

Chapter 1519 You Didn't Contribute Anything Useful

It was no wonder that everyone reacted so strongly.

After all, everyone knew that in order for a Primogem Expert to board a battleship of Venerable Emperor Level, they had to be at least a First-level Warrior.

While this requirement wasn't particularly high, the fact that Liam was traveling with Caden and a group of distinguished figures from the Rosefinch Galaxy on such a battleship was surprising.

Some tried to console themselves, convincing themselves that Liam had simply been lucky.

Still, it was hard for most people to believe that Liam truly had the qualifications to board such a warship.

Meanwhile, Caden led Liam to the front of the crowd. He pointed in a direction and used a stream of primogem energy, which carried four figures from the crowd to their side.

These four people were Gabriela, Hilliard, Alexis, and Cataleya, who had previously joined Liam on the mission in the secret realm.

Cataleya was the first to greet Liam, smiling warmly. She said, "Liam, it's so good to see you back! After we left, did anything happen to you in the secret realm?"

Liam smiled and replied, "Thank you for your concern, Cataleya. Nothing bad happened to me after you left—"

Before Liam could finish his sentence, Hilliard sneered, interjecting, "And what about Nocturne's law power? You didn't just throw it away to save your life, did you?"

Hilliard's sarcastic remark caused Liam to frown, and even Winfred, standing beside Liam, couldn't suppress his own displeasure, casting a cold glare at Hilliard.

How had Hilliard been chosen by the Lord of Rosefinch to retrieve Nocturne's law power?

Hilliard's arrogant attitude towards Liam spoke volumes about his character.

Hilliard seemed like the kind of person who would likely abandon his comrades without a second thought if it meant saving himself on the battlefield.

Suppressing the urge to slap Hilliard, Winfred heard Liam's cold snort.

"The law power of Nocturne has been successfully brought back! But whether I completed the task or not is none of your concern. In fact, this mission to find Nocturne's law power had little to do with you. You didn't contribute anything useful!" Liam said.

Winfred smiled brightly, his admiration for Liam growing by the second. Just for Liam's sharp retort, Winfred felt an overwhelming urge to cheer. But with Caden standing not far ahead, he had to suppress the impulse to applaud.

Liam's words left Hilliard fuming, his face turning a deep shade of red with anger. Yet, for all his rage, he couldn't find the words to refute Liam.

Because, just as Liam had stated, it was Liam who had first discovered Nocturne's law power.

And it was Liam who had prevented the members of the Dremer race from destroying the law power.

In the end, it was also Liam who had safely escorted Nocturne's law power back to the Rosefinch Galaxy.

Indeed, this mission could have been completed without Hilliard. Liam could have completed the mission on his own.

But Hilliard wasn't ready to back down. With stubborn defiance, he retorted, "Oh really? Then let's see how many points you've earned. After we returned to the Rosefinch Galaxy, we went to the battlefield and killed hundreds of Dremer members!"

At this, Winfred couldn't help but roll his eyes.

Hilliard had killed a few hundred Dremer members and was now parading around like he was a hero?

That was laughable!

Liam had singlehandedly slaughtered a hundred thousand Dremer members, even severely injuring a Four-winged Demon, who was a seventh-level Primogem King.
