Chapter 1155 Delay The Breakthrough

After Lindy had departed, Liam quickly got himself together.

He put on a determined face and made his way up Sparta Mountain.

His destination was the battleground for peak sixth-rank Primogem Warriors!

The creatures there could rival the Zephyr Ape that had once chased him into Shadow Valley.

But their level was similar to the Zephyr ape's level before it had gotten its paws on the Universe Crystal Dew.

Liam sensed that the Zephyr Ape was nearing the seventh rank now.

He figured if he got higher, the creatures there wouldn't outdo the pumped-up Zephyr Ape.

But that didn't mean dealing with them would be a piece of cake.

Liam, knowing the Zephyr Ape's strength, stayed on his toes for other sixth-rankers!

Soon enough, Liam reached his destination. Right as he stepped in, he locked eyes with a beast-human hybrid.

This thing had blood-red eyes and smelled like trouble. It snickered at Liam.

"Do you think you can survive here with that pathetic power? You're asking for trouble!"

As it talked, it tensed its legs and sprang at Liam like a missile.

The attack was fierce. It filled the entire sky, making it look like Liam was about to be devoured.

But Liam kept his cool. His face stayed calm, and suddenly, a dark aura domain wrapped around him.

This was Liam's newly awakened power.

Inside the domain, the creature's strength tanked, while Liam's went through the roof. With one smack, he sent the creature flying.

After making a sixth-rank peak creature retreat in one hit, Liam rode a wave of pride.

All the grind suddenly felt like it had been worth it.

He then gathered his thoughts, eyeing the creature, his stare sharp.

Even with his boost in power, he wasn't easing up and letting his guard down.

This was a principle Liam always followed.

So, he went all out to attack again.

After a bit of back-and-forth, Liam had the upper hand. The creature was a mess. Liam's hits had left it bloody.

Seizing the opportunity, Liam grabbed the creature, intent on finishing it off by slamming it to the ground.

Liam didn't have a personal vendetta against these creatures. But here, different races meant automatic enemies.

For this reason, Liam showed no mercy.

After killing the creature, a strange feeling bubbled up in him, hinting at another breakthrough.

Liam's face suddenly tightened with worry.

"Oh, not now! Right when I'm about to have a breakthrough!" he muttered.

This was trouble, especially in Sparta Mountain, where he was racking up points by hunting.

If Liam hit the seventh star of the sixth rank, it would mess up his point-grabbing plan.

Keeping his breakthrough in check was the top priority for Liam now. He aimed to stall until he was out of the trial illusion.

He could not afford a breakthrough here.

He had just killed a sixth-rank peak beast, earning ten thousand points. He was now less than ninety thousand points away from the chance to draw a sword.

But these peak sixth-level creatures were rare here, making it hard for Liam to rack up points fast.

That was why he was dead set on not having his breakthrough.

After keeping the breakthrough at bay, Liam's brow creased with worry.

How was he going to keep gaining points now?

If he could delay the breakthrough next time, that would be great. But if not, he would have to have the breakthrough.

And that meant he would need to take on seventh-rank creatures to gain points.

Liam wasn't exactly feeling confident about killing seventh-rank creatures.

After all, the gap between the sixth rank and the seventh rank was huge.

With a worried look, Liam muttered to himself, "I guess I will have to take down as many sixth-rank peak creatures here as I could. The longer I hold off the breakthrough, the better!"
