

Chapter 1441 A Challenge Token

Liam didn't want to engage further and simply snorted coldly, saying, "Judging by your tone, are you planning to challenge me for the gains I've secured?"

Joseph's smile broadened, yet he maintained a veneer of righteousness. "What are you saying? You know well that internal conflicts among the Human Clan are strictly regulated. I wouldn't dare fight you here."

At this, Joseph dropped the pretense and admitted openly his intention to confront Liam.

He laughed and continued, "However, if it suits you, we can settle this after the mission in a duel at the Human Sovereign Arena. I happen to have a challenge token."

Liam frowned as he eyed Joseph.

He was unfamiliar with this so-called challenge token, as the Network of Human Sovereign had never briefed him about it.

But the surrounding crowd's reaction was telling; they were visibly shaken upon hearing Joseph mention the challenge token.

Those who were weaker than Joseph even stepped back, wary eyes trained on him as if fearing they might be his next targets.

Noticing their alarmed expressions, Liam quickly realized that meeting someone with a challenge token was not something good.

His frown deepened.

Seeing Liam's reaction, Joseph couldn't resist taunting him, "Don't tell me you don't even know what a challenge token is. Are you really that clueless?"

Liam's eyes flashed dangerously at this provocation.

He was not one to lose his temper easily, but he would not just let people push him around.

Joseph was clearly asking for trouble here!

Then, Joseph's voice took on a malicious edge. "The challenge token is incredibly difficult to obtain. The token allows you to challenge someone at the Human Sovereign Arena if they're five minor realms below you, and they can't refuse. You're at the ninth stage of the Primogem Expert, while I am a fourth-stage Primogem King. That means I can challenge you with the token. If I win, I can take half your points."

Liam's face was a mask of calm, yet he couldn't help but feel amused about the situation.

He was surprised by the challenge token's peculiar powers.

After a brief pause, Liam asked, "If the challenger wins, they receive a reward. But what if the challenged wins? Is there a reward for them, too?"

Joseph's face twitched at the question, but he quickly masked his reaction with a mocking laugh. "You think you, a ninth-stage Primogem Expert, could defeat me, a fourth-stage Primogem King? You really underestimate me."

Unruffled, Liam responded coolly, "Just answer the question."

The mockery in Joseph's eyes deepened. He replied, "You actually think you could win? Well, since you seem so uninformed, I'll indulge you and answer that."
