

Chapter 1571 Erasing Karmic Bond

Caden and Katherine shared a brief joke before falling silent.

Their eyes then shifted to Liam in unison.

Caden offered a faint smile and asked, "Kid, tell me, did you kill Farris?"

His voice was calm, as though he already saw through the situation.

Realizing that Caden had pieced it all together, Liam nodded without hesitation.

Katherine's eyes widened in surprise.

Liam being the one to have killed Farris was nothing short of shocking.

After all, Liam, a ninth-level Primogem Expert, had defeated Farris, a formidable ninth-level Primogem King. It was a testament to Liam's exceptional talent and unmatched strength.

Katherine had never heard of anyone capable of destroying a ninth-level Primogem King's soul while wielding only ninth-level Primogem Expert strength.

As this realization settled in, she found herself looking at Liam with newfound admiration.

Such extraordinary talent! No wonder he was the Forge Regal's son.

"While I'm glad you killed Farris—and to be honest, I think he deserved far worse—there's something you need to understand," Caden suddenly said, his tone growing serious. "No matter how despicable Farris was, he was still an emissary of the Soulsky Clan. They may not dare to cause trouble here in the Rosefinch Galaxy, but your influence and actions stretch far beyond this little corner of the universe."

When Liam heard that, his brow furrowed.

The implication was clear. By eliminating Farris, he had unwittingly tied himself to the Soulsky Clan through a karmic bond.

If the Soulsky Clan found out about the matter, there would be no escape from their unrelenting vengeance.

Nevertheless, a flicker of hope stirred within Liam. He turned to Caden and asked, "Lord of Rosefinch, what makes you think the Soulsky Clan will find out I was the one who killed Farris?"

Caden chuckled. "That's exactly why I urged you to stay. By killing Farris, you've created a karmic connection to the Soulsky Clan. In the Cosmic Realm, the Soulsky Clan members are unrivaled in their ability to trace such bonds. If they choose to pursue this, they'll have no trouble identifying you as the one responsible for Farris' death. And when that happens, you won't just be facing a passing grudge. It will be a full-scale confrontation with the Soulsky Clan."

Liam's forehead creased further. "So there's no escaping the Soulsky Clan's pursuit, is there?"

Caden smiled. "That's not the case. If you had killed Farris elsewhere, I wouldn't have been able to help you. But remember, this is the Rosefinch Galaxy. And I am the Lord of Rosefinch. Here, no cosmic secret can escape my sight!"

With those words, he extended his hand toward Liam. "Now, don't hold back any part of your aura. Let me sever this karmic bond for you."

Liam wasted no time. He nodded and firmly placed his hand in Caden's.

The moment their hands connected, a scorching sensation erupted within Liam's spiritual sea. However, it didn't cause him pain. Instead, it was strangely soothing, like a flame cleansing him from within.

As the sensation deepened, Liam became aware of something extraordinary. Subtle threads of his past seemed to shift and transform under Caden's influence.

The realization left him shaken. Caden's power was beyond anything he had imagined.

The ability to obscure cosmic truths and manipulate karma itself was truly remarkable!
