

Chapter 1477 The Task

---

Liam was completely taken aback by the news.

He had never thought Nocturne, who had perished in a fierce battle ages ago, could possibly be revived.

It looked like Caden wanted to send them on a mission to help bring Nocturne back to life and learn how to defeat the Dremer race from him.

A Primogem-Emperor-level figure like Nocturne, though not the mightiest of the Human Clan, was undeniably important. It would take at least five hundred years to cultivate such a being even with vast resources.

So, if there was a chance to revive Nocturne, Caden wouldn't let it slip by.

Besides, Nocturne knew how to defeat the Dremer race.

The Dremer race had been attacking the Human Clan for nearly a thousand years.

During this, countless Dremer soldiers had been killed.

However, the Dremer race seemed to have endless troops, continuously sending waves of soldiers to invade the Human Clan.

If they could find a way to defeat the Dremer race, it might ease the pressure on the Human Clan's borders.

Caden continued, "Your task this time is to bring the law power Nocturne left behind back."

But Liam couldn't help but wonder—why assign such a crucial task to them? They were just Primogem Experts.

Even in the current situation, the Human Clan surely had cultivators at the Primogem King level to do this.

Understanding Liam's thoughts, Caden explained, "The Dremer race is also after the law power left by Nocturne. Months ago, we clashed with the Dremer race over this, but neither side succeeded. By chance, the law power ended up in a rare secret realm. This realm only permits those below the Primogem King level to enter. Anyone above that level would be instantly killed if they entered."

He paused before continuing, "A Primogem Saint could probably destroy the secret realm, but that would also give the Dremer race a chance to take the law power. After some discussion, it was decided that Primogem Experts should be tasked with retrieving Nocturne's law power. Lately, our Primogem Experts inside the secret realm have faced difficult conditions, as the Dremer race has also sent many of their own. That's why I'm planning to send the five of you into the secret realm."

Liam understood everything now.

He also realized why neither the Human Clan nor the Dremer race had managed to obtain Nocturne's law power.

Though both sides had powerful Primogem Deities, these beings were usually locked in battles with each other as soon as they appeared on the battlefield, leaving them unable to break away.

As a result, the outcome of battles was usually decided not by them but by Primogem Saints and Primogem Emperors.

Just then, Liam received an email from Caden through the Network of Human Sovereign.

When he opened it, he found the mission's location and some related details.