Sunda Group, and Hansen Group would all have a day off to attend their wedding.

As soon as the news came out, it caused quite an uproar on the Internet.

While netizens were discussing their marriage, Cora and Byron had already returned to the LO apartment.

"Where does Martin live at night?" Cora asked Byron with a frown as soon as she entered the house.

Just now after the two of them had dinner together, Cora wanted to bring Martin back. But Georgia forcibly pulled Martin away in the name of not hindering the two of them from cultivating their relationship.

So right now, Cora didn't know where Martin would sleep tonight. She was worried.

Byron held her in his arms, stroking her frowning lightly. "Martin is with Georgia playing with his little brother."

On their way back just now, Georgia sent a video to Byron, telling him and Cora not to worry about Martin, and to enjoy this beautiful night.

Cora thought of something and suddenly asked Byron, "Then tell me, when did you know me?"

After today's press conference, Cora had been thinking about this issue.

But she searched all over her mind, but couldn't find any memories related to Byron.

But logically speaking, with such an outstanding man as Byron, if she had met him head-on, she would never forget him...

Chapter 967 She Remembers

Byron looked at Cora deeply.

"You guess..."

Cora was annoyed and said, "I wish I could guess it. I've been thinking about it all day today, but I don't remember where I met you before. I just remembered the first time you came back with me and refused to marry me!"

The more Cora thought about it, the angrier she became. Cora raised her fist and wanted to hit Byron.

"If you liked me a long time ago, how could you refuse to marry me?"

Cora thought, "If he married me directly back then, we wouldn't have wasted so many years."

That was why the more Cora thought about it, the more suspicious she was about Byron's words, saying that he was secretly falling in love with her.

In the end, Byron grabbed Cora's hand and lightly kissed her ear. "You made it clear at the time that you used me as a tool for revenge. You wanted to dump me after the revenge. How could I agree?"

Cora was taken aback for a moment. She didn't expect that Byron would see through everything.

Byron said, "If I didn't like you, how could I wait for you to get off work every day and go home with you?"

Cora remembered that she always ran into Byron after getting off work, and he specially sent medicine to cure her sprained ankle.

Now, when Cora thought about it, she realized that Byron liked her at the time. Otherwise, according to his status, he wouldn't bother to do those things.

But, after thinking about it so much, Cora still couldn't figure out how Byron knew her before.

She asked Byron again, but Byron told her, "I'm waiting for you to remember it!"

Then, he kissed Cora.

Cora was a little upset, but Byron whispered in her ear, "Relaxed! If you feel any discomfort, you can ask me to stop at any time. I won't force you."

Later, Cora relaxed her mind and body.

When they were enjoying sex, Byron grabbed Cora's hand again and placed it on the scar on his right shoulder.

Cora touched it. Although she still resisted, this time she didn't put her hand away...

Two days later, when Cora was driving to the medical clinic, she ran into a red light.

She stopped the car. While waiting for the green light, she looked at the scenery outside the car window.

At this time, it was time for the students to go to school.

On the side of the road, some students wore school uniforms, talking and laughing in groups of threes and twos.

As for the road sign on the side, it happened to be the intersection leading to the medical school.

Cora suddenly remembered that there had been a murder case of a mental patient out of control at this intersection.

At that time, the mentally ill patient was holding a long knife and attacked anyone he saw.

Regardless of whether one is a student or an office worker, he would attack. More than 20 pedestrians were injured.

Cora was the one who witnessed it back then. She had almost become a victim, but someone saved her and blocked the knife for her.

Maybe it was because the accident was too terrifying. Cora had been thinking of this incident when she passed this intersection.

Whenever she thought of this matter, she would silently thank Eason in her mind.

Cora thought that it was Eason who saved her back then.

But she didn't know this matter from Eason.

The person who saved Cora was slashed on his right shoulder. Most of his face was stained red with blood.

In addition, Cora was still young at the time. So, she couldn't remember the person's appearance when she was frightened.

After recovering, when Cora went to the hospital to look for the information about the savior at that time, Eason was the only one who matched the approximate age, gender, and injury information.

But when thinking of these things, Cora suddenly thought of the scar on Byron's right shoulder...

Cora thought, "I have recognized the wrong person from the beginning, right?"

Chapter 968 Is It You?

Cora remembered that every time Byron had sex with her, he always liked to grab her hand and put it on the scar...

