

Chapter 1201 Testing

Liam didn't create the giant out of boredom. Instead, he wanted to test a theory he had.

He wanted to know that if this giant, crafted using his special power of life energy, might possess the traits of other special powers.

Once the giant materialized, Liam examined it closely.

To his satisfaction, he discovered it indeed possessed the traits of the special power of the earth element.

The giant was remarkably solid with substantial defensive strength.

Moreover, it displayed traits of the special power of the light element, its form capable of extending significantly.

Liam took a deep breath, trying to contain his elation.

The giant's diverse elemental traits confirmed all his speculations.

It appeared that following the emergence of the white vortex within him, his special powers had merged seamlessly.

From now on, his strength would pivot around this white vortex.

Liam had no worries about this phenomenon. For him, the white light was something he could trust.

He then approached the giant to assess its capabilities.

Astonishingly, the giant matched his own power level!

"Does this mean the giant's strength directly correlates with mine?" Liam muttered.

He nearly couldn't suppress the joy in his heart. The giant's strong power level meant he now had a formidable companion.

Although creating the giant drained considerable energy from Liam, the benefits outweighed the costs.

And the stronger the giant was, the greater the hope he had of rescuing Julie and Asher.

With renewed optimism, he decided to conclude the trial.

He looked at the exit and stepped in without a second thought.

The next moment, Liam left the secret realm and reappeared before his master.

His master had been patiently waiting, seemingly aware that Liam would return shortly.

Upon seeing him, his master smiled and asked, "Liam, how was your progress in the secret realm?"

Liam nodded slightly and replied, "Master, I have gained a lot. However, I encountered a lingering soul claiming to be a fragment of the Pope's soul from the Saint Society."

He then shared his experiences from the tenth floor of the secret realm, deliberately omitting any mention of the white light and the vortex deep within his heart.

His master was visibly shocked when Liam mentioned the Pope's residual soul and said, "It seems this old man's reach is quite extensive. He even infiltrated this secret realm!"

He then looked at Liam with approval and added, "Liam, it's good that you survived that old man's ambush. Otherwise, the consequences would have been dire."

The thought of the danger Liam had faced stunned him.

After a moment, a realization struck him. He looked at Liam with astonishment and asked, "Liam, did you just tell me that you had climbed to the 1000th step of the secret realm?"

Liam, a bit puzzled by his master's intense reaction, simply nodded.

The master took a deep breath, then burst into laughter, saying, "Well done, Liam. Your achievement of reaching the 1000th step is nearly unheard of even in Cosmic realm! I knew I had an eye for talent. Liam, you're definitely able to become a tenth-rank Primogem Warrior. I have no doubts about that now!"

Flustered by the praise, Liam responded modestly, "It's all due to your guidance, Master!"

His master's laughter showed his good spirits.

Then, turning serious, Liam's master said, "The time left for you is not much! Not only will the Blood Clan send experts to take complete control of Blue Star, but the Saint Society will also move before that to seize control. This is the Pope's strategy to curry favor with foreign dignitaries!"
