

Chapter 228 Dinner Date

The other doctors all had strange expressions as they stared at Leilany.

Her willingness to join the group of experienced doctors was a surprise to them, as was the fact that she agreed to do so.

Her boldness in sticking out would be spoken about for a long time at the hospital, even if she failed to win.

"Okay!" Zaid, who had kept silent the whole time, stood up firmly and looked at Leilany with adoration. "I guarantee to grant the competition winner a qualification to participate in the Green Group's future biological experiment plan."

Wow!

The other doctors looked on with envy.

Even the eyes of the seven senior doctors sparkled.

The Green Group's new plan was to use cutting-edge technology and a substantial budget. They would make a lot of money if they got involved.

Perhaps only Leilany expressed displeasure in the entire meeting room. She sulked and mumbled in a low voice, "I don't understand why my father has to get involved in everything."

Peter felt utterly eased as he exhaled a breath of relief.

Regardless which side would lose and leave had no bearing on him. Besides, he could always recruit additional doctors once the competition started.

It was the best possible solution.

Peter coughed and motioned with his hand. "We'll follow Dr. Sherman's suggestion since none of you have any objections. You are free to go now. Don't put off doing your job."

One by one, the people in the meeting room departed, and

Peter closely followed Zaid out.

Zaid's attention was on Leilany as he exited the meeting room.

When he saw Leilany leave without looking back, he let out a long sigh.

"This girl."

A group of doctors and nurses were chatting outside the meeting room.

Melissa glanced away and looked uninterested as if she hadn't uttered those remarks earlier.

"Dr. Sherman, you're so amazing!" Leilany said with a big grin while holding Melissa's arm. "What you said is fantastic. But you put so much trust in me. Aren't you worried that I'll mess it up?"

"Since I've said that, of course you have my whole trust," Melissa responded emphatically and without hesitation.

Some things were difficult to put into words. To persuade people, she needed to demonstrate her strength.

"I promise to do all in my power to deserve your trust in me."

Leilany lifted her hand and patted her chest to emphasize what she had just said. She couldn't help but cough after tapping her chest too hard.

Before they had gone far, they heard a voice behind them.

"Melly."

"What?" Melissa whirled around. She mustered a smile when she saw the towering figure behind her. "Lukas, I was planning to see you to express my gratitude for standing up for me, but you beat me to it."

"Don't worry about it, Melly. I only did what was right." Lukas felt embarrassed and scratched his head. "Also, Dr. Green and you have both been mistreated. The problem lies behind those doctors."

Leilany reddened slightly after hearing Lukas mention her.

She rubbed her hands together and said softly, "You're right, Dr. Wilde. Those doctors are the ones who initially stirred things up."

When Melissa saw this, she couldn't stop snickering.

"By the way, Lukas, what can I do for you?"

Lukas paused for a bit before speaking.

"Didn't I promise to invite you to dinner in Malorcia? Are you now available?"

"How can I let you ask me out? I should be the one to invite you to a meal," Melissa replied and looked at the woman next to her before adding, "Leilany here knows a lot of great places to eat.

Let's ask her to choose a nice restaurant for us." ①
