

Chapter 1536 Doing The Arena Mission

Many speculated that Liam entered the Human Sovereign Arena because some overconfident geniuses had challenged him to a duel.

After all, given Liam's past confrontations with Hilliard and Joseph, such challenges no longer shocked anyone.

Naturally, those drawn to drama, upon catching wind of the news, hurried to the Human Sovereign Arena to secure tickets, keen to see Liam fight.

For many practitioners, training went beyond solitary exercises—it also meant acquiring varied insights and experiences.

Observing a talent like Liam fight could provide invaluable lessons for those of average skill.

Yet, when the crowd assembled in the arena and settled into their seats, they were disheartened to discover that Liam was not there for a duel.

Liam was only there to do the monthly arena mission.

The crowd was a bit disappointed, but they were still glad they were here.

After all, Liam's participation in the arena mission still necessitated a display of his skills.

However, his abilities would be moderated by the Network of Human Sovereign, rendering the event less intense than a full-scale duel.

Still, for the practitioners present, any gleaned insights from Liam's techniques were considered valuable.

At that moment, Liam stood in the arena, a prompt from the Network of Human Sovereign appearing before him.

"Do you wish to start the arena mission?"

Without hesitation, Liam opted to proceed.

Immediately, another notification from the Network of Human Sovereign appeared.

"After confirmation, you currently hold a seven-win streak. Your information has been logged. You may continue your current streak aiming for an eighth win, but you will forfeit rewards from the previous seven. If you refuse, you will restart from the first duel, allowing you to claim your victory rewards before."

Liam glanced at the notification of the Network of Human Sovereign and decisively chose to continue.

For him, the special points held little allure.

Since he had over half a million special points at his disposal, the reward for seven consecutive wins in the Human Sovereign Arena seemed trivial.

Opting out of the previous challenges, he could conserve his strength and enter the match in optimal condition, fully ready to test the effectiveness of the Law Power of Five Elements.

After Liam chose to go straight to the eighth-level match, his strength was immediately adjusted to the first-tier Primogem Expert level by the Network of Human Sovereign.

The prompt quickly vanished, replaced by a countdown.

As the countdown concluded, a somewhat burly figure materialized before Liam.

Liam's expression was serious.

He trusted in his skills yet approached the situation with caution.

The eighth-level match placed him against an adversary at the eighth-tier Primogem Expert level, while he remained at the first-tier.

Without giving his all, victory would be challenging, despite his many trump cards.

As the match commenced, the spectators in the Human Sovereign Arena watched with bated breath.

Their anxiety seemed to surpass even Liam's.

This was understandable, given that Liam was celebrated as a genius among practitioners across the Rosefinch Galaxy. Witnessing his tactics would offer them invaluable insights.