Chapter 971 Get Caught

"No, I want to go back too! I can't just sit and watch the bad guy run amok in our house!"

Martin cried.

"Martin, you have to know that we care about you the most. Once you are caught, we can only compromise.

"Be good. I will send you back to find your grandparents now. Only by ensuring your safety can I think about what I will do next."

Although Martin was extremely sad, he still listened to Byron's words.

Soon, Martin was sent back to the Hansen Mansion by Byron.

At the same time, Byron got in touch with Efren and asked him to help search for Cora's whereabouts at the airport.

Byron looked for the route after Cora left home in the morning. He found that Cora's car was stopped near the medical school.

Later, Cora was taken into a white van.

The car she took had been frequently changed, but the driver had not changed.

So, according to the facial features of the driver, Byron knew that they wanted to go to the airport.

After Efren received Byron's call, he took action immediately.

Then, Byron called Carter.

"Carter, is Isidra on the Southern Island?"

"She should be here," Carter said.

"What I want is an accurate answer."

Carter noticed that Byron's emotion was not right. He hurriedly said, "I'll send someone to make sure now."

While waiting for Carter's call, Byron took out two bottles of sparkling wine from the trunk of the car.

These two bottles of wine were bought by him before. He wanted to surprise Cora. Byron didn't expect that it would be used tonight...

Cora in LO apartment was still sitting at the dining table, staring in the direction of the door.

She looked expressionless, but her eyes were particularly sinister and hostile.

She thought, "Could it be that Byron knew my true identity and left with the child?"

"Impossible..."

"To prevent them from discovering that something was wrong with me, I even asked people to investigate the tastes of Byron and Martin. I also looked for tutorials on the Internet and learned a few of their favorite dishes.

"In addition, I snatched Cora's mobile phone and saw from her shopping cart which style of Lego she wanted to give Martin as a gift.

"I predicted all the details that might be noticed in advance and made corresponding countermeasures.

"What is wrong?"

Just then, the doorknob turned.

Soon, Byron walked in with two bottles of champagne in his hand.

Cora's expression changed soon. She looked gentle.

"What wine did you buy?"

"Of course, it's the champagne you like," Byron responded with a smile.

Cora was happy to see Byron smiling.

After all, she had never seen Byron smile at her before.

Soon, she discovered that Martin hadn't come back. She became nervous.

"Where's Martin?" Cora asked.

She thought, "Could it be that Byron noticed something and sent Martin away first?"

"I sent him to Georgia's house. On such a beautiful night, why do we stay alone?"

Byron smiled.

For a moment, Cora felt her legs went weak. She forgot about the anxiety before and began to look forward to this beautiful night.

"Go to the cabinet and get me two champagne glasses," Byron ordered.

"Okay." Cora smiled. She turned around and walked towards the cabinet.

At the moment she turned around, Byron directly took the opened bottle of champagne and smashed it on the back of her head...

Chapter 972 She Is Isidra

Cora realized that she was being attacked from the back of her head. When she looked back and saw Byron's cold face, she realized that she had already been seen through by him.

At that moment, she couldn't do anything. She couldn't even exclaim in surprise. She just passed out.

When Byron found that she had fainted, he tied her up immediately.

After dealing with all this, Byron began to search for the things in her bag.

At the same time, Carter pushed the door open and entered.

"Mr. Hansen, our people on the Southern Island called and said they didn't see Isidra. I suspect that she might have left the house secretly in a nurse's attire."

Byron sneered, and he threw the document he had just found to Carter.

"Of course, they didn't see Isidra. She is here."

"What?" Carter was confused. But, when he picked up the ID card on the ground, he was shocked!

On the certificate, the name was Isidra, but what he saw was Cora's face.

Looking at the woman who was being tied to the dining chair by Byron, and looked the same as Cora,

Carter suddenly realized that this should be Isidra.

"Useless! How could they let Isidra run away? I will let them stay at the Southern Island and be the food of sharks!"

Carter dared not say anything.

Looking at Byron's expression, Carter was sure that if Cora was hurt, not only the group of people on the Southern Island but even him, would be killed by Byron.

While Byron yelled at Carter, he was looking for something from Isidra. Byron quickly took out her cell phone from her skirt pocket.

Byron directly took Isidra's hand to unlock it and looked through the chat record on social software.

Soon, Byron found some conversations.

