

Chapter 1484 The Creature Of The Secret Realm

---

Liam's words immediately heightened everyone's alertness, prompting them to scrutinize their surroundings for any hidden dangers.

Hilliard conducted a detailed inspection and, finding no trace of the Dremer race, scoffed, "Liam, are you playing tricks on us? You claimed there was something odd. Why can't I see anything? Do you really think, as a mere level-nine Primogem Expert, that you are qualified to warn us?"

Liam regarded Hilliard with a frosty look but, prioritizing the mission, still responded, "There are creatures lurking within the secret realm. Though I can't pinpoint their location, I detected signs of life moments ago. Everyone should remain vigilant."

Upon hearing this, Hilliard erupted into mocking laughter. "You don't know where these creatures are, but you sensed them earlier? Don't be absurd! How can you issue a warning when you're clueless about the creatures' whereabouts? If you aim to impress us in such a perilous setting, I suggest you find a smarter way."

Liam shook his head slightly, recognizing Hilliard's profound animosity towards him. He understood that explanation would not change Hilliard's mind.

Accepting this, he decided further explanations were pointless. The truth would soon unveil itself, and any further explanations from him would merely invite more scorn from Hilliard.

Noticing Liam's silence, Hilliard felt he was right and became even more arrogant, taunting, "Have you lost your senses, trying to show off your skills in the secret realm?"

As they conversed, the group reached a mountainous region. They pushed aside the foliage and discovered the ground littered with gold bullion.

Liam narrowed his eyes at the sight of the gold bullion, his caution palpable.

Hilliard didn't miss Liam's apprehensive look and quickly seized the chance to mock Liam again, saying, "What's next, Liam? Are you going to tell us the gold bullion is the creature of the secret realm you just mentioned? Do you think we're fools?"

With that, Hilliard grabbed a piece of gold bullion the size of a head. Just as he was about to channel his primogem energy to obliterate it, he felt the gold bullion move in his hand.

Instantly, an intense burst of metal law power exploded from the "gold bullion", completely enveloping Hilliard.

Hilliard's eyes bulged in astonishment; Liam had been correct!

Indeed, the gold bullion was the creature from the secret realm!

Yet, unwilling to concede, he snorted and said, "You were just lucky for guessing that right. This creature's power is merely equivalent to that of a level-one Primogem Expert. It is hardly a threat."

As he finished speaking, Hilliard unleashed a burst of primogem energy, sending the "gold bullion" soaring.

However, as it struck the ground, an even more powerful wave of metal law power erupted. Almost instantaneously, all the gold bullion on the ground levitated, merging into a massive, formidable entity under the influence of an unseen force.

The creature's power soared, pausing only once it matched the might of a level-one Primogem King.

As Hilliard looked up at the immense creature, now towering like a three-story building, his eyes widened in disbelief, and he swallowed hard.

He had not foreseen that the creature could amalgamate and rapidly escalate its strength to such a formidable extent!

141086481

141086481

141086481

141086481

141086481