

Chapter 1400 The Mission Rewards

After Liam successfully destroyed the passage and the magical circle of the Titan Bugs, it was clear to everyone that their journey here had come to an end.

Liam put away his sword of darkness and cheerfully announced to the group, "Now that this is settled, let's return to the main city and submit the results of our mission."

Upon hearing Liam's words, Lewis and the others quickly showed their agreement with eager nods.

They then activated the teleportation device designated for the mission and made their way back to the main city, where they went directly to the mission terminal to submit the results.

After Liam submitted the details, an instant notification from the Network of Human Sovereign confirmed the mission's completion in his mind.

"The special Mission of killing the Titan Bugs is now complete. You have eliminated a total of 53,820 Titan Bugs. Rewards will vary depending on the strength of the defeated bugs. Calculating..."

"Calculation complete. You can receive 3,392 mission points. The destruction of the Titan Bugs' stronghold's magical circle is confirmed, and you can receive extra rewards. Additional rewards include 5,000 mission points and 100 days of free cultivation time in the Sea of Laws."

After reviewing his rewards, Liam glanced at his companions.

He assumed that Lewis and the other seasoned fighters at the Primogem King level would receive rewards similar to his own.

Meanwhile, Lindy, Annabella, Shiloh, and Trudy, who had mainly handled logistics and engaged less in combat, would receive fewer rewards.

Liam knew that his rewards were a lot.

Liam had previously suggested during their time at the stronghold that the rewards should be shared equally among the team. True to his word, he did not keep his rewards secret and chose to disclose them openly.

He said, "Everyone, I've earned a total of 8,392 mission points and 100 days of free cultivation time in the Sea of Laws. Let's figure out what these rewards are worth, and then, I'll share them equally with all of you."

Initially, Everett and the others had seemed calm, but their interest was piqued when Liam mentioned the 100 days of free cultivation time in the Sea of Laws.

Everett responded light-heartedly, "Liam, you might want to think this over. I'm concerned you might regret sharing so much in the future."

Liam frowned slightly, looking at Everett with a hint of confusion.

Even the typically composed Chad found himself agreeing with Everett, saying, "Indeed! Liam, we trust what you said before. Yet, rewards should reflect personal effort. Although we function as a team, the ultimate rewards should belong to each individual."

Seeing Chad agree with Everett, Liam felt that his confusion only deepened. He turned to Lindy and the rest, asking, "Lindy, are the rewards I received really that valuable?"

Hearing Liam's question, Lindy couldn't suppress a chuckle. She realized that Liam wasn't familiar with the rules of the Cosmic realm and explained, "Liam, it's not that the mission points you earned are valuable. After all, there are many people who have killed more Titan Bugs than you. The true worth of your rewards lies in the 100 days of free cultivation time in the Sea of Laws."

Liam furrowed his brows, not quite grasping what she meant.

Seeing this, Lindy continued, "The Sea of Laws is split into three cultivation zones: the beginner zone, the intermediate zone, and the advanced zone, corresponding to the level of the Primogem Expert, the Primogem King, and the Primogem Emperor. To access a specific cultivation zone in the Sea of Laws, one must first reach the appropriate level. The exchange rate for a day in the beginner zone is 100 points; in the intermediate zone, it's 500 points. And in the advanced zone, it can rise to 1,000 points. Additionally, investing double the points can yield a training efficiency five times greater, thus saving time in seclusion."

After a pause, she continued, "Your free cultivation time doesn't restrict you to a particular zone. Therefore, you could use it in the intermediate zone or even the advanced zone to maximize the benefits. That's why Everett and the others think you'd be losing a lot if you shared your rewards."
