Chapter 1013 New Ability

As Liam gazed upon Townsend, whose form was rapidly expanding, a flicker of coldness crossed his face.

He felt indifferent towards Townsend's fate.

In his eyes, Townsend had it coming.

Just when Liam was on the brink of ending Townsend's life, a sudden frown creased his brow.

Surprisingly, he sensed an unusual longing emanating from the Heart of Life within him.

This discovery left Liam in shock. Heeding the Heart of Life's pull, he realized his body was drawing in Townsend's vitality.

Townsend, previously bloated, began reverting to his normal size before rapidly withering away until he was grotesquely disfigured.

The absorption of Townsend's vitality significantly bolstered Liam's power.

It dawned on Liam that his newfound power allowed him to manipulate others' life forces to enhance his own.

This skill far surpassed Townsend's, providing Liam

It dawned on Liam that his newfound power allowed him to manipulate others' life forces to enhance his own.

This skill far surpassed Townsend's, providing Liam with not only a grand life force but the ability to augment his strength by siphoning others'.

Snapping back to reality, Liam saw Townsend, now emaciated, gasping weakly on the brink of death. He lay powerless, casting terrified glances at Liam, too feeble to plead for mercy.

Liam observed Townsend, realizing the man could recover some of his life force after Liam had drained his vitality. However, Townsend's strength waned with each absorption. Yet, Liam remained apathetic about Townsend's suffering.

With no change in his expression, Liam prepared to deliver the final blow.

But at that moment, Maureen interjected, "Stop."

Liam's brow furrowed slightly as he turned to Maureen, puzzled but not hostile. He respected Maureen, knowing she meant no harm, and waited for her to elaborate.

Maureen didn't hesitate. "Killing Townsend now would be a grave mistake. Adamson would seek vengeance, a fate too grim to contemplate. You're not yet strong enough to confront Adamson. Spare Townsend; let him live a bit longer."

Liam never feared Adamson's threats. He and Adamson were sworn enemies from the start.

Yet, Liam had to consider Julie's safety. If he were to actually kill Townsend, Adamson's vengeance would be relentless.

He could handle Adamson's underlings, but Julie's safety weighed heavily on his mind.

With this thought, Liam reluctantly let go of his grip, sparing Townsend's life.

Townsend barely escaped with his life, struggling to catch his breath.

After witnessing Townsend's dire state, they lost interest and left him to fend for himself.

Liam approached Julie, gently took her arm, and together with Shayla, they bid farewell to Maureen and departed from Rosefinch Tower.

Once outside, Julie gazed at Maureen's fading silhouette and turned to Liam. "Who is she, Liam? I feel a strong connection to her. I think I might know her."

Liam's brow furrowed upon hearing this.

He, too, had felt a connection with Maureen, albeit fainter than Julie's.

Initially, Liam had dismissed it as his imagination and hadn't dwelled on it.

But Julie's admission made him reconsider.

He quickly retrieved the petal Maureen had given him in the underground arena and inspected it closely.

Inscribed on the petal were the words: "Moon Silence!"
