

Chapter 486 Thin Mona

The first few bodyguards were all muscular and strong. Before Melissa could speak, Everett declined immediately.

"I'm worried about your safety if you choose one of these male bodyguards."

Melissa was speechless. Everett was a close-minded individual.

The remaining candidates were all female bodyguards with exceptional abilities.

Most of them were tall, instilling a sense of security in those around them.

But in the end, Melissa decided on a thin female bodyguard.

"Are you Mona Adams?" Melissa inquired.

"Yes."

Mona stood bashfully in front of Melissa, her hands clenched together.

She appeared timid and didn't dare to look at Melissa. She was average-looking and would go unnoticed if she walked the streets.

Melissa was moved by Mona's resume.

Since she was young, Mona had been studying fighting skills in a place far from home. She worked and lived independently. Her parents never gave her any money since she started to learn fighting skills.

Mona's childhood had been unhappy. Despite being thin and unlucky, she had won several women's free combat championships.

Coming from a poor family, Mona suffered from malnutrition, and she was unable to gain weight, even though she ate plenty now. Though she was an adult, she still looked like a teenager.

"She looks young and thin. How can she provide proper protection for you?" Everett asked when he saw Mona.

He was skeptical of Mona's ability to protect Melissa. He thought that she wasn't a good fit to be Mona's bodyguard.

"We shouldn't judge people by their appearance. Mona has an impressive resume. Though she's thin, she's qualified enough to stand in front of me and be a candidate, which proves she's capable. So, she must be the perfect choice," Melissa replied firmly.

Everett was taken aback by her decision. Why would Melissa choose such a bodyguard? But in the end, it was her choice. Everything would be okay if Melissa was content.

After witnessing Melissa's admiration for Mona, Everett remained silent. He gestured toward Mona and instructed her to take a seat on the sofa.

"Mona, feel free to stay here. You are now Melissa's personal bodyguard."

Mona was taken aback by the decision and felt elated.

The others were surprised too. They never expected that the petite and frail Mona would be chosen as Melissa's protector. Their spirits sank... Not because they were not selected but because of the realization that Everett's company was extremely influential. If anyone had a connection with them, they wouldn't have to worry about their future.

"Here is the contract for your service, Mona. You can take a look at it. If there's anything that you are not content with, feel free to change it anytime," Melissa handed Mona a draft of the contract.

Mona sat in front of Melissa, perused the contract with keen attention, and scrutinized every detail.

Eventually, her eyes rested on the salary section, and she stared at it for quite some time.

Melissa noticed Mona's hesitation about her compensation. So she inquired kindly, "Do you have any queries regarding your pay? If you do, I can alter the amount for you."

Mona pointed at the sum of money and shook her head shyly.

"Yes, the annual salary of 500 thousand is too much. I'm just your bodyguard, and you don't need to pay me that much. If I take such a substantial sum of money from you, I'll feel uneasy. So let's agree on the market rate.*"

Our ads aim to provide better support for authors.

