

Chapter 1386 Thirteen Primogem Kings

The team had been waiting anxiously for two full days and nights when Chad's and Everett's friends finally arrived.

They introduced thirteen seasoned practitioners, each at the Primogem King level, with skills ranging from the third level to the ninth. Each practitioner was impressively skilled.

Once Chad and Everett made the introductions, the new arrivals quickly grasped Liam's significance.

Though Liam's power was notably lower than theirs, they displayed no arrogance. Instead, they treated Liam with due respect and fully cooperated with his plans, eagerly agreeing to join his team.

Among them was Lewis Welch, the most powerful one, at the ninth level of Primogem King.

Delighted to learn about Lewis' abilities, Liam tasked him with a crucial role. "Lewis, you face the most challenging task," said Liam. "Please familiarize yourself with the Gilbson family's sword formation. You will execute this formation with Everett and Chad when we fight the King of the Titan Bugs. I'm confident that with your combined strength, defeating the King of the Titan Bugs, who is also a level-nine Primogem King, will not be difficult."

Lewis gave a slight nod and assured Liam, "Don't worry. I will take this task seriously."

The next day, Lewis, Chad, and Everett dedicated themselves to perfecting their coordination with the Gibson family's sword formation.

After intense practice, they achieved perfect synergy.

Seeing their readiness, Liam opted not to rush to find the King of the Titan Bugs. Instead, he continued to refine their strategy.

He said to the team, "When we confront the King of the Titan Bugs, I will take on all the Titan Bugs with the strength below the ninth level of Primogem Expert myself."

This declaration shocked the thirteen Primogem Kings.

Liam was the celebrated talent of the Rosefinch Galaxy and heralded as the most exceptional genius the Human Clan had ever witnessed.

Should Liam meet his demise before their very eyes, Lewis and his companions knew well that Caden would not hesitate to punish them.

Seized by this grim possibility, Lewis and his friends quickly voiced their concerns. "Liam, we need to think this through again. The number of Titan Bugs is overwhelming. You facing them alone is far too risky. We must put your safety first. Please, consider a more cautious approach."

Before Liam could respond, Everett erupted with a booming laugh and took the liberty of answering, "You're not giving Liam enough credit. He has mastered the Death Power! What threat could those lesser adversaries possibly pose to him?"

Only then did Lewis and the others learn that Liam had mastered the Death Power.

Their expressions turned to sheer shock, their eyes wide with disbelief.

Now, aware of Liam's profound ability, everyone was struck by a sense of wonder.

A deep admiration filled Lewis' heart.

He believed Liam truly merited his status as the unparalleled genius.

After setting out his tasks, Liam shifted his focus to the rest of the team, contemplating how to further perfect their plan.

At that moment, Trudy came forward eagerly and declared, "Liam, I have awakened the law power of the wood element. Although my mastery is only at 5%, I am capable of healing the wounded. I want to make my contribution to the team, too."
