Chapter 769 So that he can have a long memory

"Second Prince, your injuries are quite serious. If you don't rest well, you may become lame. Therefore, you must remember not to move in the first few days. All your daily life will be served by the palace maids or guards. Lin Caisang looked at the second prince and reminded him. "Although you are a prince and it will be embarrassing, but in order to have healthy limbs, there is no way to suffer in the first few days. You will definitely be in great pain. I have also prescribed you a pain-relieving soup. If you really can't bear it, you can only let the imperial physician knock you unconscious with a silver needle. This is the only way." "I understand." The second prince gritted his teeth and spoke weakly. "It's good that you understand." Lin Caisang nodded. After all, he is a member of the royal family. He should have this perseverance. She is not worried. But... "Princess, it's better for the second prince not to move these days. What I mean is that we can leave some people here to take care of the second prince. When his leg injury is no longer painful, he can be taken back to Jian'an City to recuperate. "Well, I have discussed with the emperor. He will return to the palace the day after tomorrow. These days, I will take care of Xiaor here." The princess nodded and said to her. In this way, she can often see her daughter. "Miss Lin, you didn't sleep all night? I see that your complexion is not very good. Did you not rest well?" Hearing her question, Lin Caisang was stunned and smiled lightly. "I was just busy last night, it's okay." How could she know that it would trigger a hidden task, which was simply trying to kill her. "The second prince is fine here, why don't I take the eldest princess's pulse to see how your body has been resting recently?" She asked the eldest princess. "Okay." The princess responded and turned to look at the second prince. "Xiaor, you should rest well and don't move around. "

As he said that, he sat down in a corner of the tent with Lin Caisang.

The Second Prince: "..."

Why did he feel that he was abandoned by his aunt? His aunt obviously cared more about Miss Lin and put him in second place.

But... well, Miss Lin had to feel the pulse and diagnose his aunt, so he couldn't be too fussy.

Soon, the Second Prince brought two bowls of medicine and personally sat on the edge of the bed to feed his troublesome second brother. At the same time, the emperor came in and brought the imperial physician with him.

As Lin Caisang expected, it was the imperial physician Gu who she had given the prescription to before. She explained the Second Prince's injuries and habits to the imperial physician Gu.

"Mr. Gu, the Second Prince is sorry to bother you. Also, I know you can make all these decoctions into pills, but the medicinal properties of pills are not as good as decoctions after all. For the Second Prince, let him continue to use decoctions. "

It will teach him a lesson.

She added silently in her heart.

"Yes, everything is up to Miss Lin's instructions."

The ancient doctor admired Lin Caisang's medical skills very much, so he naturally did whatever she said.

"In that case, I will go back first. I have another patient to treat, and he is still waiting for me." With that, Lin Caisang was ready to say goodbye to them and leave.

However, she thought of something else as she lifted her foot, and turned back to look at the princess.

"I almost forgot, princess, this is the dried fruit I made for you before. Just like last time, I added some medicinal herbs to regulate your body. You can eat it alone."

She took out four bamboo jars from her small bag and put them on the table.
