

Chapter 1260 Cooperation

Shiloh's brows furrowed when he saw Trudy using her identity to bully others. This time, his voice conveyed anger as he rebuked Trudy, "Enough! Stop doing this, Trudy!"

After scolding Trudy, Shiloh turned to Liam once more, his tone apologetic.

He bowed before Liam to apologize and said, "I apologize for my sister's behavior. She lacks experience interacting with people outside our family. Please forgive her, and don't let it affect your decision. If you choose not to cooperate with us, I understand completely. I won't press you."

Liam felt a sense of relief as he saw Shiloh humble himself.

He had initially been wary of any hidden agendas the siblings might have.

However, after discreetly probing Shiloh's intentions, Liam found the prominent family scion to be straightforward and without ill intentions.

Feeling reassured, Liam agreed calmly, "I only need ten kilograms of spark metal. You can keep the rest."

Upon hearing Liam's request for only ten kilograms of spark metal, Shiloh immediately shook his head.

Just as Liam anticipated Shiloh to reveal his true intentions, he was caught off guard when Shiloh said, "Ten kilograms are not enough for you! Since you've agreed to cooperate with us, we should divide all proceeds equally. I can't let you take such a loss!"

Shiloh's directness caught Liam off guard, but Liam nodded in agreement nonetheless.

Shiloh then changed the subject, smiling. "In fact, spark metal has other uses as well. I'll explain everything once we acquire it."

Liam noted Shiloh's playful manner and chose to remain silent.

Since they had agreed to work together, Shiloh said to Liam, "Follow my sister and me. We'll guide you to search for the spark metal."

With that, Shiloh took the lead and flew out, with Liam following closely behind.

Soon, the trio approached a planet within the planetary system.

As they drew nearer, they felt the increasing heat emanating from it, causing discomfort even for the tenth-level Primogem Warriors they were.

Fortunately, the siblings were well-prepared. They used unique artifacts to shield themselves from the intense heat.

Shiloh then presented another artifact to Liam, saying, "This is a Primogem equipment developed by our family to withstand high temperatures. Take it and put it on quickly."

Liam looked at the Primogem equipment and politely declined, shaking his head. "Thank you, but I have my own methods to withstand heat. You two should keep it for yourselves."

He maintained his composure, showing no signs of discomfort from the intense heat.

Seeing this, Shiloh didn't say anything else and quietly put away the Primogem equipment.

Trudy felt a bit disgruntled about Liam's composed demeanor and muttered, "This guy must be pretending! Even we can't withstand this kind of heat, how could he possibly bear it!"

Her voice was loud enough for Liam to hear. Clearly, she was doing this on purpose.

Hearing his sister's remarks, Shiloh felt a flicker of annoyance and reprimanded her, "Trudy! What's gotten into you? Mind your manners."

Trudy promptly stuck out her tongue in defiance, huffed, and fell silent.

Meanwhile, Liam, on seeing Shiloh once again correct Trudy's behavior, couldn't help but chuckle. The siblings' personalities were clearly contrasting.

He didn't dwell on Trudy's comment. To Liam, all she appeared to be was a spoiled young woman from a prestigious family, and he saw no reason to take offense.

Liam then followed Shiloh to the location where the spark metal was stored.

Nearby, a spark beast loomed.

The creature seemed almost as if it were forged from molten iron, its entire form radiating intense heat, exuding a profoundly intimidating aura.

The spark beast bellowed loudly upon noticing Liam and
