

Chapter 455 Causing A Fire Deliberately

Melissa had no choice but to agree first.

She wasn't sure if Leilany wanted to hear what she had to say. After all, nothing happened between Everett and her last night.

A few minutes later, Melissa realized something was wrong.

Where was Everett's assistant leading her?

"Where are you taking me?" she asked.

"We're going to Johnny and Vivienne's ward. Mr. Mayfield is there," the assistant replied.

Melissa frowned. She completely understood Bobbi's feelings at the time. If she had a disobedient patient like Everett, she'd be even angrier.

When they arrived at the ward, all eyes turned to Melissa.

Franco was clever and he quickly stood up from the chair beside Everett's bed.

"Melissa, you can sit here," he offered.

"No..."

Melissa was about to refuse, but the looks from Johnny and Vivienne made her reconsider. She walked over and sat next to Everett.

As she looked around the room, she noticed that Merrick was nowhere to be seen, but Franco and Bobbi were both present.

"What happened?" Melissa leaned over and asked in a hushed voice. "Where's Merrick? And Lindsey?"

Melissa had no choice but to agree first.

She wasn't sure if Leilany wanted to hear what she had to say. After all, nothing happened between Everett and her last night.

A few minutes later, Melissa realized something was wrong.

Where was Everett's assistant leading her?

"Where are you taking me?" she asked.

"We're going to Johnny and Vivienne's ward. Mr. Mayfield is there," the assistant replied.

Melissa frowned. She completely understood Bobbi's feelings at the time. If she had a disobedient patient like Everett, she'd be even angrier.

When they arrived at the ward, all eyes turned to Melissa.

Franco was clever and he quickly stood up from the chair beside Everett's bed.

"Melissa, you can sit here," he offered.

"No..."

Melissa was about to refuse, but the looks from Johnny and Vivienne made her reconsider. She walked over and sat next to Everett.

As she looked around the room, she noticed that Merrick was nowhere to be seen, but Franco and Bobbi were both present.

"What happened?" Melissa leaned over and asked in a hushed voice. "Where's Merrick? And Lindsey?"

Everett enjoyed this. He grinned and whispered in her ear, "Don't worry. They're in my ward with the bodyguards. They're having breakfast with the Mayfield family's servants. We need to talk about something and they shouldn't know about it."

Melissa felt relieved upon hearing this.

They must be discussing the fire from last night, which was strange and suspicious. There had to be something hidden behind it.

"Didn't you say you wanted to say something?"

Franco nodded. "Yes. We've been waiting for you two to finish talking."

Everett smiled and pretended to be angry. "Let's talk about the incident from last night."

"Okay," Franco said seriously. "Yesterday, Everett suspected something was wrong when the fire broke out. I didn't go to the scene of the fire, but I went to check nearby surveillance videos with some men. We found several suspicious people."

Although we didn't catch the culprits, we had seen their escape route. The perpetrators had meticulously planned everything and had fled to the river by fishing boats."

River?

Melissa frowned when she heard this. Then she recalled the kidnappers from the Green Group's cruise ship banquet.

They had said they would take revenge after being beaten by Everett.

Most importantly, Arielle admitted that she had hired those people.

Melissa shuddered at the thought. How could Arielle be so vicious?

Of course, Everett also thought of this. He was in a bad mood, and he was angry.

"We need to search every inch of the river region. We have to find those people and Arielle."

These people were courting death. How dare they hurt his family members!

"I already sent people to do that yesterday," Franco chimed in.

"Thank you, Franco," Johnny sighed. "We're getting old. I didn't notice anything amiss last night. It's really..."

"Don't say that," Vivienne interrupted. "If someone wanted to do something bad, we couldn't stop them. Besides, none of us sensed anything out of the ordinary."

Melissa felt terrible after hearing Vivienne's words.

With so many people in the Mayfield family, how could no one have noticed anything suspicious?

The family usually took care of Lindsey and Merrick, so they went to bed early, and someone was always on duty at midnight.

But with so many fires in the house, it was apparent that many people had snuck in.

How did no one notice? Unless...

Our ads aim to provide better support for authors.

