

Chapter 326 Discharging From Hospital

Leilany surveyed the group of doctors. "If you have doubts, you can ask Zaid about my identity when you see him. But now that you know who I am, just stay away from me. I can see the jealousy on your faces from a far distance."

She turned around, ignoring them.

Lukas gave her a thumbs up, and she replied with a wink.

He chuckled and followed her.

Lukas agreed with what Leilany did. Since making a compromise or reasoning with these people couldn't solve the problem, it was best to let them know her true identity.

Melissa liked the way Leilany and Lukas interacted with each other.

She understood now what motivated matchmakers. She hoped those two would become lovers.

The idea made her feel warm.

When Lukas returned to his department, Leilany relaxed. She complained about her family, the hospital and some doctors they had met.

Melissa didn't feel annoyed, but she was amazed Leilany could talk so much without feeling thirsty.

She waited for a gap in Leilany's monologue and then asked, "Are you finished?"

"Not quite." Leilany shook her head. "But I need a drink."

"Come on; there's water in the office."

When Melissa opened the door, she saw a woman standing inside.

She squinted. "Arielle, what are you doing in my office?"

"Melissa?" Arielle trembled and turned around quickly, trying to hide the panic in her eyes and pretending to be innocent. "I was waiting for you. I didn't touch your things."

"What do you want?" Melissa asked coldly.

Arielle might have saved her recently, but Melissa couldn't forgive her for what she had done to Lindsey and Merrick.

She would never forget and would expose Arielle's crime sooner or later.

"I'm leaving the hospital," Arielle said abruptly. "I wanted to thank you and Everett for taking care of me. That's why I came to see you before I left."

"No need."

"I believe there is. I must thank you, but as I'm not welcome here, I'll go." Arielle left the office. As she closed the door behind her, a sinister smile played across her lips.

Leilany held her nose as she walked to the desk. "Arielle's perfume has a potent fragrance. I feel dizzy."

"Me too."

When Melissa opened the window, she smiled at the beautiful jasmine on the windowsill. She watered it with the watering can.

"The flower looks good," Leilany said.

"I bought it from the market and take good care of it every day."

"I should check whether anything is missing from the room." After checking, Leilany breathed a sigh of relief and said, "Melly, don't worry. Everything's here."

"Good."

But Melissa frowned.

Arielle and the Sherman family were causing her a lot of trouble. Every time she met them, they quarreled or fought with her.

At least after Arielle was discharged, there would be less trouble inside the hospital.

But why did she leave so suddenly? Melissa wasn't sure, but she didn't trust Arielle.

Chapter 327 Parent-child Clothes

In the shopping mall, as they strolled, Vivienne joyfully linked arms with Melissa and discussed the clothing displayed on the storefronts.

Johnny walked behind them alone, burdened with many shopping bags and Vivienne's handbag.

Melissa looked back and experienced a twinge of guilt.

"Mrs. Mayfield, let's take a break. Mr. Mayfield must be tired of carrying all those things."

"I'm fine." Johnny waved his hand and added, "Don't be concerned about me. You can proceed as it's not heavy at all."

"That's correct, Melissa. Johnny was a soldier before and could walk around thirty kilometers. If Everett shows up, he'll be the one to carry those things."

Vivienne wasn't concerned about Johnny in the slightest.

She knew he wouldn't want to take a break, as she knew him well.

However, considering his heart condition, Vivienne gestured toward the nearby rest area.

"Johnny, you can sit here and take a break. Melissa and I will go over there. We'll be back shortly."

"Alright." Johnny nodded in agreement.

He didn't want to relax, but he did want to go to the coffee shop nearby. "Please proceed. I'd like to have some coffee."

Subsequently, Melissa and Vivienne continued shopping while Johnny went to the coffee shop.

The shopping center was quite sizable, with the apparel section occupying nearly a third of the total area.

Vivienne headed directly to the children's clothing section.

Upon entering the section, she became engrossed with the items on display.

"Hey, Melissa, come take a look. What do you think of this dress?"

Melissa approached and spotted a lineup of sibling outfits.

The clothes looked stylish, but Melissa felt Lindsey and Merrick already had enough outfits.

Over the past few days, Johnny and Vivienne had already purchased many things for the kids, including food and clothing.

The children's two wardrobes at home were already filled, and Vivienne and Johnny even designated a room in their house to store their belongings.

Melissa blinked and spoke cautiously.

"Mrs. Mayfield, these clothes are nice, but Lindsey and Merrick already have plenty of outfits. They grow fast at this age, so we don't need to purchase more."

"Nope."

Vivienne shook her head and walked over to Melissa.

"Their kindergarten is having a parent-child activity day soon. Lindsey and Merrick have been talking about it for a week and even made a wish about it on their birthday, so we need to pay attention to that. Our whole family will attend, so we can't be careless with our dressing."

After conveying her point, Vivienne turned and searched for other outfits in the section.

Melissa agreed with Vivienne's rationale and remained silent.

Melissa listened to Lindsey and Merrick talk excitedly about the upcoming parent-child activity every day before she left for work. She didn't have much time with them, so she felt it was essential for her to attend.

However, when Melissa thought about Lindsey's birthday wish, an indescribable emotion stirred her.

"Ma'am, what can I help you with?" A shop assistant approached Melissa with a smile. "We offer clothing options for all ages, including children's, and clothing for parents and seniors. We are dedicated to providing a one-stop shopping experience for families. Would you like me to assist you in finding something?"

"No..."

However, before Melissa could reply, she caught sight of an exhibition stand in the shop nearby.

There were several mannequins, all wearing sportswear for parents and children.

The sportswear on the mannequins caught Melissa's attention due to their unique design that perfectly reflected the characteristics of each family member. Moreover, the color coordination was impeccable.

Melissa had already imagined how cute Lindsey and Merrick would look competing in those matching outfits.

They must look adorable in them.
