

Chapter 462 Arielle's Secret

Arielle's countenance fell as her secret was revealed.

She glared at Merrick. "Shut up! If you anger me any further, I'll kill you in the next moment!"

Merrick shut his eyes and grinned as he stretched his legs out on the chair. His round face conveyed a sense of fearlessness in response to Arielle's warning.

Arielle never imagined a child could provoke her so easily. She balled her fists tightly. Her eyes glimmered with a venomous intensity, much like that of a scorpion.

She was incensed because the child clearly pinpointed her weakness.

After the fire incident, Everett had bolstered his grip on the city, including the area of the river. Though she detested Melissa and wanted to harm her two children, Arielle was also fiercely protective of her own life. This had kept her from doing anything impulsive.

Sacrificing her own life for the sake of others seemed unnecessary to Arielle.

Capturing the two children was a means for her to safeguard her own life in a crucial moment.

She planned to use the two children as leverage to protect herself and escape. The ship leaving Andeport was scheduled to arrive the next night, and she intended to board it with the children. However, if she was being tracked, she would use them to negotiate with Everett to ensure her safety. She knew Everett wouldn't let her go easily if she had nothing to threaten him with!

She was uncertain when she would be able to return after she departed from this place.

Her only concern was for her mother, Emily.

Therefore, when Emily proposed to meet her, Arielle did not consider it a trap. The next morning, she arrived at the meeting place early for her appointment with Emily.

The Riverside Park was bustling with people that morning. This made it easy for a woman wearing a mask and cap to blend in and go unnoticed as she walked around cautiously.

After she took a seat on a bench next to a large tree, she glanced around and waited for Emily to arrive.

Finally, she spotted Emily rushing toward her from a distance and waved eagerly to catch her attention.

As Emily approached, her pale expression grew even more nervous. She seemed to be deliberately avoiding Arielle.

Judging from Emily's expression, something seemed off! Arielle quickly realized the situation and turned around to leave. She lowered her cap to conceal her face and walked away swiftly.

"Boss, there was a woman on the bench who just waved at Emily. Emily ignored her and walked away. The woman is dressed in a way that conceals her identity. We suspect it might be Arielle."

A nearby observer quickly relayed the information to their superior.

"Alright, apprehend her immediately! It's highly likely she's Arielle!"

Arielle hurriedly walked and contacted her companion who was taking care of the two children at home.

"Listen to my words carefully. If I'm not back in thirty minutes, kill the two children! They left me with no choice! Did you hear what I said?"

"I understand. The two children won't survive if you fail to return in time!"

Arielle's companion was a ruthless person who had no qualms about killing people. He made it clear to Arielle he would carry out the order without hesitation if she failed to return.

Arielle swiftly entered an alley and approached a black door. She opened it and hid inside. Meanwhile, two individuals ran toward her and arrived at the door just as she slipped inside.

Damn it! She had been tracked!

Now that Everett knew her location, Arielle couldn't remain in Andeport any longer.

Luckily, she had a ticket to depart from Andeport. Once she escaped from here, it would be challenging for Everett to track her down.

She watched as the two people walked past the door. After she waited for a while, she cautiously opened the door a bit and peeked outside. She wanted to make sure the coast was clear.

Arielle stepped out of the door. She saw the two people who walked past coming back toward her. They'd reached the other end of the alley and then noticed her presence. They were now blocking her way.

Arielle's face darkened as she quickly walked away from them, her back drenched in cold sweat.
