

Chapter 1204 Genmo

Upon hearing his master's words, a bitter smile spread across Liam's face. He said, "Master, do you think I've got any other option? The burdens I'm carrying are too heavy. I need to rescue my wife and child, so I have to make a quick ascent. Just tell me the place. No matter how dangerous, I'll head there. I have already experienced the humiliation of being weak, and I don't want to be at anyone's mercy anymore!"

As Liam said this, his eyes welled up with tears. He would never forget what Adamson had done to him and the Hoffman family.

That pain was etched in his memory forever!

Witnessing Liam's anguish, the president felt a tug at his heartstrings. Letting out a heavy sigh, he gave Liam's shoulder a comforting pat. "I know you've been under a mountain of pressure and hardship these past years."

Then, adopting a serious tone, he continued, "The place I mentioned is actually not far away from here. It's near the Genesis Island. However, few people know where the entrance is. It leads deep into the earth, even close to the core. When I first set foot on Blue Star, I brought along a family heirloom called Genmo. Regrettably, due to my own carelessness, Genmo ended up near the earth's core. So, to retrieve Genmo, I established the Salvation Society on Genesis Island. Liam, if you can locate Genmo and absorb all its energy, you'll gain unimaginable power. Then your strength will surely multiply in no time."

Liam was taken aback by the president's offer to give him the family heirloom. The sheer value of such a precious item overwhelmed Liam, and he quickly declined, saying, "Master, this heirloom belongs to your family. How could I absorb its energy? Rest assured; if I do find it, I'll return it to you. After you absorb Genmo's energy, your strength will surpass the Pope and his companions. Wouldn't that make our goal much more attainable?"

Liam's sincerity shone through in his words. He genuinely believed what he had said.

After all, his master had already hinted that his strength wasn't far off from the Pope of the Saint Society.

With the aid of Genmo, his master's strength would undoubtedly skyrocket, easily surpassing the Pope's.

The president could sense Liam's earnestness, and a flicker of satisfaction danced in his eyes.

Liam's words had genuinely pleased him.

However, he didn't agree with Liam's suggestion and offered a kindly smile, saying, "Let me tell you the truth. I'm past the age where absorbing Genmo would be beneficial for me. So, even if I had a hundred or a thousand Genmos, they wouldn't have had much impact on my strength. Moreover, Genmo's main function is to unlock the user's potential in primogem energy. That's why they can experience a significant boost in strength. But my potential had already peaked, so that's another reason why I shouldn't use it."

After a pause, he added, "Bringing Genmo to Blue Star was about finding the right disciple. And finding you as my disciple is one of the proudest matters of my life. I'm delighted to give you that Genmo."

Liam felt deeply touched by his master's words.

Then, the president gave Liam a solemn reminder, saying, "Liam, don't get too carried away now. Finding Genmo wasn't easy. And even if you do find it, absorbing its energy won't be a walk in the park. The intense heat in the earth's core could easily melt any Primogem Warrior below the eighth rank. If it weren't for your mastery of the Human Body Refinement Technique and your exceptional physical condition, I wouldn't even consider letting you go there to find Genmo."

Liam nodded in understanding and replied, "Master, don't worry. I'll make sure to retrieve that Genmo!"

The president smiled warmly and added, "Remember, your safety comes first. If you encounter any challenges, protecting your life is paramount."

Liam nodded earnestly and replied, "I'll keep that in mind."

Satisfied with Liam's commitment, the president said, "The entrance to the earth's core is three miles south of Genesis Island."

After getting the location, Liam gave a slight bow to the president, readying himself to depart.

But just as he was about to leave, the president remembered something and stopped Liam.

He said, "Liam, before you go, you should pay a visit to those two women. They've been asking about you a lot these past two months. Those two women miss you dearly. It wouldn't hurt to spend some time with them before you head off. After all, absorbing the Genmo will only take about a week. As long as you can find it, there's still time."

Liam hadn't anticipated Laura and Shayla seeking him out so often lately. He felt a twinge of embarrassment.

He hadn't realized his personal affairs were weighing on his master's mind.

Taking the advice to heart, Liam bid farewell to his master and made his way to find Laura and Shayla.

He spotted the two women on the back mountain. His arrival brought surprise to their faces. They rushed over and enveloped him in tight embraces.

Laura remained a bit shy, but Shayla was bold, planting a kiss on Liam's cheek and touching him at his crotch.

Liam's body responded instantly to Shayla's touch. Since he had already shared intimate moments with both Shayla and Laura, Liam didn't resist. Instead, he eagerly reciprocated Shayla's seductive actions. He caressed her breasts and kissed her.

Not wanting to be left out, Laura joined in.

Before long, clothes were shed, and the trio engaged in an intimate display, finally releasing the pent-up longing of months.
