

Chapter 1495 His Resolve

Hilliard's face showed complicated emotions. Liam sneered, "If you're too scared to handle the escort mission, just stay out of it! Coward, don't let everyone look down on you!"

Hilliard's face turned red with embarrassment at Liam's words. He glanced around and saw the disdain in everyone else's eyes.

Despite his anger, Hilliard dared not say more, fearing the mission might actually fall to him.

Liam put away the law power and turned to Cataleya and the others. "There's no time to lose. You guys should use the Passing Wands and leave now. I just nurtured the law power of Nocturne, and its aura will only grow stronger. Soon, more members of the Dremer race will notice it."

At that moment, Alexis asked, "Liam, are you sure you can complete the mission on your own?"

Liam nodded. "I only do things I'm sure of. Don't worry; I won't let anything happen to Nocturne's law power!"

Alexis nodded slightly, while Cataleya appeared hesitant. Finally, she said, "Liam, if you act alone, you might be at a disadvantage. Let me accompany you on the escort."

Liam was taken aback, not expecting Cataleya to choose to join him. He knew Cataleya wasn't concerned about his safety, as the team's goal was to escort the law power of Nocturne.

Still, Liam was surprised by Cataleya's resolve, given her seemingly gentle demeanor.

However, after some thought, Liam declined Cataleya's offer, saying, "It's better I do this alone. The fewer people on the escort mission, the better. More people would make us easier to be discovered and increase the chances of failure."

Cataleya accepted Liam's logic and did not press further. "Alright, then take care. We'll be waiting for you to go back to the Rosefinch Galaxy!"

Liam nodded.

Subsequently, Cataleya and the others activated their Passing Wands.

The Passing Wands soon opened a dark spatial passage in front of them.

After Liam watched Cataleya and the others depart, his demeanor grew stern.

On his own, he could confront a level-four Primogem King and even withstand a level-five one.

But the intel he had suggested that at the exit of the secret realm, a team led by three level-nine Primogem Kings from the Dremer race awaited.

It was likely there were also Primogem Kings in the team.

Liam recognized the daunting challenge ahead.

Nonetheless, he was unswayed in his resolve.

Nocturne knew how to defeat the Dremer race and lessen their onslaught against the Human Clan at the frontier. This was sufficient reason for Liam to risk everything to escort the law power of Nocturne.

Taking a deep breath, Liam peered into the horizon and muttered, "Lord of Rosefinch, my return hinges on whether you've sent reinforcements."

Grasping the law power of Nocturne, Liam tapped the ground lightly with his feet and launched into the sky like a comet. Driven by his flying device, he blazed towards the exit of the secret realm.
