Chapter 887 Your cousin likes to eat

Sui Ziyou said.

She didn't know this before. She only learned about it after coming to the ranch space and seeing what she needed to learn.

"Um."

Lin Caisang nodded.

"I'll buy more pigeons later."

"Pigeons... pigeons?" Sui Ziyou almost burst out when he heard this.

Pigeon eggs are very small, okay? Men can swallow a few in one mouthful, so what's the use of buying them and raising them?

"Sister-in-law, to be honest, pigeons are really..."

"Your cousin likes to eat." Lin Caisang said without thinking.

And it doesn't take much trouble to raise them in a pasture space. It's very good. The most important thing is that the pigeon meat is delicious.

"However, pigeons are quite hard to find. I'll look back later."

She lowered her head and looked at the ball of white spider silk in front of her. Because there was no more ice silk, it was impossible to make another piece of clothing. Perhaps, the white spider silk could be used elsewhere.

"Ziyou, please bring my paper and pen and go do your work."

When going to Baiyun Mountain, you don't just need to bring food and medicinal materials. Some climbing tools are essential. This white spider silk can be used just right.

"good.

Sui Ziyou quickly took the pen and paper over, and then left alone.

...

In the afternoon, Lin Caisang walked around the streets of Yejun for a long time, then took a carriage to a farm near Yejun to buy many animals. After that, he came to an iron shop.

After all, this is Ye County, and there are many things displayed outside the iron shop. Apart from official items, there is almost everything else.

Inside, there were knocking sounds of 'bang, bang, bang' from time to time, while outside, there was a woman sitting with a child in her arms, taking care of the business of the shop.

"Girl, what do you want to buy? Let's see?"

Seeing Lin Caisang coming over, the woman smiled and stood up with her child in her arms.

There are several ironware shops on the whole street, and they are not the only ones with all the goods. As for business, of course, it needs to be done carefully.

"I want to make something custom-made. I wonder if I can meet your blacksmith?" Lin Caisang directly explained his purpose and asked.

"Made to order?"

The woman glanced at Lin Caisang, frowned almost invisibly, and relaxed her eyebrows the next second.

It's not that people make custom things, it's quite common.

However, most of the people who came to order ironware in the past were men. Even older women were rare, let alone a young girl. She had never encountered them before.

"Custom-made is possible, but...girl, the custom-made things are not as good as the ones bought now. The price is..."

"It's easy to say what the price is. I just need to make sure that the blacksmith in your shop can make what I want. That's all." Lin Caisang interrupted her and said.

"Okay, okay, please come in and let the head of my family talk to you."

The woman nodded and called to the little girl who was playing next to her, asking her to look outside first while others took away their belongings. Then she led Lin Caisang inside.

There is a house inside the iron shop. Although it is not very small, at first glance, it feels very crowded.

There are many things placed in the yard, including iron melting stoves, etc. There are very few real rooms, probably only enough for a family, but such equipment is considered adequate at this time.
