

Chapter 259 Three Candidates

"Now, it's time for groups of senior doctors to draw your numbers," said a staff member at the entrance of the competition site.

Melissa quickly kept her phone as she heard this.

"Go and draw your number first. We'll talk about this after the competition."

"Okay, Melly." Leilany nodded and followed Melissa. "I really don't want to pick number one again."

"Cross your fingers."

They had already gotten their numbers at this time.

They looked at the papers at the same time. Melissa was number four while Leilany was directly behind her.

"This is good. At least I can give you a demonstration," Melissa said.

However, Leilany was still a little worried. She said, "Melly, your skills are so good. I don't think I'll be able to do it like you."

"Well..."

"It's true!" said a doctor close to them. "You're just an intern. Do you really expect to win the first place among senior doctors? You must be dreaming!"

The other doctors echoed in agreement, "Exactly, and even if you do, then you must have cheated."

"If I were you, I would have quit the competition already. Don't make a fool of yourself, when you know you won't be promoted to the final this time, much less get a chance at winning the first place."

These doctors didn't bother to coat their words and be polite. Melissa stood in front of Leilany and stared at the group of doctors in front of her.

"Am I wrong or were you not eliminated in the first round? Aren't you ashamed of that fact since you are all senior doctors?" Melissa mocked.

One of the doctors crossed her arms over her chest and said arrogantly, "That's because we give the opportunities to those younger doctors."

Besides, we are usually very busy and don't have time to practice this."

"Well, if you don't have time, why not allow others to work hard?" Melissa retorted, raising her voice at the people around. "The competition is all about one's competence. I believe that Leilany is capable enough. Even if she doesn't win first place, she won't lose face."

"Dr. Sherman is right."

"We are interns, but we also have the right to work hard and achieve our goals."

Many interns began to throw comments around.

With so many interns standing against them, the senior doctors were a little embarrassed.

Leilany couldn't stop the laughter that bubbled up. Then she whispered in Melissa's ear, "Melly, you are so good at arguing. They asked for it."

Melissa just smiled and shook her head.

After this little incident, several doctors had already finished.

It was time for Melissa to enter the room. She went in and completed the task with ease.

The doctors and nurses who were present were surprised and mesmerized. Many of them took out their mobile phones to record it. Watching her operation was much better than following instructions in the books.

Only a few doctors were left after Melissa. Soon after that, the competition was over.

To everyone's surprise, Leilany was once again promoted. Of course, the doctors who had mocked her were embarrassed.

"Wow, very good!" Melissa praised her.

"I learned from you, the best!" Leilany smiled and said proudly. "If I'm awesome, then it's because you are awesome too, Melly."

"Don't be too quick to talk. It's time for the next round."

Although Melissa said this, a smile was still on her face.

Leilany only spoke nicely to her, while she spoke harshly to others.

The schedule of the competition was quite tight. Three consecutive rounds lasted until noon.

For the last round, only three candidates were selected: Melissa, a physician, and one of the doctors who mocked Leilany earlier.

Our ads aim to provide better support for authors.

 I want no ads >