Cora thought that she was right.

When she asked Eason about saving her back then, Eason didn't answer her directly.

Cora knew that she had guessed right.

She suddenly felt extremely excited. She wanted to go to the Hansen Group and find Byron to verify this matter.

Cora wanted to drive, but at this moment a car stopped in front of Cora...

Byron was flipping through documents in the office. Carter pushed the office door open and led Cora in.

"Bring me the documents of the project at..."

Byron instructed Carter without raising his head, but he heard a woman's laughter.

The moment Byron raised his head, he saw Cora standing behind Carter, snickering.

"Why did you come here suddenly?" Byron smiled when he saw Cora.

"I missed you, so I came here." Cora smiled and looked at Byron.

Byron was happy to hear that.

After all, Cora and Byron had recently reconciled. In the past, Cora didn't take the initiative to show her love for him.

Byron asked Carter to leave the office first. He walked to Cora.

Byron was about to reach out and hug Cora into his arms. However, he found that Cora was looking at him expectantly.

Byron felt strange and he stopped his movement.

Cora frowned and asked, "What's wrong?"

"Nothing." Byron looked at his hands, also a little puzzled.

To divert Cora's attention, Byron asked Cora, "What about the patients you made an appointment with today?"

The patients who made an appointment were all cancer patients who came here, especially Cora. They were already seriously ill, and a slight delay may lead to death.

Therefore, in general, as long as the patients had made an appointment with Cora, Cora would go to work.

Even if she occasionally made an appointment with Byron for dinner, she would not leave the medical clinic until she finished seeing the patients.

It was also because Cora treated every patient seriously. Every patient and even the family members of the patients liked Cora very much. They often brought her special products from all over the country during the consultation.

Cora was so serious and responsible. However, she said, "I delayed it. I plan to take a good rest in the next few days."

Byron frowned.

Byron knew well how serious Cora was in terms of treating patients.

Even some time ago, Cora had a relapse of depression after a miscarriage. She returned to work soon.

Cora suddenly said today that she delayed appointments.

Cora noticed Byron's confusion.

She said, "What's wrong? Can't I have a rest? I've been stressed out for too long recently. Seeing that our wedding is about to arrive, why don't I just rest for some days and be a beautiful bride?"

Byron was afraid of making Cora unhappy, so he stopped doubting it.

"Of course, you can. What do you want to do today?"

"I don't know. You arrange it for me." Cora smiled.

"Then let's go shopping in the supermarket, buy some ingredients and go back to cooking. We can pick up Martin on the way, and go home to cook together."

Byron's proposal didn't make Cora satisfied.

Chapter 969 Something Is Wrong

Seeing Cora's reaction, Byron asked her, "What's wrong? Don't you like to walk around like this?"

Cora immediately showed a smiling face and said, "No, I think your arrangement is pretty good."

"Let's go. Go to the supermarket to buy something first. It's almost time for Martin to leave school."

Byron once again reached out to hug Cora's waist. Every time he went out with Cora before, he liked to be so close to Cora.

But the strange thing was that today's intimacy made him feel sick for no reason.

He was confused and thought, "Could it be that I am the kind of man who doesn't know how to cherish when I get what I want?"

At this time, Cora was urging Byron to hurry up. Byron didn't think about this issue anymore.

Soon, they were hanging out in the supermarket.

Cora was picking vegetables in the front, while Byron was pushing the shopping cart behind.

"Buy some vegetables. I'll make fried vegetables for you and Martin."

Cora compared the freshness of vegetables, picked and chose. She looked very professional.

She didn't know that Byron was looking at her back with a complicated expression.

Cora's culinary skills were very bad.

She couldn't even make salad well.

Seeing that the vegetables that Cora put into the shopping cart were all vegetables that he and Martin liked, Byron didn't want to make Cora unhappy.

In addition to vegetables, Cora said that she would cook shrimp. Then, they went to buy some shrimp.

Passing by the children's toy area, Cora bought some Lego toys for Martin. Then, they left the supermarket to pick up Martin, and the family of three went back to the LO apartment.

"Martin, I am going to prepare the meals. You can play it yourself first. I'll help you later."

Putting on the apron, Cora talked to Martin.

When Martin saw those Legos, he frowned.

"What's wrong? Do you think it's too difficult?" Seeing Martin's expression, Byron sat beside him and wanted to play it with him.

