

Chapter 1301 The Secret Package

Inside the Rosefinch Palace.

Liam had been recuperating for three days. His injuries were healing well, and thankfully, his mobility had fully restored.

After saying goodbye to Caden, Liam left the Rosefinch Palace and returned to the mission room.

There, he headed for a secluded training room to further tend to his wounds. To his surprise, he found that the Network of Human Sovereign had delivered a confidential package to him.

The delivery function of the Network of Human Sovereign, akin to a courier service on the Blue Star, was much more advanced. These secret packages could traverse countless planetary systems, carried exclusively by the Network of Human Sovereign. Besides, the confidentiality of these packages was maintained at the highest level, accessible only to the sender and recipient.

Having previously received a command talisman from Caden through the Network of Human Sovereign before, Liam was not too shocked by the arrival of the secret package.

He only frowned slightly at the notification, pondering who else in the Cosmic realm might send him a secret package.

Liam waited until he was alone to open the package.

After opening the package, he found a letter and a vial of blood.

Although he didn't immediately understand the blood's significance, it's overwhelming aura was so powerful that it nearly suffocated him.

Liam quickly started to read the letter.

"Blood essence of a Blood Sovereign, for body refinement. Persevere, and your flesh shall ascend to divinity."

The letter was left unsigned.

But Liam guessed the sender was his father, Emperor Hoffman!

He wondered why his father hadn't visited him personally, given that direct guidance from his father would be more beneficial for his growth, as Caden and others had mentioned.

Setting these thoughts aside, Liam focused on the vial.

The letter had indicated it contained the blood essence of a Blood Sovereign.

Reflecting on his recent near-fatal encounter with a Blood Clansman, Liam muttered, "Was this because I was nearly killed by a powerful warrior from the Blood Clan? Perhaps my father was so enraged that he personally went to the Blood Clan and got this vial of blood essence for me?"

While uncertain of this theory, Liam recognized his father's deep interest in his physical training.

Of course, he already knew the importance of continuing body refinement, his recent battle in the No. 108 planetary system had highlighted its immense benefits.

Had his physical strength been lesser, he might not have survived until Caden and Christos's arrival.

Holding the vial tightly, his resolve hardened.

This vial would enable him to advance his body to "Silver-Form Body", a stage beyond the formidable "Copper-Form Body", which had already made him nearly invulnerable to peers.

The "Silver-Form Body" promised even greater defense, potentially making him a formidable opponent among Primogem Experts and even average Primogem Kings.

With eyes brimming with anticipation, Liam eagerly looked forward to the substantial increase in strength the "Silver-Form Body" would grant him.