

Chapter 1501 Leaving The Secret Realm

Once the last remnants of sword energy faded, leaving only silence in its wake, Liam peered ahead, a nervous edge to his gaze.

Yet, what met his eyes fell far short of what he had hoped for. His all-out attack hadn't quite cut it.

While a handful of the creatures from the secret realm had fallen, the majority still stood, wounded but far from defeated.

With a guttural roar, their eyes blazing a fierce crimson, the creatures stormed toward Liam in a frenzy.

A torrent of law powers surged forward, bearing down on Liam like a tidal wave.

Despite his hard-earned Silver-Form Body, a state that boosted his defense with the earth law power, Liam struggled to hold his ground. The assault was overwhelming, each blast of law power from the creatures battering him down.

Not only did Liam have to protect himself, but he also had to shield Nocturne's law power, ensuring it remained unharmed.

Liam staggered, but before he could recover, one of the creature's blows struck him squarely in the chest.

The impact was brutal, driving the breath from his lungs and sending him hurtling backward.

Once the last remnants of sword energy faded, leaving only silence in its wake, Liam peered ahead, a nervous edge to his gaze.

Yet, what met his eyes fell far short of what he had hoped for. His all-out attack hadn't quite cut it.

While a handful of the creatures from the secret realm had fallen, the majority still stood, wounded but far from defeated.

With a guttural roar, their eyes blazing a fierce crimson, the creatures stormed toward Liam in a frenzy.

A torrent of law powers surged forward, bearing down on Liam like a tidal wave.

Despite his hard-earned Silver-Form Body, a state that boosted his defense with the earth law power, Liam struggled to hold his ground. The assault was overwhelming, each blast of law power from the creatures battering him down.

Not only did Liam have to protect himself, but he also had to shield Nocturne's law power, ensuring it remained unharmed.

Liam staggered, but before he could recover, one of the creature's blows struck him squarely in the chest.

The impact was brutal, driving the breath from his lungs and sending him hurtling backward.

With a grimace, Liam checked the time.

Just seconds remained until his agreed time with Caden. Liam clenched his teeth.

Timing on the battlefield was rarely exact, and delays were

Timing on the battlefield was rarely exact, and delays were part of the deal.

Liam hadn't wanted to leave the secret realm right at the thirty-minute mark, planning instead to stretch his stay a little longer.

But under the current circumstances, he knew he could no longer afford to linger in the secret realm.

If he forced himself to stay here, even with his Heart of Life sustaining him, he doubted he could continue shielding Nocturne's law power against the relentless assault.

Liam's gaze drifted to the exit of the secret realm, thoughts racing as he weighed his options.

Moments later, a fierce resolve hardened in his eyes.

"I've got no choice but to gamble now," he muttered.

He chose to leave the secret realm.

The law power of Nocturne was at its limit, battered by the creatures' onslaught and the Dremer army's attacks. If he wanted to carry Nocturne's law power safely back to the Rosefinch Galaxy for revival, he had to take this risk.

Though the Dremer forces could follow him beyond the secret realm's borders, the creatures themselves were bound by the realm's rules, unable to pursue him outside the secret realm.

As long as he exited, he would gain a precious moment to catch his breath.

As long as he wasn't immediately surrounded by the Dremer army outside the secret realm, there would still be a chance for him to safely return the law power of Nocturne to the Rosefinch Galaxy.

Just as Liam made his choice, the creatures of the secret realm surged forward again.

The air blazed with beams of law powers streaking toward Liam, joined by the attack of the Dremer forces.

Liam's expression hardened as he swiftly channeled his earth law power, raising a protective barrier around himself and Nocturne's law power.

But as the enemy's forces surged against it, cracks began snaking across the barrier's surface, widening with each hit. Soon, the shield shattered, and the full force of the combined attacks slammed into Liam.

A pained grunt escaped Liam as he was hurled backward again.

But even in mid-air, he angled his body toward the exit, determined to leave the secret realm now.

Summoning every ounce of his strength, he unleashed a burst of primogem energy from his palm, propelling himself to the exit.

The next second, Liam's body shot like a comet straight for the secret realm's exit.