Before, Liam had envisioned numerous potential mishaps.

However, he had never anticipated that the domain of the Death Power would manage to attack him, draining every trace of his Death Power.

Such an occurrence had seemed utterly unthinkable.

Despite its improbability, this was exactly what happened to Liam.

For a moment, Liam's heart was filled with shock and regret.

Had he been more cautious, perhaps he could have safeguarded his precious Death Power.

While losing all his Death Power might not have been catastrophic under normal circumstances, the real issue was that his very source of the power had also been extracted.

This meant that unless he could somehow re-forge the source of his Death Power, he would never again wield Death Power in his lifetime.

Gaining the Death Power was actually not that difficult for Liam. In fact, it had practically offered itself to him.

But there was no denying the formidable nature of the Death Power.

For Liam, poised to enter the interstellar battlefield and confront alien foes, the strength of the Death Power was important to him.

Now that his Death Power had been entirely stripped away, Liam was weak and vulnerable.

A bitter smile crossed his face. Despite his caution, he had still been tricked by the domain of the Death Power.

Liam found it hard to accept this reality.

Liam found it hard to accept this reality.

Still, he felt no regret in his choices.

Since the matter had already happened, there was no point in dwelling on it. Instead, he focused on how to recover what was lost.

Just as Liam was lost in thought, he noticed something. The domain suddenly established a connection with him again.

Liam was elated. He quickly realized that not only had the domain returned all the Death Power that had been taken, but it had also restored his source of the Death Power.

Surprised, he quickly assessed the Death Power within him. He found everything had returned to its original state, exactly as it had been before the extraction. He breathed a sigh of relief.

Before he could delve deeper into the implications, Liam was surprised to find that his body was now being fully accepted by the domain of the Death Power.

This signified that the domain had begun to recognize Liam. As a result, the domain merged with him once more.

Liam was filled with joy.

Only now did he understand that the Death Power that had been extracted was not absorbed by the domain. The domain had used that as the method to select the appropriate master.

Given the positive feedback from the domain, Liam was certain that he had been fully accepted by it.

Overcome with happiness, Liam began the process of integrating the domain into his body.

Having previously merged with the Malicious Aura Domain, Liam was well-versed in this process.

He released his aura and proceeded cautiously, ensuring the domain of the Death Power showed no signs of resistance before attempting to merge.
