

Chapter 1403 Selling The Blood Essence

Liam's announcement left everyone in shock.

This was the blood essence of the Blood Sovereign!

It was the blood essence of a powerful source God from the Blood Clan, teeming with extraordinary power.

How had Liam come into possession of such a unique and priceless thing?

The room was abuzz with astonishment once more as Liam carefully transferred a single drop of the blood essence of the Blood Sovereign into another vessel.

Although it was just one-tenth of the contents of the bottle, everyone understood the immense value of even a single drop of the blood essence.

Liam announced, "I plan to sell this drop of the Blood Sovereign's blood essence on the Network of Human Sovereign. I'm certain it will command a high price."

Lewis immediately reacted, raising his hand to stop Liam. "Liam, reconsider this! The blood essence of the Blood Sovereign is extremely valuable! It is greatly beneficial even to Primogem Saints. It's an unparalleled treasure, far too precious to be sold so hastily. You're wasting a rare opportunity! Selling such a treasure for points is simply not worthwhile."

Upon realizing Liam's determination to proceed with the sale, both Chad and Everett urgently expressed their concerns. "Liam, please, you don't have to do this. We can divide the rewards equally next time we team up."

However, Liam shook his head, his decision resolute. "No! I have made a commitment, and I will honor it."

He then engaged the recycling feature on the Network of Human Sovereign.

After placing the drop of the blood essence into the Network of Human Sovereign's recycle bin, Liam checked the accruable points.

The points offered for the blood essence left him reeling.

A single drop of the Blood Sovereign's blood essence was worth an astounding one hundred thousand special points!

For Liam, this sum was monumental.

After dividing ninety thousand special points among his friends, he would still have ten thousand special points left.

Once Liam sold the drop of blood essence, a staggering one hundred thousand special points were instantly deposited into his account.

He promptly divided these points equally among his team members according to his previous calculations.

Fueled by curiosity, Lewis and the others couldn't help but ask, "Liam, how many special points did you actually earn from selling that drop of the Blood Sovereign's blood essence?"

With complete transparency, Liam replied, "One hundred thousand special points. I had no idea that just a drop of the Blood Sovereign's blood essence could fetch such an amount!"

When Lewis and the others heard that, their disappointment was palpable. They knew the true value of the blood essence of the Blood Sovereign.

In the Network of Human Sovereign, there was a virtual shop where various items were available for purchase.

Lewis remembered that one drop of the blood essence of the Blood Sovereign had been listed there for two hundred thousand special points.

By choosing to sell the drop of blood essence, Liam had inadvertently forfeited a potential hundred thousand special points.

The blood essence of the Blood Sovereign was a rare treasure seldom available in the virtual shop of the Network of Human Sovereign, frequently listed as out of stock.

This scarcity prompted many cultivators to propose transactions exceeding two hundred thousand special points in private exchanges to secure the coveted blood essence of the Blood Sovereign.
