

Chapter 1432 Reactivating The Heart Of Life

As time passed, Liam's fusion process approached completion.

He had spent a full day meditating by the lake, finally absorbing all the life force from the Heart of Life fragment in his hand.

Despite fully absorbing the fragment's life force, the old Heart of Life fragments within him remained dormant.

Thus, Liam continued his meditation, meticulously guiding the refined life force toward the old Heart of Life fragments in his body.

With careful precision, he directed the life force toward its target.

Liam suddenly felt his long-dormant Heart of Life fragments beginning to stir faintly.

He was caught off guard by this response, his eyes sparking with excitement as he grasped the significance of what was happening.

Encouraged by his success, Liam redoubled his efforts, using every technique at his disposal to accelerate the flow of life force.

His extensive experience of the process ensured a flawless one this time.

The entire procedure went smoothly, and within half an hour, Liam had successfully directed all the life force into his old Heart of Life fragments.

At that moment, his breathing quickened slightly.

This wasn't due to any hidden danger during the fusion, but rather a sign of Liam's nervousness.

After all, the reactivation of his old Heart of Life fragments depended entirely on the success of this fusion with the new fragment.

Liam dared not take a single deep breath, focusing all his attention inward and closely monitoring any movement from his Heart of Life fragments.

Finally, amid his immense anxiety, he noticed the long-silent Heart of Life fragments within him tremble slightly.

This sight finally lifted the heavy weight from Liam's heart.

He finally felt at ease and opened his eyes, lifting his hand to wipe away the sweat that had formed on his forehead.

His old Heart of Life fragments had been successfully reactivated.

A wave of elation washed over Liam. After enduring prolonged tension and working tirelessly to find new Heart of Life fragment, he had finally achieved his goal.

The rhythm of the Heart of Life fragments beating had never sounded so sweet to Liam.

It was like a sublime melody, resonating with every nerve, instilling in him a blend of relaxation and exhilaration that had been absent for too long.

His wounds visibly healed at an accelerated rate.

His spiritual power, long worn thin, was swiftly revitalized by the Heart of Life.

The life force he had channeled into the Heart of Life was now coursing back into his body.

Simultaneously, Liam could detect the soft, rhythmic beating of the Heart of Life. With each passing moment, its pulse grew stronger and more vigorous.

Feeling a surge of vitality flood his body, Liam smiled.

After enduring countless challenges, he had successfully reactivated the Heart of Life within his body.

Now, there was one less burden holding him back.

