

Chapter 1533 Seclusion

After parting ways with Cecil, Liam stepped into the cultivation chamber.

This time, Liam chose not to barter for more time in the Sea of Laws. Instead, he settled into a period of solitary cultivation within the chamber's tranquil confines.

Now in possession of the Stone of Five Elements and with no urgent duties calling, Liam found it the opportune moment to delve deep into the stone's mysteries. His goal was clear: to refine this powerful artifact and meld his law powers of the five elements.

Positioned in the heart of the chamber, Liam sat cross-legged, the Stone of Five Elements in his hand.

The stone now pulsed with the Power of Five Elements.

The power was a rich tapestry of energies: metal, wood, water, fire, and earth. Each element revealed itself in turn.

A thrill of anticipation coursed through Liam.

The more intense the energy released from the stone, the greater his chances of successfully fusing his law powers were.

The law powers of the first-tier were absolutely worth him putting so much effort into comprehending.

Understanding the profound gap between the first and second tiers of law powers was crucial. While they were only one tier apart, the difference was as vast as that between the heavens and the earth.

Second-tier law powers were essential in combat, enhancing a cultivator's fighting capabilities significantly.

However, first-tier law powers were of a different breed altogether. They were vast, primordial forces comparable to the very might of the cosmos.

The Death Power Liam had was one of them, which even surpassed typical World Powers in its intensity.

The law power of the five elements Liam sought to master was of this same elite tier.

That was why he was so eager to do this.

With his resolve firm, Liam adjusted his energy to its peak before pressing the Stone of Five Elements against his chest.

A vibrant surge of primogem energy exploded from within Liam, enveloping the stone in a dazzling aura. He activated his primogem energy and began refine the Stone of Five Elements.

Simultaneously, Liam calmed his mind and entered the state of seclusion.

As Liam honed his focus, the Stone of Five Elements transformed. The stone's vast energy was refined into a purer form.

It was almost unimaginable for Liam—had he not felt it firsthand—that such a modest, palm-sized stone could harbor an energy as vast as the primogem energy within him.

Without hesitation, Liam harnessed this newly refined energy, channeling it with precision into his body.

At the same time, he consolidated his mastery over the five elemental law powers using the energy from the Stone of Five Elements.

In that transformative moment, Liam's body became a conduit—a vessel where his primogem energy and the stone's power flowed in unison.

Under the subtle influence of the stone's energy, Liam's five elemental law powers started to coalesce.

This time, the elemental law powers attracted rather than repelled each other, forging a new, harmonious bond.

A wave of exhilaration swept through Liam. The Stone of Five Elements was proving to be very useful.

Although Liam was confident in his ability to eventually master the law power of the five elements on his own, he knew the value of mastering them sooner. The sooner he mastered it, the better prepared he would be for the challenges that lay ahead.

