Chapter 1390 Using Fatal Hex

Lewis and the other two had refrained from deploying the Gilbson family's sword formation at the start of the battle.

The Gilbson family's sword formation was the team's strongest move. Using it too soon could alert the King of the Titan Bugs. If they used it early, it would be far more challenging to use it to attack the King of the Titan Bugs.

Additionally, after working together day and night for the past few days, Lewis, Chad, and Everett had built a strong bond. The three of them were sure they could set up the Gilbson family's sword formation in just three seconds. They would then quickly move to the formation's core to channel their primogem energy and activate the sword formation.

As the battle raged on, the Titan Bugs advanced in overwhelming numbers.

The swarm of Titan Bugs was immense, enough to make anyone's skin crawl at first sight.

Despite the team's valiant efforts to cut down the swarm, it had little effect on the overall situation since there were too many Titan Bugs.

Even if the King of the Titan Bugs remained passive and merely sent his minions to attack, Liam and his team could still be worn down until they were defeated.

A sense of dread settled over everyone.

No one had expected the King of the Titan Bugs to have learned about their ambush plan in advance.

They all sighed inwardly, realizing they had underestimated the immense influence the King of the Titan Bugs held within its stronghold.

Yet, despite the grim outlook, no one in the team thought of quitting.

They all continued to fight with fierce determination. Although they knew the chances of a miraculous turnaround were faint, not one of them was ready to give up.

In the midst of this, at the heart of the team, Liam was already preparing his Fatal Hex ability.

From Liam, streams of dark energy surged forth, aimed directly at the heads of the weaker Titan Bugs near the team.

This was the essence of the Fatal Hex. It harnessed the Death Power to summon a wave of death energy, enabling the Fatal Hex to target and destroy each enemy precisely.

Naturally, this required a vast reserve of spiritual power.

Even when Liam focused on choosing his targets, his lips turned pale, a clear sign of his struggle.

Despite this, Liam clenched his teeth and persisted.

His spiritual power was quickly draining, and his mind was becoming sluggish.

Thankfully, Liam's perseverance paid off.

After channeling all the energy of the Fatal Hex towards his chosen targets, Liam felt a sudden surge of tension in his heart.

As he activated the Fatal Hex, a cloak of death spread across the battlefield.

A terrifying burst of energy was unleashed, instantly annihilating countless low-level Titan Bugs.

This cleared a large area around the team as swathes of Titan Bugs were killed.

Liam's use of the Fatal Hex had eliminated nearly tens of thousands of low-level Titan Bugs in one go.

However, because of this, Liam's condition worsened dramatically. He became unsteady, nearly collapsing into unconsciousness.

Noticing Liam's condition, Shiloh and Trudy hurried to his aid.

Shiloh produced a pill, which could help restore spiritual power, from his pocket and gave it to Liam, urging, "Hang in there, Liam."
