Chapter 79 Including anyone, do you understand?

"Okay, okay, girl, please come this way, the pen and ink are ready.

Mr. Zhong responded repeatedly. Although he didn't understand the meaning of Lin Caisang's words, he still turned to look at Zhong You.

"You'er, you've been working hard taking care of your grandfather these days, so I'll go back and rest first. When dad's hands are free, I'll go to your courtyard to see you."

"Yes, dad, please leave my child."

Zhong You could only respond, glance at Lin Caisang, then turned and left.

Lin Caisang came to the outer room and saw the pen, ink, paper and inkstone already placed on the table, and began to write a prescription. After pondering for a while, he wrote a prescription and handed it to Mr. Zhong's hand.

"Mr. Zhong, please order me to prepare the medicine according to the prescription. I will write down how to boil the medicine and when to drink the medicine. The old man is old and cannot bear the stimulation. In the future, I will look to Mr. Zhong for some important matters in the family. Don't bother the old man anymore."

"Yes, yes, yes." Mr. Zhong responded.

"Girl, when will my old man wake up?"

"Go grab the medicine and fry it. He should wake up." Lin Caisang thought for a while and replied.

"Take good care of him. I will come back in two days to check on the old man's condition. If he has improved, he will be fine."

"Thank you girl, thank you girl."

Mr. Zhong was extremely grateful to Lin Caisang. To others, his son was his lifeblood, but to him, his father was his lifeblood. If anything happened to his father, he would really cry to death. .

"You are really a great benefactor to my family. I have ordered people to prepare some silver. I hope the girl will accept it."

Hearing this, Lin Caisang just raised her eyes and glanced at him lightly. She came here just for the money, so she naturally wanted to accept it. Otherwise, how could she have come here in vain?

After roughly curing Mrs. Zhong, Lin Caisang took the reward of 500 taels of silver and prepared to leave.

By chance, the housekeeper came in a hurry from outside with a pair of silver needles in his hand. When he saw Lin Caisang, he handed it over to Lin Caisang. Lin Caisang was not polite and took the silver needle directly.

"Mr. Zhong, I'll take my leave first." With that, she left.

"Master, this...isn't this girl going to heal the old man?"

The housekeeper looked at Lin Caisang's retreating figure with a confused look on his face and asked his master.

"He has been treated and said he will wake up soon."

Mr. Zhong replied that he did not take a pair of silver needles seriously. In his heart, as long as his father could be cured, he would be willing to have a hundred pairs of silver needles, not to mention a pair of silver needles. Give it to Lin Caisang.

"Lao Yu, you have taken good care of the old man these days. No one else is allowed to interfere with the old man's daily life, including decoction. Do you understand?"

He told the housekeeper Lao Yu.

He is not stupid to be able to support such a big family business in Yecheng. Although he pretended not to understand when the girl was talking to him just now, he really didn't understand.

But he didn't expect that there was another reason for his father's coma.

"Including Young Master You?" Lao Yu asked.

"Including anyone, do you understand?" Mr. Zhong explained again.

I sighed secretly in my heart: It's all the fault of this family business. Who said that a big family business is a good thing?

But if he really wanted to blame someone, whether it was Zhong Yun or Zhong You, they were both his sons. He couldn't bear to blame anyone. He just hoped that one could live up to his expectations and the other could repent.

"Yes, sir." Lao Yu responded.