[By the way, remember to give me her mobile phone first.]

[After she cures me, I will destroy her face first, and then let several men rape her in turn. I will also sell her to a club...]

From the short conversation, Byron got the information.

Cora should be treating Vaughn in Grakrord City right now, and there shouldn't be any problems.

But Isidra had the idea of killing Cora and then replacing her...

Looking at these text messages, Byron became furious.

At this time, Isidra, who was tied to the dining chair, also slowly woke up.

"Hiss..."

It took several seconds for Isidra to recall what happened just now.

Looking at the way Byron stared at her, she realized that Byron had known who she was.

But Isidra still wanted to try it. Anyway, she knew that Cora couldn't appear now.

"Honey, don't you cherish me when you get me? Not only did you hit my head, but you also tied me up.

If this is exposed, your public image will be ruined."

As soon as Isidra finished speaking, Byron smashed the phone on her face and said, "Isidra, stop pretending!"

Isidra never expected that Byron would smash the phone so violently, and didn't dodge it. She felt that the phone hit her right on the bridge of the nose.

Isidra screamed.

Because of the pain, but also because she felt her nose shifted.

Isidra spent a lot of time and money on getting the perfect Cora's face. Now, it was ruined!

Chapter 973 The Food You Cook

But Byron ignored Isidra's screams, and asked her, "Where are your brother and Cora now?"

As long as Byron found Vaughn, he could see Cora.

In the recent period of time, there was absolutely nothing about Vaughn on the TV news.

The public was speculating that there was something wrong with Vaughn's health.

Today, Cora's disappearance and the information on Isidra's cell phone all confirmed this.

After Isidra screamed, she also slowly accepted the fact that her face was destroyed. She began to delay the time.

"Before I answer your question, you answer my question first."

Isidra thought that if she had never told Byron where Cora was for the rest of her life, then Byron would treat her well and let her accompany him as comfort.

"What?" Byron looked at Isidra with disgust.

Even though Isidra had a face like Cora's, Byron just felt sick.

"How did you find out that I'm not Cora? I've paid great attention to details."

Before returning to the country, Isidra was fully prepared and even learned how to cook.

She had prepared it for almost half a year.

She thought she would be found after at least a few days.

At that time, Isidra thought that she might have sex with Byron already, and Byron should be reluctant to kill her.

Isidra never expected that she would be discovered on the first day she returned to the country and met Byron.

Not to mention having sex, Isidra had never even experienced such intimate actions as holding hands and hugging.

Because of this, Isidra wanted to know what she was doing wrong.

"The food you cook," Byron answered concisely.

Isidra asked, "Could it be that my cooking is not delicious? Not homely enough?"

The people who took care of Isidra before were all arranged by Vaughn, and the chef was also the head chef of a five-star hotel.

Isidra learned from the head chef.

Isidra cursed, "I already told him to teach me to cook more homely tastes! I was exposed! If I can go back, I will teach him a good lesson!"

However, Byron said, "It's not that it's not delicious or not homely. You have studied the tastes of me and Martin, but you don't know that Cora is bad at cooking."

Speaking of Cora, Byron's gaze finally showed tenderness, and he pointed to the dishes on the table.

"Just these dishes, she has never been successful. She knows that she is bad at cooking. So, she never cooks so many dishes at once."

Every time they ate at home, there were two or three dishes packaged from the hotel. Or, Byron cooked two or three dishes and asked Cora to cook one.

After Isidra heard this, she was angry.

"Dr. Lane can't cook? Then why do you like her? Why do you marry a woman who can't even cook for you?"

In Isidra's eyes, Cora and Byron had been together for so many years and had a child, so they must cook well.

Isidra never expected that she would be exposed to the fact that the food she made could be eaten!

"I didn't want her to be a nanny. She is my wife. Whether she can cook or not doesn't affect my love for her at all."

After Byron interrupted Isidra, he asked her again, "Now it's time for you to answer my question. Where are you hiding Cora?"

Isidra just laughed. "I won't say anything. Maybe my brother and Cora can develop a relationship during this time..."

Chapter 974 The Wolf Mansion

Isidra never thought that Byron would slap her.

"Say it or not? It's not as simple as a slap if you don't say it."

At this moment, Byron looked cold, like a killing machine.

Even Carter, seeing his expression, knew that Byron was completely angered. So, he spoke to persuade Isidra.

