

Chapter 1447 Not Showing Up

Liam did not immediately resume his secluded cultivation. Instead, he paused to carefully consider his approach to understanding the law power.

The method of comprehension was crucial; if incorrect, all his time would be wasted.

Liam was well aware of the formidable five elemental law powers, which rivaled the strength of the death law power.

The five elemental law powers, as suggested by the name, encompassed the forces of the Power of Five Elements.

When invoked, they manifested these elemental powers.

Each of the five elemental law powers was powerful. For instance, the metal law power could amplify attack and weapon strength, while the water law power could help restore one's energy.

Naturally, Liam longed to master the Power of Five Elements.

However, given its vast potential, Liam believed he needed to be cautious.

The more potent the law power, the more time required to fully grasp it. Liam acknowledged that integrating all five elemental law powers within the remaining five days was unrealistic.

Additionally, focusing solely on these powers and overlooking his upcoming duel with Joseph could lead to considerable losses for him.

After reflecting, Liam decided to delay the integration of the five elemental law powers. His immediate priority was to ensure he was present and prepared for the upcoming duel at the Human Sovereign arena.

Liam sighed, muttering, "If it weren't for Joseph's interference, I wouldn't be facing these constraints. It's truly unfortunate."

Realizing that his integration of the five elemental law powers would need to wait until after the duel, Liam focused on refining his newly comprehended fire law power...

The appointed time for the duel approached, tracked by the Network of Human Sovereign.

Now, there were only ten minutes left before the start of the duel between Liam and Joseph.

Joseph, having left the No. 396 planetary system early and completed his task submission, had already made his way to the Human Sovereign Arena.

The arena was bustling with spectators, drawn by the highly publicized duel between Liam and Joseph.

Most attendees were curious and wanted to see Joseph teach Liam a lesson.

Given Joseph's status as a fourth-rank Primogem King, few believed Liam stood a chance to win.

As the countdown continued, only one minute remained before the start of the duel.

On the stage, Joseph scanned the crowd but didn't spot Liam, which elicited a sneer from him.

He had assumed that Liam, bold enough to challenge him, must have been confident in his own abilities.

However, Liam's absence now suggested he might have been too frightened to face humiliation at the Human Sovereign Arena.

Joseph's confidence swelled further as he muttered, "That fool probably doesn't even know that failing to show up means losing points."

Murmurs spread among the crowd. "Is that man too scared to come?"

"He can't even muster the courage to show up now. He is definitely not coming. What a disappointment! I spent a hundred points on the ticket just to watch Joseph teach him a lesson."

"How can we have such a coward in our Human Clan? It's truly shameful!"

"If he doesn't have the power, he shouldn't have provoked someone like Joseph. He issued the challenge, but now, he can't even show up for the duel? This is ridiculous!"