Martin said, "Mommy said that she will buy these styles of Lego for me after I have learned a poem well!"

Martin grew up in a rich family, so he naturally had no shortage of money to be cultivated.

To let Martin know how to cherish toys, Cora set up a reward system.

Martin could tell her which toys he wanted, and Cora would determine the difficulty of study tasks by checking the prices of the toys.

Martin could complete the study tasks to get those toys.

But today, before Martin memorized the poem, Cora gave him the toy.

This made Martin very confused.

"Maybe she is going to marry me, and she's happy."

Byron looked at Cora in the kitchen and explained to Martin.

"Really?" Martin was confused.

Soon, Cora had finished the meal.

"Come over for dinner."

Byron brought Martin to the dining table.

There were four simple dishes and one soup on the table, which made Byron and Martin stunned.

"What's wrong?"

Cora noticed the slightly surprised expressions of the two of them, so she asked them.

"It's nothing. I just think you cook very fast today."

Byron usually wouldn't dare to say that Cora's cooking was bad, so he could only pick out the good points from various aspects and praise her.

Cora didn't doubt it.

Whether it was Byron or Martin, before they took their first bite of food, they were all nervous. Cora had never cooked any delicious food.

However, the meal today was different. All the dishes weren't said to be extremely delicious, but at least they were all palatable.

Because of this, Byron's eyes suddenly narrowed slightly...

Chapter 970 She Is Not Your Mother!

"What's wrong? Am I not cooking well?"

Cora seemed to be worried that the food she cooked was not tasty. She quickly picked up the fork and tasted it, thinking it was not bad.

"Nothing, I just want to buy a bottle of wine. You rarely cooked so many dishes today."

When Byron put down his fork, he quietly kicked Martin under the table.

Martin was very hungry, and he was eating very fast.

He was kicked by Byron, and he quickly looked up at Byron.

They had a tacit understanding. Sometimes just a look, Martin knew what Byron was going to do.

Just like now, Martin hurriedly put down the fork, and said to Byron, "I want to go together."

Byron immediately picked Martin up and said, "Then let's go back quickly."

The two went out the door at a very fast speed. The moment they closed the door, Cora's gaze became extremely sinister...

As soon as Byron and Martin arrived at the underground garage, Martin asked him, "Did something happen?"

He was still hungry.

Martin thought, "It's rare for Mommy to make delicious meals. I want to eat them all."

Being called out by Byron made Martin suddenly feel like he had betrayed Cora.

Byron told Martin, "That's not your mother!"

Martin looked astonished and said, "She's my mother. My mother looks like that."

"Martin, your mother has never cooked four dishes and one soup. Even if she did, it tasted bad.

"Besides, didn't you say that your mother asked you to recite a poem before buying you those toys?

She must have never given you the toys before you finished the study task."

Byron then told Martin that today, Cora postponed all the appointments with patients.

Martin's expression immediately changed. "Mommy would never treat her patients like this."

Even if they were in Leucrest Town back then, as long as Cora made an appointment with her patients, no matter if it was windy or rainy, she would be waiting in the medical clinic for patients to come.

Therefore, Martin also understood why Byron suddenly wanted to take him away from that house.

"Dad, if that person is not my mother, where is my mother?" Martin was about to cry.

He and Cora had been dependent on each other since he was a child. He cared about Cora very much.

He didn't want Cora to be injured.

"I don't know either." Byron was also in a panic right now. In the car, he had already started trying to find Cora's travel route today.

When Martin heard this, he immediately opened the door and rushed to get out of the car.

Byron quickly grabbed him.

Martin struggled desperately, and said, "Let go of me. I'm going to beat the bad guy. I will let her tell her the whereabouts of my mother."

Instead of letting go of him, Byron hugged Martin even tighter.

"Martin, you have to know that Cora would be even more dangerous if you let the woman know that we know what happened."

Martin looked at Byron in astonishment. Byron said, "That person came to us and pretended to be Cora, which means she is very sure that your mother will not show up now. So, your mother must be controlled by her. If she is alarmed, I am worried that she will hurt your mother..."

Martin gradually calmed down and devoted all his attention to rescuing his mother. "Then let's go home now and find out the whereabouts of my mother from the woman."

"We indeed have to go back, but it's not us. I will go back!" Byron looked at Martin seriously.