"You'd better tell us about Mrs. Hansen's whereabouts now. Otherwise you won't afford the consequences."

After Byron and Cora officially decided on their wedding date, Byron asked everyone in the Hansen Group and even the Sunda Group to call Cora Mrs. Hansen instead.

Many people in these two companies said that Byron was so eager to marry Cora.

Hearing how Carter addressed Cora, Isidra was furious and envious.

In this case, it was even more impossible for her to tell Cora's whereabouts.

"Anyway, as long as I don't tell you, you will never find Vaughn and Cora. The two of them will probably be able to develop a relationship in a deserted place, and give birth to two babies by the way..."

Isidra didn't know that Byron had already noticed that Vaughn treated Cora differently.

What Isidra said right now made Byron feel nervous.

At that moment, his gaze became so cold and evil.

Carter was very worried that Byron would lose control, and kill Isidra directly. He quickly stood in front of Byron.

"Mr. Hansen, please calm down. She is still related to the whereabouts of Mrs. Hansen. It will waste a lot of time getting the answer from other people if she dies.

"And if we can't contact Vaughn, the rest of the Wolf family will be stubborn, let alone know the whereabouts of Mrs. Hansen."

As soon as Isidra heard Carter's words, she provoked, "Come on, kill me! I don't believe you dare to kill me."

As for the disfigurement, Isidra didn't care. She thought, "I had been destroyed once anyway. In the end, I can restore it with the wealth of the Wolf family."

That was why she was more arrogant.

Carter had just finished persuading Byron. When he heard Isidra's words, she couldn't help turning her head and giving her a cold look. He thought that Isidra was very stupid.

Carter thought, "Did she still think that Byron still kept her life because he was afraid of the Wolf family?"

"She is courting death!"

"Didn't she know that Byron was playing tricks?"

Isidra laughed, looking complacent and out of control.

When Carter was still thinking about how to persuade Isidra, Byron suddenly said, "Prepare a helicopter and fly to the Wolf Mansion."

Carter and Isidra were stunned.

"I think that if Vaughn is ill, it would be impossible for him to be treated in the Wolf Mansion. It will cause a lot of speculation from the public. If you want to talk to Vaughn directly, why don't we contact his secretary?"

Not only had Vaughn not shown up in public recently, but even his private phone had also been turned off.

However, if Carter contacted his secretary, the meeting would be arranged within two days.

Byron also knew this, but he couldn't bear to let Vaughn stay with Cora for a few minutes.

Not to mention, it would be two days...

"No, you just need to prepare a helicopter. I'll take this good-for-nothing to the Wolf Mansion..."

Chapter 975 Calm Down!

It was at the Wolf Mansion in Grakrord City.

Vaughn's parents were full of worries and sighed all the time.

"Isidra was just cured, but Vaughn had the illness!"

"Why are they so unlucky?"

The housekeeper said, "Mr. Brett Wolf, Mrs. Eleanor Wolf, don't worry. We already brought Dr. Lane, who cured Miss Isidra Wolf before over to treat Mr. Wolf. I believe she will cure Mr. Wolf."

"I hope so." Brett and Eleanor still sighed.

At this time, a deafening sound of the helicopter suddenly came from outside. It could be heard that it was hovering close to the ground.

"What's going on? Could it be that Vaughn is back?" Eleanor was a little puzzled.

"He hasn't told us before, so it's probably not him," Brett said.

At this moment, a servant hurried in.

"Mrs. Eleanor Wolf, Mr. Brett Wolf, there is a helicopter flying low, and a person was hanging under it.

The person's voice seemed to be Miss Isidra Wolf's!"

Hearing this, Brett and Eleanor ran out anxiously.

It was already ten o'clock at night. The temperature in Grakrord City was very low, and the house was still covered with snow.

On such a cold night, the roar of the helicopter was very loud, but it could not cover the screams of Isidra who were hung under the helicopter.

The helicopter kept a proper distance every time. It seemed that it was about to hit something at any time, which made Isidra think that he was going to die.

But at that moment, the helicopter flew high again.

After repeating this, even a tough person would be frightened to the point of collapse.

Isidra, who already had mental problems, was so frightened that she lost control of herself.

She didn't care about it. She could only cry loudly and ask the family members below for help.

"Mom, Dad, I'm Isidra! Help me!

