

Chapter 1206 Flame

As Liam looked at the deep red expanse of the underground world before him, he frowned and couldn't help muttering, "If my master's Genmo is here, it would surely stand out. Yet, there seems to be nothing out of the ordinary about this place. Could it be that the Genmo was sucked into the magma river in this underground world?"

Liam's frown deepened. If the Genmo had indeed been sucked into the magma river, recovering it would be a difficult challenge.

With this in mind, Liam focused his efforts on locating the Genmo.

However, just as Liam was looking for the Genmo, a monster with flames all over his body suddenly appeared from the magma river.

Liam instinctively retreated to avoid the burning magma. Then, his attention turned to the monster. He noticed the creature's eyes were swirling with chaos.

Clearly, this creature seemed to lack any form of intelligence.

Yet, upon spotting Liam, it immediately recognized him as an intruder, and hostility surged within it.

The monster's fiery gaze fixed on Liam, and in an instant, it spat a ball of molten magma straight at Liam.

The moment the magma ball was spat out by the fire monster, Liam felt an extremely powerful energy from it.

With his current abilities, Liam knew he couldn't withstand such intense power. Therefore, Liam concentrated solely on evading the attack.

But soon, he realized the magma didn't simply vanish after being spat out. Instead, it remained in place.

As the monster continued to launch one magma ball after another, the space around Liam quickly filled up, leaving him no room to dodge!

The ground was now blanketed with magma balls, and the surrounding air temperature soared, making it nearly impossible for Liam to breathe.

Eventually, trapped with no escape, Liam was struck by a magma ball.

The brutal impact of the magma ball left Liam reeling and disoriented.

If not for the significant enhancement of his spiritual power after absorbing the remnant soul of the Pope, Liam would have been knocked out by the magma ball's force!

At that moment, Liam's expression turned serious.

His master was correct; the underground world was indeed filled with dangers.

He was clearly outmatched by the flame monster in front of him.

But soon, Liam discovered something even more horrifying.

The magma ball that had struck him didn't disappear; instead, it clung to his body, radiating a terrifying heat.

Seeing that he was about to be melted by the magma ball, Liam could not help but feel a little panic.

Was he going to be melted to nothing by the magma ball hurled by the monster before even finding the Genmo?

Liam refused to accept this fate!

At this critical moment, the white vortex formed by the light within him began to swirl.

The white vortex unleashed a force that synergized with Liam's refined body.

With the help of the white vortex, Liam's dire situation began to improve slightly. He was just managing to fend off the magma ball's corrosive effects.

Yet, feeling the persistent heat on his skin, Liam knew that even with the white vortex's help, he might not be able to hold on much longer.

Meanwhile, the fire monster noticed that Liam hadn't succumbed to the magma ball and was visibly taken aback.

But just as the fire monster was about to launch another attack to finish Liam off, a youthful voice unexpectedly rang out.

"Flame, stop! Don't hurt him!"

The fire monster named Flame paused upon hearing this, its fierce demeanor softening. Liam was astonished to observe that the formidable, menacing creature suddenly took on a peculiar look.

A surprisingly innocent expression crossed Flame's face, almost as if it were offering an apology. It ceased its attack and even withdrew the magma ball that was scorching Liam.