

Chapter 1388 Sudden Change Of Events

The team made their way to the heart of the Titan Bugs' stronghold. Along the way, they encountered numerous Titan Bugs.

As they ventured deeper, the strength of the Titan Bugs they faced increased significantly.

Fortunately, the team included several powerful members with the strength of the Primogem King level. This enabled them to advance stealthily without drawing too many Titan Bugs to them.

After three days of navigating through treacherous terrain, the group found refuge in a cave.

The team gathered around Liam and listened intently as he laid out the plan.

"Everyone, our success depends on our next move. Our objective is clear: kill the King of the Titan Bugs. After its fall, we must retreat fast. Staying there would be dangerous. With the King of the Titan Bugs gone, the remaining forces will falter, and breaching the Titan Bugs' stronghold will become easier," Liam declared with determination.

Everyone understood the strategy of targeting the leader to demoralize the followers. Therefore, all nodded in agreement with Liam's plan.

However, as they were strategizing how they would approach the King of the Titan Bugs, Lewis' expression darkened, and he announced in a grave tone, "We've been spotted. The Titan Bugs know we're here now."

At Lewis' warning, the team members sprang into action. They drew their weapons and positioned themselves at the cave's entrance in a defensive formation.

Sure enough, their fears were confirmed as a massive swarm of Titan Bugs appeared outside the cave.

Liam saw the overwhelming force, the likes of which he hadn't encountered since they entered the stronghold.

The sky was nearly obscured by the sheer number of the Titan Bugs. There was at least a hundred thousand of them.

A grim expression crossed Liam's face as he realized they were completely surrounded. It was clear that their presence had been detected.

"Quick. We need to move! Let's break through before more Titan Bugs flood the cave," Liam said.

Liam quickly unsheathed his sword of darkness. Together with Lewis and the others, they charged out and cut down the first wave of Titan Bugs that had made their way inside.

Led by thirteen Primogem Kings, including Lewis, and with Liam, Chad, and Everett safeguarding the rear, the team launched a fierce offensive.

Swords clashed, and various law powers were invoked repeatedly, rendering numerous Titan Bugs either dead or severely wounded within the cave.

Despite their efforts, the Titan Bugs outside continued to surge in, seemingly determined to ensnare Liam's team.

Everyone gritted their teeth and engaged in a brutal fight against the endless swarm.

In a critical move, Liam called forth his elemental giant, a powerful being he had created long ago using his special power of life force.

Thankfully, the overall strength of the Titan Bugs was not overly formidable. Most ranked only at the Primogem Expert level, with only a few reaching the Primogem King level.

Therefore, under the leadership of Lewis and the others, the team managed to carve a path through the encroaching enemies and fight their way out.

Liam glanced back and saw that the ground both inside and outside the cave was littered with the corpses of Titan Bugs, forming a grim tableau of death.

However, as everyone emerged from the cave, they realized they were once again surrounded, with all possible escape routes blocked by the seemingly endless swarm of Titan Bugs.

Liam furrowed his brows, lost in thought, wondering how he could lead his team out of here safely.

He quickly discarded his thoughts when he noticed a colossal figure among the Titan Bugs—a gigantic Titan Bug towering as high as a five-story building.

Its aura was overwhelmingly powerful. Its strength had reached the pinnacle of the ninth level as a Primogem King.

It could be seen that this towering creature was the King of the Titan Bugs.

Its formidable presence exerted such immense pressure that even from a distance, Liam and his team felt as if they were sinking into the depths of the ocean. They struggled to breathe under the oppressive force.

Surrounded by a vast, dark sea of Titan Bugs that stretched as far as the eye could see, every member of Liam's team was engulfed by a deep sense of despair.

They hadn't anticipated that their plan would be discovered by the King of the Titan Bugs in advance, resulting in them being encircled now.