"If you don't save me, he might kill me."

Isidra always thought that Byron didn't dare to kill her and that she could be rescued no matter what.

That was why she was so reckless.

But now it seemed that even if Byron couldn't kill her, there were thousands of ways to torture her.

Then, Isidra realized that she had provoked a devil!

"Isidra? It seems to be Isidra's voice." Eleanor became anxious when she recognized Isidra's voice.

"What's going on here? That helicopter should belong to Sunda Group. How did she provoke people from Sunda Group?"

Brett stared at the helicopter again. He became nervous when he saw Isidra swaying in the air.

At this time, Carter on the helicopter shouted to the people below with a loudspeaker.

"Tell us the whereabouts of Mrs. Hansen immediately, or Miss Isidra Wolf will die."

Hearing this, Eleanor was puzzled.

"We invited Dr. Lane to treat Vaughn and didn't say it to Mr. Hansen. Does it annoy him? So, he hurt Isidra? He is going too far!"

Brett hurriedly said, "Don't provoke them! Hurry up and call the doctor in charge of treating Vaughn.

Ask Dr. Lane to come forward and stop Byron."

The housekeeper hurriedly found someone to call Vaughn's attending doctor and found a loudspeaker for Brett to talk to the people on the helicopter.

Seeing Isidra in the air, Brett hastily turned on the loudspeaker.

"Mr. Hansen, please calm down. It is our fault that we invited Dr. Lane to treat Vaughn without your consent..."

Chapter 976 An Easy Target?

"But Isidra is innocent. She has never been involved in this matter. You can direct all your anger at me, but please, do not hurt Isidra."

Deep down, Brett harbored a grudge against Byron.

Byron had disfigured Isidra's face and forced her into a situation where she could not return home, causing their family to be unable to reunite.

Now, Byron was intimidating Isidra by hanging her from a helicopter.

Mr. Brett Wolf's resentment towards him was reaching its breaking point.

However, with Isidra still in his hands, no matter how furious he was, he had to swallow his anger.

Yet, it seemed as if Byron had not heard his pleas. He continued to rapidly descend the helicopter, causing Isidra to experience the weightlessness of falling once again.

"Ah..."

A scream echoed in the sky above the Wolf Mansion again.

Unable to bear it any longer, Brett picked up the microphone again.

"Byron, please let Isidra go. It is not honorable to pick on the weak. It will only make people think you can only bully the weak."

This time, the helicopter finally landed.

However, as a result, Isidra took a hard fall.

As the Wolf family members tried to approach, Byron finally got off the helicopter.

He removed his helicopter gear, handed it to Carter, and slowly walked towards Isidra.

This caused the Wolf family members, who were about to rush to Isidra's side, to halt their steps. They feared that their approach might further infuriate Byron, provoking him to take more extreme actions against Isidra.

Even so, Byron still kicked Isidra toward them.

"Take a look at her. And then tell me if she's an easy target!"

Byron kicked Isidra like a football, causing the Wolf family members to seethe with anger.

However, at this moment, they were more concerned about Isidra's well-being.

So when Isidra rolled to their feet, they quickly crouched down to check her injuries and ensure she was alright.

But when they saw her face, they were stunned.

"This... isn't Dr. Lane?"

The woman's nose was crooked from being hit, but her face was not Isidra's. It was Cora's.

"Why did Byron bring Dr. Lane to our house?"

Eleanor was still mumbling, "That's not right. Didn't Dr. Lane be invited by Vaughn to treat him? What's going on here?"

Just as they were puzzled, Isidra had already relieved the severe pain in her body and quickly grabbed her parents.

"Mom, Dad, it's me, Isidra. Save me, please. He really wants to kill me."

When she was first taken onto the helicopter, Isidra thought that Byron only wanted to use her as a hostage to exchange for Cora, so she wasn't too scared.

It was only when she was tied by the foot and pushed out of the helicopter, experiencing the intense fall and the risk of her head nearly hitting the building several times, Isidra truly realized that Byron wanted to kill her, and he was going to do a series of terrifying things beyond her comprehension before that.

Isidra now thought that Byron was clearly a devil!

Why did she fall in love with such a devil?

Upon hearing Isidra's words, Brett and Eleanor were taken aback once again.

"You're Isidra? Then how did you end up looking like this?"

