

Chapter 1456 The Fusion Process

After the City Lord finished speaking, he waved his hand, closing the connection to the Network of Human Sovereign.

Caden nodded solemnly and departed to handle the matter.

The special arrangements the City Lord had made for Liam were purposeful.

With Liam's level of clearance and cultivation strength nearing the expectations set by the City Lord, there was a need to ensure Liam didn't become complacent upon achieving his goals. The City Lord had chosen this strategy to guide Liam.

Additionally, this approach would introduce Liam to the most crucial system within the Network of Human Sovereign, which was beneficial.

This pivotal system was, of course, the military merit system.

It was the ladder on which countless warriors of the Human Clan ascended from the lowest echelons to the highest.

However, the City Lord was not fully aware of Liam's personal circumstances. He did not know that Liam's wife and child were under the control of the Blood Clan and the Saint Society.

Given these circumstances, there was no chance Liam would neglect his cultivation efforts.

Liam's consciousness was deeply immersed in meditation as he attempted to fuse the law powers of the five elements in the Sea of Laws.

The complexity of this fusion surpassed Liam's expectations.

He had initially thought that, having already mastered the individual elemental law powers, the fusion process would not be too difficult.

Yet, the reality struck a tough blow. The elemental law powers seemed extremely resistant toward each other. Despite his efforts, Liam struggled to merge them.

Particularly problematic was the fire law power, which Liam had only recently comprehended. It seemed as if the older, long-integrated law powers within Liam were collectively rejecting this newcomer.

Liam intensified his efforts in the fusion process, thinking that the strong rejection might stem from the fire law power's recent acquisition.

Despite all his efforts, Liam made no progress, which led him to temporarily halt his attempts at merging the law powers.

Opening his eyes with a deep frown, he voiced his frustration.

"Why is this happening? Why is my fusion process so difficult? This doesn't make sense."

Liam pondered for some time but couldn't unravel the mystery.

He had no knowledge of how the predecessors had managed to fuse the five elemental law powers.

Suddenly, a spark of inspiration hit him.

"Could it be that I need to have all five elemental law powers at the same level of mastery? Perhaps only if the mastery of all five elemental law powers is the same can I minimize the repulsion during the fusion process?" he muttered.

Reflecting on his fusion attempts, Liam realized that the fire law power, which he had the least mastery over, had indeed been facing the most rejection.

His eyes brightened with the realization that his theory might be correct.

With this new insight, Liam quickly closed his eyes again and resumed his seclusion.

He shifted his focus from attempting to fuse the five elemental law powers to enhancing his mastery of the other four elemental law powers to 9%, just like the mastery level of his earth law power.

