

Chapter 1428 Liam's Struggle

Once Liam reached the lake's bottom, he would be able to assess the situation. If he discovered a fragment of the Heart of Life there, all the pain and suffering he had endured would be worth it.

Despite the agony, Liam gritted his teeth and kept diving deeper into the lake.

The gravitational field's pressure gradually pushed him into the lake's depths as time passed.

However, his body was covered in wounds from the lake's repelling force and the intense pressure of the gravitational field.

He felt as if he were on the brink of losing control.

Furthermore, Liam was on the brink of collapse, mentally exhausted and close to blacking out from his weakened state.

His head spun, but he fought to stay conscious, biting down hard on his tongue to keep from passing out.

The sharp pain was just enough to keep him alert.

However, his strength was nearly drained, and his eyelids felt incredibly heavy, making it harder to keep his focus.

Liam knew that if this continued much longer, he might truly lose consciousness.

But he didn't want to give up on the fragment of the Heart of Life below.

Since Liam had lost the Heart of Life's abilities, his recovery speed had slowed significantly. With injuries like his now, even medicine wouldn't speed up his recovery process.

Liam's greatest fear was that the longer he stayed down here, the worse his condition would become.

Not finding the Heart of Life fragment would be one thing. But now that he was sure that the fragment was at the bottom of the lake, how could he give up on this opportunity?

Finally, just as Liam reached his breaking point and felt his body about to give out, he arrived at the lake's bottom.

At that moment, Liam's body was covered in cracks, and blood oozed from his wounds.

He resembled a demon rising from the depths of hell.

Yet, before Liam could even focus on his injuries, a new challenge emerged.

With the fragments of the Heart of Life silent inside him, he couldn't connect to the fragment at the lake's bottom. Searching for it in the vast lakebed felt like hunting for a needle in a haystack.

If Liam wanted to conduct a thorough search, he would waste a great deal of time at the bottom of the lake.

Moreover, the pressure at the lake's bottom was also far greater than he had anticipated. Staying down here too long would be dangerous.

After all, his body was already on the verge of collapse, and any misstep now would lead to death.

Sweat formed on Liam's forehead, and his body shook uncontrollably.

Even so, he clenched his teeth, refusing to give up.

Deep down, he knew staying any longer would cost him his life. ①

Time was slipping away, and with his brow furrowed in determination, Liam chose to risk everything.