Then they remembered that Isidra had been disfigured by Byron before, and Vaughn had arranged for a top beauty team to go to the Southern Island to restore her appearance.

During this period, they wanted to visit Isidra to see how her recovery was going, but Vaughn was ill again.

Furthermore, Isidra had been urging them to take care of Vaughn first, so the visit was postponed.

Thinking about it now, could it be that Isidra had been preparing to have plastic surgery to look like

Cora from the beginning?

Chapter 977 His Cora

But Isidra didn't know how to respond. She was in pain and in a state of extreme panic. All she could do was sob uncontrollably as if she had been greatly wronged.

For a moment, Brett and Eleanor were completely at a loss.

After Carter had packed up the equipment, he simply stepped in to answer on behalf of Isidra.

"Miss Isidra Wolf is quite capable. She had plastic surgery to look like Mrs. Hansen, attempted to secretly replace Mrs. Hansen, and even tried to deceive Mr. Hansen and Mr. Martin Lane. Fortunately,

Mr. Hansen is familiar with Mrs. Hansen's habits and immediately saw through her deception.

Otherwise, there will be endless troubles."

Brett and Eleanor couldn't believe what they were hearing from Carter.

But seeing that Isidra didn't refute a single word, they roughly guessed that it was true.

Otherwise, according to Isidra's personality, no matter how scared or uncomfortable she was, she would definitely expose their lies.

"If you don't believe it, you can do a DNA test later to confirm whether she is your daughter. But you must hand over my wife immediately. Otherwise, I will expose the evidence of your daughter hiring a killer and your son covering up for her."

Byron's face was indifferent, but his tone was decisive.

For a moment, Brett and Eleanor also realized the seriousness of the situation.

"Mr. Hansen, let's talk things over. Vaughn has been ill recently. Our whole family has been busy taking care of him, neglecting to discipline Isidra."

"Hand over my wife, or..."

Byron didn't finish his sentence.

But the Wolf family could feel that it was terrifying when he was completely angry.

His eyes were cold, and it seemed as if the air surrounding him was trembling.

"Connected! The video call is connected."

At this moment, the housekeeper hurried over and handed the tablet to Brett.

"Dad, what's the matter?"

On the other end of the video, Vaughn looked thinner than before, but his spirit was still good. It could vaguely see the charm he used to have when he appeared on the news.

Seeing that Brett's expression was strange and Brett was still in the front yard, he couldn't help but frown.

"What's wrong? Why are you still outside the house in the middle of the night?"

At this time, it was very cold outside in Grakrord City, and it was not suitable for the elderly to stay outside.

Mr. Brett Wolf quickly said, "Mr. Hansen is looking for Dr. Lane. Ask Dr. Lane to talk to him..."

Vaughn noticed the urgency in Brett's tone, he quickly spoke to the medical staff in the room, and soon

Cora entered his room.

"Dr. Lane, Mr. Hansen is looking for you."

Hearing Vaughn negotiating with Cora on the other end of the video, Byron stepped forward and took the tablet from Brett's hand.

Mr. Brett Wolf didn't dare to show any dissatisfaction. He asked the housekeeper to help Isidra up from the ground...

At this moment, Cora, on the other end of the video, quickly took Vaughn's phone and soon saw Byron on the screen.

"I was just thinking about how to contact you. I didn't expect you to come to find me." Cora saw Byron smiling.

It was obvious that she was in a good mood and hadn't been mistreated in any way.

Byron looked at her smiling eyes. He said in a hoarse voice, "Thank God, you're okay..."

Byron didn't mention anything else.

But Cora still felt his unease from his tone and comforted him, "Don't worry, I was just called in to treat

Mr. Wolf. I'll be home soon."

Hearing Cora's soft voice, Byron felt his unease and irritability being soothed considerably.

This was his Cora, who could tell his unease at a glance and comfort him in time...

Chapter 978 Byron Refused

Even though his anxiety had been soothed, Byron couldn't stand Cora being in a place where he couldn't see or touch her!

"Come back now! I'll have them bring you back right now!"

Byron's firm stance left the Wolf family somewhat flustered.

Even Brett tried to persuade him, "Mr. Hansen, I know our family has offended you, but please spare us. How about letting Dr. Lane cure Vaughn's illness first, then take her away? Otherwise, considering Vaughn's current physical condition..."

Vaughn's physical condition was already on the verge of danger, and it was developing dangerously. If treatment was delayed, the consequences would be disastrous.

