

Chapter 1535 Liam's Plan

Liam now possessed two first-tier law powers. He truly gained the confidence to face off against the alien races in the interstellar battlefield of the Cosmic realm.

It had been nearly six months since he had entered the Cosmic realm.

During this time, he not only focused on cultivating but also learned the intricacies of this new place.

On the interstellar battlefield, cultivators at the Primogem Expert level were often seen as expendable. Even those at the Primogem King level were barely above being considered advanced expendables.

Liam learned this the hard way during his mission to escort the Nocturne's law power.

It became clear that significant achievements on the battlefield required at least the prowess of a Primogem King.

After acquiring the Law Power of Five Elements, Liam's combat capabilities had soared. Now, he had the strength to stand against many enemies at the Primogem King level.

He felt sure that if he faced the Four-winged Demon again, despite suffering some losses, he could emerge victorious.

Emerging from his intensive training, Liam took time to review the special points he had accumulated.

The points from defeating the Dremer members while safeguarding Nocturne's law power had now been accounted for, boosting his total points to an impressive 500,000.

This sum was more than sufficient to sustain several years of secluded cultivation in various levels of cultivation areas.

Regarding mission points, Liam was on the brink of reaching the threshold for level-five clearance.

He needed just 500 more mission points to advance to level-five clearance and achieve his goal.

However, his current plan didn't involve hastily undertaking missions to ascend to level-five clearance. Rather, he intended to test his newly-earned law power first.

After all, he had only recently acquired the Law Power of Five Elements and was still learning how to effectively utilize it.

Only after mastering it would he feel ready to tackle the alien threats more effectively on the battlefield.

For a member of the Human Clan, apart from undertaking missions against adversaries, the ideal venue for testing one's strength was the Human Sovereign Arena.

Liam had toyed with the idea of waiting until he attained the Primogem King realm before attempting a run in the Human Sovereign Arena, where he aimed to achieve a winning streak of nine or more.

The arena presented an excellent opportunity for him to test his strength. Even though entry to the arena required a fee in special points, the cost was virtually insignificant for him.

Moreover, the rewards in the Human Sovereign Arena reset monthly, and it had been several months since Liam's last challenge there.

That meant the points Liam used to purchase his arena ticket would be reimbursed through the rewards he earned from his performance streaks in the arena.

With this strategy in mind, Liam stepped out of his cultivation chamber, updated his status in the Network of Human Sovereign to indicate he had ended his seclusion, and made his way directly to the arena.

Since his wager with Hilliard, Liam's reputation had soared across the planetary systems of the Rosefinch Galaxy.

Although Liam had already been recognized by many before the incident, now, almost everyone knew his name.

So, as soon as Liam bought a ticket and entered the arena, the news quickly spread across the Rosefinch Galaxy.

