

Chapter 1538 Victory

After a brief pause to gather his thoughts, Everett sharpened his focus, ready to take on the swiftly advancing Liam.

Armed with a long sword pulsating with the Law Power of Five Elements, Liam surged forward with unstoppable force. The power radiating from his blade bent the very air of the Human Sovereign Arena.

Almost simultaneously, the law power swirled around Everett, tightening like a vice.

In the blink of an eye, Everett's movements bogged down, as if he were trudging through dense mud. Even the simple act of lifting his hand turned into a Herculean effort.

Despite this, Everett's higher cultivation level allowed him a sliver of resistance. But soon, a profound weakness seeped into his limbs, draining his energy and leaving him struggling to muster any strength.

This was the sheer unpredictability of the Law Power of Five Elements. Its rare nature usually left opponents unprepared, struggling to defend against its mercurial assaults.

Still, Everett's inner strength dwarfed Liam's. He rallied his primogem energy, fiercely battling the invasive force wreaking havoc on his body.

Just then, Liam's long sword struck.

Everett's face hardened as he managed to raise his arm just in time to block the strike.

Immediately, Everett felt a sharp, stinging pain in his arm. The intense pain caused him to frown deeply, and his eyes widened in shock.

Everett realized that the pain was caused by the fire law power within the Law Power of Five Elements. The fact that the pain was so unbearable made it clear just how advanced Liam's mastery of the fire law power was.

Secretly impressed by Liam's formidable skill, Everett shed any lingering underestimation.

His gaze fixed squarely on Liam, Everett braced himself, now fully committed to the match.

Flames burst forth from Everett's form, ignited by a sudden rush of primogem energy. The fire swirled into the air like a vast net, hurtling towards Liam.

Liam's features tensed for a moment. He responded with a swift invocation of the Law Power of Five Elements, calling upon the water law power. Its effect was instantaneous and decisive. The flames, fierce a moment before, were smothered, dissolving into the air immediately.

Even Liam, the architect of this counter, hadn't expected this to happen.

While he understood the theory—water would quench fire—he had not fully anticipated his ability to completely snuff out Everett's fiery assault.

Yet, he wasted no time dwelling on the surprise. With a determined thrust, he drove his sword forward. Everett reacted with lightning speed, summoning an armor of primogem energy, but the blade tore through his defenses.

Everett's aura dimmed sharply. Seizing the falter, Liam delivered a crushing palm strike to Everett's chest. The force was so powerful that it sent Everett flying out of the Human Sovereign Arena.

As Everett hit the ground, the match was declared over.

Silence enveloped the arena.

Though the crowd had held high hopes for Liam, expecting him to defeat Everett—an eighth-level Primogem Expert—with his first-level expertise, none had foreseen such a swift conclusion.

Just then, a notification panel flickered into existence before Liam. "Congratulations to participant Liam Hoffman for winning the eighth match. Points have been awarded. Please choose whether to proceed with the ninth match."