Otherwise, they wouldn't have let the outside world know about his real state.

So Brett was very worried that once Byron took Cora away, Vaughn would be hanging by a thread.

But Byron refused decisively, "No!"

Eleanor only had these two children in her life. Both Isidra and Vaughn were her life.

So when she heard Byron's refusal, she could only lower her stance.

"I beg you. I promise that as soon as Dr. Lane cures Vaughn, I will personally send her back. Vaughn's illness really can't be delayed for a moment now."

Her tone was sincere, and for the first time, she lowered her stance so much.

But Byron's tone was still as strong as ever. He repeated, "I said no!"

So, Eleanor could only turn to Cora for persuasion.

"Dr. Lane, Mr. Hansen refused. Can you help me persuade him?"

She shouted extremely loudly. So even if Cora couldn't see her, she could hear her desperate plea.

Cora had always been gentle and kind. Naturally, she couldn't bear to see an old woman crying like this.

So she also planned to persuade Byron and said, "Let me treat him and then go back. I'll follow up for two or three days. I can wait for the other doctors to feedback the rest to me, then I'll..."

But before she could finish, Byron directly interrupted her.

"Cora, they're not worth it! On the one hand, they took you to treat Vaughn. On the other hand, they had Isidra undergo plastic surgery to look like you. Isidra was coming and going from our house, trying to replace you. And they're planning to kill you once you've cured Vaughn."

Byron's words left Cora somewhat stunned.

She felt Byron's towering anger from the video and guessed that the Wolf family must have done something that touched Byron's bottom line.

But she didn't expect them to do such a terrible thing.

As Cora was somewhat dazed, Brett's voice came.

"Dr. Lane, Isidra undergoing plastic surgery to look like you is entirely her behavior, not a collective plot by Vaughn or our family. And the idea of murdering you is even more unfounded. After this matter, I will have Isidra come to apologize."

But before Cora could respond, Byron threw a cell phone at them and said, "Don't be in a hurry to deny it. See what your good daughter said."

As Brett and Eleanor hurriedly checked the information on the phone, Byron said, "As for the text on this phone, I have already backed it up. If you don't hand over my wife now, I will hand these records to the police!"

Carter added at this time, "By then, Miss Isidra Wolf will not only be suspected of hiring a killer to murder Mrs. Hansen, but also the incident of Cathy being killed under her leadership, and the shameful things your family did to cover up for her will also be exposed..."

Chapter 979 Culpable

Upon hearing this, Brett and Eleanor felt their legs go weak.

Every charge that Carter mentioned was extremely serious.

If they were exposed, not only would Vaughn's current position be untenable, but their family would be implicated, and the efforts of several generations would be in vain.

Just as they were at a loss, Vaughn took the phone from Cora, and his figure appeared on the screen.

"Mr. Hansen, I will send Dr. Lane back right away. And I will also have Isidra go and apologize."

Just now, whether it was Byron's words or Carter's words, they were heard by Vaughn.

He never expected that after Isidra's face was disfigured by Byron, she would dare to be so bold as to challenge his bottom line again. And even threaten Cora's life.

At this point, he was too ashamed to let Cora continue to treat him.

But hearing Vaughn's words, Brett and Eleanor panicked.

"Vaughn, you can't do this. If you do this, you will die..."

Eleanor was crying so hard that she couldn't catch her breath, and Brett was also desperately persuading Vaughn not to joke about his life.

Even Isidra quickly stood up and cried out, "Vaughn, no! You're so sick now. If Dr. Lane doesn't treat you, I'm afraid..."

You would die!

But Isidra didn't dare to say the last three words to Vaughn.

He was her brother, her blood-related brother, who had spoiled her since she was a child.

She couldn't accept that he would die at such a young age!

However, amid Isidra's hysterical crying, Vaughn smiled and asked her, "After you did such an outrageous thing to Dr. Lane, how can I still have the face to accept her treatment?"

With one sentence, he choked off all of Isidra's words.

At this moment, Isidra truly regretted it to the extreme.

If she had known the consequences of this matter, even if she got killed, she would never have done it.

"Alright, Mr. Hansen. I will send Dr. Lane to you right away."

After Byron nodded slightly, Vaughn cut off the video call, dialed a number, and asked someone to send Cora away.

