Chapter 1434 Emer Wakes Up

Before Emer had slipped into a deep sleep, it had assured Liam it would be temporary.

All Liam needed to do was to find a new fragment of the Heart of Life and activate it. Then, Emer would awaken.

Yet, despite the Heart of Life's activation now, Liam's repeated mental calls to Emer went unanswered. It was as if Emer had never existed, merely a figment of his imagination.

Doubts began to creep into Liam's mind.

He didn't question Emer's existence, but he started to wonder about the truth of Emer's words before its slumber.

Could it be that Emer's sleep was not from energy depletion, but a deliberate sacrifice?

Had Emer spoken those words merely to alleviate his guilt?

Liam's expression grew somber.

Still, he persisted, calling out to Emer in his heart, clinging to the hope of a miracle.

But the awaited miracle did not come.

All Liam got was silence.

Other than his own heartbeat and the rhythmic pulse of the Heart of Life, there was no sound.

Seeing this, Liam finally decided to give up.

In his mind, Liam considered that the energy from just one fragment of the Heart of Life might not be enough to awaken Emer, which could explain why Emer remained in its slumber.

He decided to halt his efforts for now, keeping an eye out for more Heart of Life fragments. Amassing more could potentially increase the odds of Emer's awakening.

However, just as Liam resigned himself to give up, a cheeky voice suddenly echoed deep within his heart.

"Master, were you calling me just now? I just woke up. Master, were you worried about me?"

Stunned, Liam quickly realized what had just happened.

This was Emer's voice.

Emer had woken up!

Yet, discerning the teasing tone in Emer's voice, Liam instantly grasped that Emer had actually awoken earlier but had playfully remained silent, letting him worry needlessly.

Liam found himself both resigned and amused by Emer's antics, albeit slightly annoyed.

After all, Emer had playfully tricked him.

Yet, relief overshadowed any frustration he felt.

After all, Emer waking up was the best outcome he could have hoped for. So, he didn't mind Emer teasing him this time.

In response to Emer's playful words, Liam replied with a touch of resignation, "Don't joke like this again. You're my friend, so of course, I worry about your safety."

As Liam finished, Emer fell silent.

After a brief pause, Emer responded earnestly, "Master, I understand. I promise not to joke like that again."

Liam's genuine concern had clearly moved Emer.

In the cultivation world, once a master-servant bond was formed, the servant typically became merely an extension of its master, a tool to be summoned or dismissed at will.

Emer, though untrained in the human world, understood this all too well.

Individuals like Liam were exceedingly rare.

Moved by Liam's concern, Emer felt a profound gratitude.

It was fortunate, indeed, to have such a kind master like Liam!