When Vaughn finished the call, he saw Cora standing in front of him, hesitant to speak.

"Dr. Lane, I have arranged for a driver to come. I'm sorry for the rudeness of the Wolf family this time. I will arrange for Isidra to apologize publicly."

Cora frowned and said, "Isidra did it, not you. You don't have to escalate it to this level."

But considering the angry one at home, Cora knew that if she didn't go home and see him today, he would probably turn the whole city upside down.

So after considering, Cora said, "I'll give you a few prescriptions first, and you can take them for the next few days. When he's not so angry, I'll come over and check on you!"

Vaughn shook his head and replied, "I can't escape the blame for Isidra's thing. If I hadn't repeatedly protected her, she wouldn't have made one mistake after another. And even almost killed you."

Vaughn didn't need to be present to know that everything Byron said was true.

Otherwise, Isidra would have rushed up to defend herself long ago. Even if she was injured, she wouldn't let others slander her casually.

When they were young, their parents were always busy with their careers and didn't have time to take good care of them.

So Vaughn started to take care of Isidra, bringing up such a small child to her current age.

Vaughn brought up Isidra to this age, and he was both a brother and a father.

So he felt culpable that Isidra had become what she was today...

Chapter 980 Dead Men Kept Secrets!

"So, Dr. Lane, you don't have to feel sorry for a person like me."

Vaughn looked terrible when he said this.

Cora wanted to feel his pulse, but Vaughn refused.

He had the driver take Cora out directly, and he turned back to his sickbed.

He felt that he was ashamed to face Cora anymore and say some thoughts in his heart to her, but he still couldn't help but go to the window and look at the woman who was getting into the car under the arrangement of the driver downstairs.

For the first time, he felt his heart beating because of her.

But she had already become Byron's wife, and he could only bury all the thoughts in his heart.

After Byron's scandal, Vaughn also wanted to hold up an umbrella for Cora to shield her from the wind and rain, protecting her for a lifetime without worries.

But how could he have expected that he would suddenly fall ill...

Finding Cora to treat him, besides being his helpless move, was also his last small desire.

If even Cora couldn't cure him this time, at least he would have her company during the last period of his life.

In this way, his life would not be in vain.

But life was so unsatisfactory...

Watching the car Cora was riding in gradually leaving, Vaughn could only helplessly withdraw his lingering gaze and lie back on the sickbed...

The place where Vaughn was currently located was not far from the Wolf Mansion.

In a short while, Cora was driven to the front of the Wolf Mansion.

Byron rushed over the moment he heard the movement at the door.

As soon as Cora got out of the car, she was tightly held in his arms.

The force of his embrace, as if he wanted to rub Cora into his bones, made Cora feel very uncomfortable.

But she could also feel Byron's anxiety, so she didn't push him away. She wrapped her arms around Byron's waist, gently patting his back.

"It's okay. I'm back!"

Her whisper, her actions, her body temperature, and everything about her finally soothed all of Byron's irritation, allowing his heart to return to shore.

After Brett handed Isidra over to others to take care of, he followed them to the gate of their house and saw the scene of Byron and Cora embracing each other deeply.

"Mr. Hansen, now that Dr. Lane is back safely, can you delete all the previous evidence and Isidra's chat backup?"

These pieces of evidence were a hidden danger. They might ruin their centuries-old foundation.

But Byron let go of Cora, signaled her to go to Carter's helicopter, and then turned back to face Brett.

"You can't possibly think that after offending me and threatening Cora's safety, I'll let it go with a few apologies?"

Byron stared coldly at Brett.

The cold wind lifted a corner of his black coat. His posture was still upright, unaffected by anything.

At first glance, he was like a demon reappearing in the world and seemed very creepy.

"Mr. Hansen, we will find a time to apologize to Dr. Lane and you formally. But we beg you, please show mercy, give us a way to live, and delete everything."

Mr. Brett Wolf's plea seemed sincere, but Cora, who had already boarded the helicopter, noticed that many people were rushing out from around the yard to surround Byron.

Cora was nervous in an instant. She asked, "Carter, what are they going to do?"

"Mr. Hansen holds the evidence that can drag them from heaven to hell. Naturally, they are not willing to let us leave just like that. Only the dead can keep secrets forever."

Carter's words made Cora even more flustered.

That was to say, whether they would delete the evidence or not, the Wolf family planned to kill them...
